Board Packet, Table of Contents

Meeting: May 22, 2022 at 3:00pm

Agenda  Page 2

Public Testimony Apr 22 through May 22  Page 3

Superior Court Decision regarding EAP motion, May 17, 2022  Page 14

Superior Court Decision regarding Girdwood Plaintiffs, May 17, 2022  Page 27

Board's Petition of the Alaska Supreme Court to review SC Decision 5/18  Page 82

Girdwood Plaintiffs’ Opposition to Board’s Petition to Review 5/20  Page 129
Date: Sunday May 22, 2022
Time: 3:00pm
Place: Teleconference public listen-in phone numbers:
Anchorage 563-9085, Juneau 586-9085, Other 844-586-9085

Agenda

1. Call to Order and Establish Quorum

2. Adoption of Agenda

3. Litigation Report from Counsel

4. Board Discussion and Possible Action Regarding Litigation, including Discussion regarding Scope of Authority of Litigation Subcommittee

5. Board member comments

6. Adjournment
First Name: Nicole
Last Name: Borromeo
Group Affiliation, if applicable: ARB
Email or Phone Contact: testimony@akredistrict.org
Issue of Concern (Please provide map name if applicable): Litigation/Appeals Public Comment: A few other points for the record:

1. Litigation committee was stood up in December of last year to handle the first round of litigation, related to the five original law suits.

2. That matter was disposed of in March of this year, with the Alaska Supreme Court's decision.

3. When the case is remanded to the Board, I gave everyone written notice that I was not abiding by the Litigation Committee anymore because the work on remand was different.

4. No one on the Board responded to my message(s). Only Matt replied, stating the Litigation Committee was still in effect. Last I checked, Matt wasn't a duly appointed member of the Board (he wants to act like one, and that text read between Budd and his wife Paulette implies that Matt has been involved in behind the door decision making with the three-member majority).

5. It's an inherent conflict of interest and a dereliction of duties for John and Budd to serve on the Litigation Committee to the exclusion of others. They have been found to have engaged in unconstitutional political gerrymandering three times now, together with Bethany.

6. Procedurally speaking, we should have stood up a new Litigation Committee for this new round of litigation.

7. It seems appropriate that Matt and his firm should represent the Board pro bono in this next appeal or that the three-member majority should personally pay for it. I thought Republicans are supposed to be fiscally conservative? This is a waste of state resources. We are now over $1 million in debt to the Schwabe law firm because of senseless litigation.
8. I removed Matt and Lee, and Peter as well, from the thread in case anyone tries to claim that attorney client privilege applies to it. This is a procedural matter.

9. Until I'm removed from this Board, I have just as much say as the four of you on how it conducts business. I would like to meet ASAP.

/nb

Sent from my iPhone

On May 17, 2022, at 3:57 PM, Nicole Borromeo <nicole.borromeo@akredistrict.org> wrote:

Matt,

I'd like to remind you that your obligation is to the full Board, not just the Litigation Committee. There should have been a Board meeting about this. How dare you file this without giving us any prior notice?

While you and the Litigation Committee, consisting of John and Budd – who by the way were found to have engaged in partisan gerrymandering for a third time early this morning (!), may like to do things behind closed doors, I don't. As such, I'm copying the testimony portal so this message becomes a matter of public record.

I'd also like to renew my request for a fourth time (!!!!) for conflict counsel. You have demonstrated time and tone again that you don't represent the Alaska Redistricting Board. The only interest you care about is that of the three-member majority, and their only interest is continuing to engage in unconstitutional partisan gerrymandering to give Eagle River more representation.

John, you were elected to chair the board. Call a meeting.

/nb
All,

With technology, I believe we can accommodate Bethany’s out of state work schedule. I favor proceeding as soon as possible. I don’t want to wait until next week. It makes no sense. It appears that Bethany was quite flexible calling and texting John and Budd when she was out of state on medical in April. I raise this for record purposes only. In the event she can’t meet, we only need three for quorum.

I also support Melanie’s request to put a Litigation Committee’s decision to appeal the May 16 ruling on the agenda. This is something as you know from my previous emails that I’ve been against since the start of the second round of litigation: meaning, the Litigation Committee usurping Board governance, with Matt’s help.

Don’t forget my other agenda item, which is conflict counsel for me and Melanie. She has also expressed a desire for this in another email thread. I have raise this three times so far, four being today.

I look forward to meeting later today, tomorrow, Friday, Saturday, or Sunday.

In closing, I’m glad to see John and Bethany finally responding to my emails. It is a welcome change.

THANKS!

/nb
Date: May 18, 2022, 2:29 pm

First Name: Nicole

Last Name: Borromeo

Group Affiliation, if applicable: ARB

Email or Phone Contact: testimony@akredistrict.org

Your ZIP Code: 99999

Issue of Concern (Please provide map name if applicable): Litigation/Appeals

Public Comment: Melanie,

Thank you so much for circulating this. Peter, thank you also for the pin site to the place in the recording.

It's crystal clear to me that the litigation committee has been acting well beyond the scope of its limited appointment powers.

It looks like we'll have lots to talk about our next meeting.

Best,

Nicole
Date: May 18, 2022, 2:40 pm

First Name: Melanie

Last Name: Bahnke

Group Affiliation, if applicable: Ak Redistricting Board

Email or Phone Contact: Melanie.bahnke@akredistrict.org

Your ZIP Code: 99762

Issue of Concern (Please provide map name if applicable): Unauthorized appeal

Public Comment: Given that the board did not authorize an appeal regarding the latest superior court ruling, the notice of intent to appeal / appeal must be withdrawn until sanctioned by the board at a public meeting.
Date: May 18, 2022, 7:48 pm

First Name: Nicole

Last Name: Borromeo

Group Affiliation, if applicable: ARB

Email or Phone Contact: testimony@akredistrict.org

Your ZIP Code: 99999

Issue of Concern (Please provide map name if applicable): Litigation/Appeals

Public Comment: Matt,

What are you doing filing appeals without the Board’s permission? We didn’t authorize this.

I suggest you stop all action until the Board meets.

Nicole
Date: May 19, 2022, 2:14 pm

First Name: Nicole

Last Name: Borromeo

Group Affiliation, if applicable: ARB

Email or Phone Contact: testimony@akredistrict.org

Your ZIP Code: 99999

Issue of Concern (Please provide map name if applicable): Litigation/Appeals

Public Comment: All,

We need to meet ASAP. Pushing this off until Memorial Day weekend unnecessary.

Please fulfill your fiduciary duties,

Nicole
Date: May 21, 2022, 10:16 am

First Name: Nicole

Last Name: Borromeo

Group Affiliation, if applicable: ARB

Email or Phone Contact: testimony@akredistrict.org

Your ZIP Code: 99999

Issue of Concern (Please provide map name if applicable): Litigation

Public Comment: Litigation Committee Members,

The Alaska Supreme Court just issued an order giving the parties until 3:00PM today to respond to whether or not the brief filed by me and Melanie yesterday should be allowed.

I hope that this will be brought to the Board's attention for discussion and action immediately.

Best,

Nicole
Date: May 21, 2022, 12:47 pm

First Name: Melanie

Last Name: Bahnke

Group Affiliation, if applicable: ARB

Email or Phone Contact: testimony@akredistrict.org

Your ZIP Code: 99999

Issue of Concern (Please provide map name if applicable): Meeting/Public Testimony

Public Comment: I drove into town to access email after texting with Peter who says we are having a meeting tomorrow at 3, but only via teleconference and that we have no way to allow public comment because he can’t get anyone at LIO to staff it on a Sunday. It is unacceptable to have a meeting at the midnight hour without public comment on the agenda and no way for the public to observe other than calling into a phone line. This is not a hotdog stand operation. We spent about $1 million in legal fees but we can’t get an LIO staffer to staff our meeting? Not even a contracted service? We are the Redistricting board and we should hold a properly noticed (our policies say 72 hours when possible) meeting, allow public comment as we have always strived for, and have this VISIBLE in the public eye, at a minimum via zoom or teams. This is turning into a circus. Mr Chairman, after weeks of me and Nicole begging for a meeting, you’re finally holding one? I note that you, Budd, and Bethany previously said you absolutely couldn’t be available to meet until the 28th. And you’re not even going to allow the public to comment or observe? Only listen? If we can’t get staff on a Sunday to staff this we best hold off until Monday to do this properly. This reeks of more secretive procedures. If not, I suppose we can at least invite the media in to stream it so the public can at least observe. I object to having a meeting where the public can’t participate.
Date: May 21, 2022, 1:53 pm

First Name: Melanie

Last Name: Bahnke

Group Affiliation, if applicable: ARB

Email or Phone Contact: testimony@akredistrict.org

Your ZIP Code: 99999

Issue of Concern (Please provide map name if applicable): Meeting/Public Testimony

Public Comment: I've put out a request on social media for any media to at least stream our meeting tomorrow since we apparently don't have the resources to do that.

Heading back to camp where I have no internet; Peter you may hear from media willing to stream our meeting, I asked them to email you if they are willing to. Please set up a zoom or teams meeting instead of just a teleconference if possible. Also John, please add public comment to agenda. Any other comms - I can only be reached by text (not even group text) until tomorrow at 2:30.
Date: May 21, 2022, 2:11 pm

First Name: Nicole

Last Name: Borromeo

Group Affiliation, if applicable: ARB

Email or Phone Contact: testimony@akredistrict.org

Your ZIP Code: 99999

Issue of Concern (Please provide map name if applicable): Meeting/Public Testimony

Public Comment: Again with a Litigation Committee? Why can't we err on the side of caution and ask the Board to make governance decisions in an effort (albeit at a little) to comply with the constitution?

I disagree with this filing. This is the first time that I've seen it – again after the fact.

Peter, I would like you to please segregate the billing for Matt, Lee, and any other attorney at this firm based on the action that they took directly (or indirectly) on behalf of the Litigation Committee. Matt, maybe you can do this quicker?

THANKS!

/nb
IN THE SUPERIOR COURT FOR THE STATE OF ALASKA
THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT AT ANCHORAGE

In the Matter of the 2021 Redistricting Plan. Case No. 3AN-21-08869CI

ORDER DENYING EAST ANCHORAGE MOTION TO REJECT AMENDED REDISTRICTING PLAN BUT GRANTING IN PART CLARIFICATION

I. INTRODUCTION

On April 18, 2022, the East Anchorage Plaintiffs filed a Motion to Reject Amended Redistricting Proclamation Plan and for Modification of Order on Remand. The following day, the Alaska Redistricting Board (Board) filed its Opposition, and East Anchorage filed its Reply April 20, 2022. East Anchorage asks the Court to reject the Amended Proclamation plan for failure to comply with the March 30, 2022 Order as it relates to the Anchorage Senate Districts. East Anchorage also moves the Court to modify the Order to adopt a proposed map identified as “Option 2.” Otherwise, East Anchorage Plaintiffs ask the Court to modify the Order to clarify that “all the unconstitutional pairings underlying Senate District K must be corrected.”

II. ARGUMENT

A. The Court Resolves East Anchorage’s Motion Upon Review of the Entire Record

As a threshold matter, the Court is cognizant of the Board’s assertion that it should wait for the record to proceed with a decision on East Anchorage’s motion. The parties’ positions were clarified at oral argument to reflect the shared sentiment that, to the extent that the Court resolves the motion by simply clarifying the its past Orders, it is not necessary to wait to receive and review the record. By contrast, parties seem to agree that should the Courts’ resolution more accurately be described as a review of the April 15, 2022 Proclamation Plan, the Court should do so only once it has had the opportunity to review the full record.
In light of East Anchorage’s arguments and the questions they raise, it would insufficiently address the entirety of East Anchorage’s motion if the Court were to resolve the Motion with only an order clarifying the confines of past Orders. Therefore, the Court opted to hold off on a decision until receiving the record, and sets forth its decision having reviewed and considered the record submitted by the Board.

B. The Court’s Orders Did Not Mandate that the Board Pair, or Decline to Pair, any Specific Districts as Such a Mandate would Fall Outside of this Court’s Authority

East Anchorage interprets this Court’s February 15, 2022 Order to mandate that House District 24, Eagle River Valley, and House District 10, North Eagle River/Chugiak, be combined into one Senate District. Plaintiffs clarified at oral argument that they understood the Court’s Order to conclude that any senate district that split House Districts 24 and 10 was unconstitutional. The Court notes that house district 24, North Eagle River, remains paired with House District 23, the JBER District, comprising Senate District L. House District 10 is no longer paired with South Muldoon, but is now paired with House District 9, which comprises a portion of South Anchorage and Girdwood.

By contrast, the Board argues that East Anchorage challenged Senate District L, the JBER/Eagle River district that is still paired in the final plan, and the Court did not determine it was unconstitutional.\(^1\) Likewise, the Court did not conclude that the two Eagle River house districts must be paired into one senate district, or otherwise conclude that any other pairing was unconstitutional. In so doing, the Board argues that the East Anchorage Plaintiffs were denied the relief they seek, said relief being that the Court pair certain house districts together, and as such as such cannot bring it in a subsequent action, as they are attempting to do here.

East Anchorage’s argument emanates from its interpretation of this Court’s February 15, 2022 Order, and subsequent March 30, 2022 Order. Thus, it is necessary to briefly clarify the confines of both. The Court’s past orders do not, and cannot, set forth a mandate that any district must, or cannot be paired. The Court’s Order only declared

\(^1\) ARB’s Opposition to East Anchorage Plaintiff’s Motion to Reject Amended Proclamation Plan at 2 [hereinafter Opposition].
Senate District K in violation of Alaska’s Equal Protection Clause and required changes be made to bring it into compliance with the Constitution. To the extent that either party argues that the Court did, or did not, require a particular pairing, they are mistaken. The Court is precluded from drawing districts.\textsuperscript{2} Thus, the Court cannot, and did not, mandate that any districts be paired, or specifically decline to do so. The Court can only review the map for constitutionality. It is the Board’s duty to draw the boundaries.

C. The Board Did Not Exceed its Authority on Remand

East Anchorage argues that the Board exceeded its authority on remand, arguing that the Board was limited to disrupting the Senate Districts only to the extent necessary to fix the constitutional infirmity.\textsuperscript{3} The bigger question seems to be when the Board receives a remand, what the scope of that remand is. It is unclear to what extent the Board can make changes that go beyond what is necessary to correct the constitutional defect, and deciding this issue would require the Court to determine where the line is.

To be sure, the Court reviews the Board’s plan “to ensure that the Board did not exceed its delegated authority and to determine if the plan is ‘reasonable and not arbitrary.’”\textsuperscript{4} In the context of a remand to the trial court from an appellate court, “[w]hen an appellate court issues a specific mandate a trial court has no authority to deviate from it.”\textsuperscript{5} The Court cannot mandate that the Board draw districts with specific boundaries or pair particular house districts.\textsuperscript{6}

In 2011, the Board was required to redraw House Districts. However, the Board was required to redraw all House Districts, even unchallenged districts, in order to follow \textsuperscript{2} In re 2011 Redistricting Cases, 294 P.3d 1032, 1037 (Alaska 2012) (The Court may not “substitute its judgement as to the sagacity of a redistricting plan for that of the Board, as the wisdom of the plan is not a subject for review.”); Groh v. Egan, 526 P.2d 863, 889 (Alaska 1974) (“[i]t is not our function to develop apportionment schemes for the State of Alaska. We are limited in review to determining whether a plan adopted by the governor suffers state or federal constitutional defects alleged by the parties in the litigation before us. . . . [p]articularly where specific objections have not been presented to us, we do not believe it appropriate to substitute our judgment for that if the constitutionally empowered authority regarding the wisdom of delicate adjustment to be made in political boundaries.”).

\textsuperscript{3} Motion to Reject Proclamation Plan at 9.
\textsuperscript{4} In Re 2011 Redistricting Cases 294 P.3d 1032, 1037 (Alaska 2012).
\textsuperscript{6} In re 2011 Redistricting Cases, 294 P.3d 1032, 1037 (Alaska 2012).
the Hickel process, which it failed to do the first time. Hickel's strictly procedural mandate is in contrast to the situation here, where the Board was directed to correct a specific unconstitutional pairing, not redraw districts with a different process. The Court in In Re 2011 found that because the Board declined to redraw all districts that were originally drawn considering the VRA first, rather than following the Hickel process, and only redrew a small amount, the Court was left with "nothing to show that if the Board had considered the Alaska constitutional requirements first, as instructed, these districts would have remained the same."7

Yet, the remand before this Court is dissimilar to In Re 2011. In Re 2011 required the Board to effectively go back to the drawing board. This Court's Order did not require that. It also did not preclude that. The Court cannot dictate the specific changes that occur; it can only determine whether a redistricting map is constitutional or not. It does not comport with that principle to interpret the Order to dictate that Option 2 had to be adopted.

Further, even assuming this Court had effectively mandated a specific pairing by concluding that any pairing but Eagle River and Eagle River would be unconstitutional, creating that pairing would have created a cascading effect on the map and required a number of other districts to be changed as well. It is of note that both map 2 and map 3B both changed only four Senate Districts.8 There is an equal cascading effect evident to both maps. It is unlikely the Court could have mandated the Board correct the constitutional infirmity, but limited the Board to a specific number of changed districts. That would likely be beyond the Court's authority. The Court declared Senate District K was unconstitutional, and the specific constitutional infirmity identified by the Court has been remedied. To the extent that parties argue that Option 2 was the better option, that is not for the Court to decide.

---

7 Id. at 1038.
8 Tr. 19:16-21 (April 13, 2022); ARB 2000966.
D. The Court’s Previous Finding of Illegitimate Purpose May be a Consideration Upon Review of a New Pairing, but Does Not Justify Forgoing the Remaining Analysis Under the Equal Protection Clause

East Anchorage also contends that the revised Proclamation Plan “accomplishes the Board’s unrelenting mission to provide Eagle River voters with more representation than other Anchorage residents.”9 Plaintiffs argue that this is a “continuation of intent,” intent which has already been proven, akin to the Fruit of the Poisonous Tree.

In response, the Board works through the Equal Protection Analysis in light of what it insists are new facts and a new record that was developed on remand. The Court, in concluding there was illegitimate intent, applied the neutral factors test set forth in Kenai Peninsula Borough. This Court found evidence of secretive procedures, regional partisanship, and boundaries that inexplicably ignored communities of interest.

The Board asserts that in creating the amended Proclamation Plan, there is no longer evidence of secretive procedures. Whereas in creating the initial Plan, the Board did not make clear which proposals it was considering adopting, took minimal public testimony, and seemed to come to some kind of agreement between a majority of parties, all of which left the Court with the distinct impression that there were secretive procedures that took place. On remand, the Board publicly deliberated and proposed two plans, “Option 2” and “Option 3B,” the latter of which was ultimately adopted as the final proclamation. The Board published these plans to the public,10 noticed the public of the opportunity to provide testimony,11 and took ample written and spoken testimony.12 A majority of the Board then voted to adopt Option 3B, though two Board members objected.13 This open process, the Board now argues, belies any argument that secretive procedures were at play.

---

9 Motion to Reject Proclamation Plan at 8.
10 Tr. 113:24-25, 114:1 (April 6, 2022); ARB 2001828.
11 ARB 2001831; ARB 2001828.
12 ARB 2001227-2001824; see ARB 2000076-ARB 2000083.
The Board continues to argue that there is no evidence of regional partisanship regarding JBER, or any other district that is potentially impacted by Eagle River’s Senate pairings. It argues that the same is true as to evidence of communities of interest. Finally, the Board argues that the Court cannot revisit East Anchorage’s grievances, as East Anchorage is asking the Court to provide relief on issues it already considered, and already declined to provide.

East Anchorage, however, takes a different approach, relying on the Court’s initial conclusion that Senate District K was drawn with illegitimate purpose. East Anchorage argues that the intent behind the illegitimate purpose carries over where the Board continued to attempt to find a way to keep Eagle River split into two districts and allow it “more representation.”\textsuperscript{14} The premise is so long as the intent continues, the constitutional violation continues as well. Pertinent to this analysis is that no finding of dilutive effect is required in the neutral factors test set forth in \textit{Kenai}. Once illegitimate \textit{purpose} is found, the burden shifts to the Board.

\textbf{i. Discriminatory Intent in Alaska and Related Federal Cases}

Under Alaska’s Equal Protection Clause, challengers of otherwise neutral state action must show that the government acted with “a discriminatory purpose.”\textsuperscript{15} In the redistricting context, the Alaska Supreme Court has described “a voter’s right to an equally geographically effective or powerful vote” as “a significant constitutional interest.”\textsuperscript{16} The Alaska Redistricting Board (“Board”) therefore “cannot intentionally discriminate against a borough or any other ‘politically salient class’ of voters by invidiously minimizing that class’s right to an equally effective vote.”\textsuperscript{17} Whether the Board’s purpose is discriminatory depends on any “proof of a legitimate purpose” or “a substantial relationship between the Board’s means and ends.”\textsuperscript{18} The Court has \textsuperscript{14} Motion to Reject Proclamation Plan at 8.

\textsuperscript{17} In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 44 P.3d 141, 144 (Alaska 2002). The Court cited the concurring opinion in \textit{Karcher v. Daggett} for the notion that a “group of voters must establish that it belongs to [a] ‘politically salient class’ as [the] first element of [a] claim of invidious discrimination.” 462 U.S. 725, 754 (1983) (Stevens, J., concurring).
\textsuperscript{18} \textit{Kenai Peninsula Borough}, 743 P.2d at 1373 n.40.

\textit{In the Matter of the 2021 Redistricting Plan, 3AN-21-08869CI}
\textit{Order re East Anchorage Motion to Reject Amended Proclamation Plan} recognized that one way to “raise an inference of intentional discrimination” is by showing that “a redistricting plan unnecessarily divides a municipality in a way that dilutes the effective strength of municipal voters.”\textsuperscript{19} Such regional gerrymandering can be rebutted by showing that the “intentional discrimination resulted in increased proportionality of geographic representation in the state legislature.”\textsuperscript{20} \textit{In re 2001 Redistricting Cases} also clarifies that this inference extends to any “politically salient class,” not just boroughs and municipalities\textsuperscript{21} Although the Court has previously confronted arguments of “regional partisanship,” \textit{i.e.}, favoring certain geographic communities over others, in the equal protection context, “political partisanship” has not yet been squarely addressed.\textsuperscript{22}

There are multiple ways of proving discriminatory intent. While the easiest may be direct evidence of discriminatory intent,\textsuperscript{23} intent can be shown through circumstantial evidence as well. The Court has previously pointed to the existence of “secretive procedures” and boundaries that “selectively ignore political subdivisions and communities of interest” as indicia of “an illegitimate purpose.”\textsuperscript{24} And in \textit{Village of Arlington Heights v. Metropolitan Housing Development Corp.},\textsuperscript{25} the U.S. Supreme Court detailed several factors that it had previously used when determining the existence of discriminatory intent. These factors include: (1) discriminatory effect;\textsuperscript{26} (2) the historical background, \textit{i.e.}, whether the action is the latest in “a series of official actions taken for invidious purposes”; (3) the preceding sequence of events, \textit{i.e.}, the timing of the action relevant to other events; (4) departures from normal procedures; (5) departures from substantive norms, \textit{i.e.}, whether the factors normally relevant would counsel a different \textsuperscript{19} \textit{In re 2001 Redistricting Cases}, 44 P.3d 141, 144 (Alaska 2002); accord \textit{Kenai Peninsula Borough}, 743 P.2d at 1370-73.

\textsuperscript{20} \textit{Kenai Peninsula Borough}, 743 P.2d at 1372.
\textsuperscript{21} \textit{In re 2001 Redistricting Cases}, 44 P.3d at 144.
\textsuperscript{23} See, \textit{e.g.}, \textit{Kenai Peninsula Borough}, 743 P.2d at 1372 (“A totality of the circumstances assessment of the Board's reapportionment process is unnecessary here because the Board's intent was discriminatory on its face.”).
\textsuperscript{24} \textit{id}.
\textsuperscript{25} 429 U.S. 252 (1977).
\textsuperscript{26} There are also rare cases where “a clear pattern” emerges in the application of an otherwise facially neutral law that is “unexplainable on grounds other than [intentional discrimination],” and thus proof of discriminatory effect alone is sufficient. \textit{id} at 268; see also \textit{Yick Wo v. Hopkins}, 118 U.S. 356 (1886) (laundromat licensing); \textit{Gomillion v. Lightfoot}, 364 U.S. 339 (1960) (redistricting).
conclusion; and (6) legislative history, e.g., "contemporary statements by members of the decisionmaking body." And federal appellate courts have also recognized additional factors: "(6) the foreseeability of the disparate impact; (7) knowledge of that impact, and (8) the availability of less discriminatory alternatives."28

ii. This Court's FFCL and Order and the Effect of the Alaska Supreme Court's Decision on Appeal

Although not explicitly stating as much, this Court previously relied on three of the types of circumstantial evidence described in Arlington Heights to reach its conclusion that the Board acted with discriminatory intent.29 For example, the Board never stated that its intent was to create two solidly Republican senate districts, but Member Marcum's statements on the record strongly support this inference.30 The use of executive sessions and the immediate adoption of senate pairings without discussion on the record likewise evinced departures from the usual procedures.31 And the reasons the Board Members gave to explain the pairings departed greatly from public testimony and from the relatively limited factors that govern senate pairings under the Alaska Constitution.32

Several of this Court's findings, affirmed on appeal, are also relevant here. First, this Court found that both Eagle River and Muldoon constitute distinct "communities of interest."33 Although it was ostensibly part of the first round of litigation, the parties presented no evidence on JBER and this Court never found that JBER was itself a "community of interest." Regardless, JBER is largely self-contained within its own house district, so there is no danger of it being split and paired with other districts in such a way as to dilute its voting strength.34 And although the Alaska Supreme Court affirmed the 29 This Court also applied the Arlington Heights analysis in its decision on the Girdwood challenge, also issued today.

30 Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law and Order at 68-69. Relying on Kenai, this court described such statements as evincing "regional partisanship." [hereinafter FFCL and Order].
31 FFCL and Order at 65-66.
32 FFCL and Order at 70; see also Alaska Const. art. VI, § 6.
33 FFCL and Order at 68.
34 This is particularly telling as Board Members after remand repeatedly referred to JBER as a "community of interest" to justify pairing it with Eagle River. The Board may be estopped from asserting such rationales “determination that the Board’s Senate K pairing of house districts constituted an unconstitutional political gerrymander,” nothing in the order addresses the Court’s reasoning.\textsuperscript{35}

Second, this Court held that “the Board intentionally discriminated against residents of East Anchorage in favor of Eagle River, and this intentional discrimination had an illegitimate purpose.”\textsuperscript{36} This Court described that the Board’s purpose in creating Senate District K was to “give[] Eagle River more representation,”\textsuperscript{37} whereas the dilution of Muldoon was “a down-the-road consequence.”\textsuperscript{38} In other words, this Court never explicitly ruled that Muldoon was an intended target of the Board’s improper purpose, but that any dilution was essentially collateral damage. Again, the Alaska Supreme Court affirmed that Senate District K “viola[t] equal protection under the Alaska Constitution,” but it did not expressly identify the Board’s discriminatory purpose.\textsuperscript{39} The Court cited \textit{Hickel}’s definition of gerrymandering, which in turn quoted the concurrence from \textit{Carpenter v. Hammond}.\textsuperscript{40} That definition states that gerrymandering requires acting “with the purpose of bestowing advantages on some and thus disadvantaging others,” while observing that the intent “to benefit the political party in power” is an improper motive that may be relatively easy to prove.\textsuperscript{41} Although the Board did its utmost to dispel any such negative inference by at least eliminating the appearance of secretive procedures and not holding executive sessions this time, the fact that the Board did so before cannot be ignored.

\begin{scriptsize}
\begin{footnotesize}
\textsuperscript{35} Order, \textit{ITMO 2021 Redistricting Cases}, S-18332, at 6 (Alaska Mar. 25, 2022). Nor did the Court use the term “regional partisanship.” Without the Court’s full opinion, this court is left to an educated guess at what precise “constitutional error” must be fixed on remand.
\textsuperscript{36} FFCL and Order at 70.
\textsuperscript{37} FFCL and Order at 69.
\textsuperscript{38} FFCL and Order at 68.
\textsuperscript{39} Order, \textit{ITMO 2021 Redistricting Cases}, S-18332, at 6 & n.14 (Alaska Mar. 25, 2022) (supporting conclusion that “partisan gerrymandering” is cognizable under the Alaska Constitution).
\textsuperscript{40} See \textit{Hickel} v. Se. Conf., 846 P.2d 38, 45 (Alaska 1992), as \textit{modified on reh’g} (Mar. 12, 1993).
\end{footnotesize}
\end{scriptsize}
iii. The Lingering Effect of Prior Discriminatory Intent

The East Anchorage plaintiffs (and the Girdwood challengers) raise an interesting argument, i.e., that the JBER-Eagle River pairing was the result of a tainted process and thus “fruit of the poisonous tree.” In essence, because this court already found that the Board acted with discriminatory intent by creating Senate District K to give Eagle River more representation, the Board cannot dispel this unconstitutional intent by simply readopting the same JBER-Eagle River pairing with more discussion.

Courts applying the Arlington Heights factors have likewise concluded that subsequent events cannot always remove the effect of prior discriminatory intent. In Hunter v. Underwood, the U.S. Supreme Court confronted a provision of the Alabama Constitution of 1901 that disenfranchised those with convictions for crimes of “moral turpitude.”\(^{42}\) Although the Court reasoned that the language was facially neutral, the challengers provided ample evidence under the Arlington Heights factors that the voting restriction “was enacted with the intent of disenfranchising blacks.”\(^ {43}\) Indeed, the original language of the provision included the crime of “miscegenation,” although later courts had apparently already struck down that crime and others.\(^ {44}\) The State thus argued that despite the obvious discriminatory intent in 1901, “events occurring in the succeeding 80 years had legitimated the provision.”\(^ {45}\) But the Court was not convinced:

Without deciding whether [the constitutional provision] would be valid if enacted today without any impermissible motivation, we simply observe that its original enactment was motivated by a desire to discriminate against blacks on account of race and the section continues to this day to have that effect. As such, it violates equal protection under Arlington Heights.\(^ {46}\)

And more recently, district courts applying Arlington Heights and Hunter have struck down longstanding immigration laws, initially passed in the 1920s and 1950s amid \(^{42}\) 471 U.S. 222, 224 (1985).

\(^{43}\) Id. at 229.
\(^{44}\) Id. at 226, 233.
\(^{45}\) Id. at 233.
\(^{46}\) Id.; cf. Cotton v. Fordice, 157 F.3d 388, 391 n.8 (5th Cir. 1998) (distinguishing Hunter by noting that the Court only discounted “involuntary” pruning of the language by courts as opposed to legislative or voter-approved amendments and reenactments).
widespread, open animus toward immigrants. But, the US Supreme Court has also cautioned against imputing the motivations of prior legislatures to subsequent acts. Abbott v. Perez is particularly relevant as it deals with discriminatory intent in redistricting. This Court has discussed Abbott and its holding on bad intent in more detail in the decision issued today in the Girdwood challenge, so that explanation and discussion is simply incorporated here.

In summary, the Board’s prior discriminatory intent remains a “factor” to be considered alongside all other Arlington Heights factors, but the bad prior intent is not dispositive. East Anchorage, like the Girdwood challengers still ultimately bears the burden of proving that discriminatory intent was a “motivating factor” for the subsequent action.

Returning to the question presented here, this Court found that the Board was motivated by a desire to effectively bolster the voting strength of Eagle River and give it two Senate seats. In light of secretive procedures employed in the first round of redistricting, this Court reasoned that the Board (or at least three members thereof) acted with discriminatory intent. The Alaska Supreme Court then affirmed that Senate District K was a “political gerrymander.” Thus, prior intent that has been held unconstitutional is certainly a factor that must be considered when reviewing the Board’s updated map.

But East Anchorage’s arguments go too far. East Anchorage argues that it has already proven that the Board’s intent was “unlawful,” and thus “there is no requirement” that they must “continue to prove the dilutive and discriminatory effect resulting from the Board’s unconstitutional and discriminatory intent.” Because “the Board’s intent was to dilute the voting power of a geographic group compared to another,” East Anchorage 49 See Vill. of Arlington Heights v. Metro. Hous. Dev. Corp., 429 U.S. 252, 266 (1977) (clarifying that discriminatory intent need not be the “dominant” or “primary” concern, but must be a “motivating factor”).

---

argues that "[t]he only way to cure this illegitimate 'purpose' is to undo its execution." But this position is largely identical to that rejected by the Abbott Court. East Anchorage asks this Court to impute the Board's prior intent to its subsequent acts and shift the burden onto the Board to explain how it "cured" any constitutional infirmities. In effect, East Anchorage is now asking the Court to foreclose any further inquiry. That is simply a step too far. Instead, this Court must evaluate the actions of the Board following remand in light of the entire record. Even a gerrymandering Board is entitled to Due Process and an opportunity to defend its record on remand. Under the circumstances, it would thus be improper to apply the Board's intent from November 2021 as the sole deciding factor when reviewing the Board's subsequent actions.

III. CONCLUSION

Ultimately, this Court does not agree with East Anchorage's premise that this Court's illegitimate purpose finding carries over in a dispositive fashion to any decision made on remand. Therefore, East Anchorage's Motion to Reject Proclamation Plan is DENIED. Yet, plaintiffs are encouraged to review the Court's Order relative to the Girdwood plaintiffs challenge, as the conclusion of that order resolves issues important to East Anchorage's motion here.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED at Anchorage, Alaska this 16th day of May, 2022.

Thomas A. Matthews
Superior Court Judge

50 Motion to Reject Proclamation Plan at 13.
51 Abbott, 138 S. Ct. at 2324 (recognizing a "presumption of legislative good faith" when reviewing redistricting plans); cf. Luper v. City of Wasilla, 215 P.3d 342, 345 (Alaska 2009) (applying "a presumption of validity" to agency decisions); Treacy v. Municipality of Anchorage, 91 P.3d 252, 260 (Alaska 2004) ("A duly enacted law or rule, including a municipal ordinance, is presumed to be constitutional.").
I certify that 5/16/22 a copy of this Order was sent to the following:

A Murfitt
B Fontaine
B Taylor
Ben Farkash
E Houchen
Eva Gardner
Gregory Stein
Heidi Wyckoff
Holly Wells
J Huston
Jake Staser
Kayla Tanner
Laura Gould
Lee Baxter
M Hodsdon
M Nardin

amurfitt@brenalaw.com
bfontaine@hwblaw.com
btaylor@schwabe.com
ben@anchorlaw.com
ehouchen@brenalaw.com
Eva@anchorlaw.com
greg@baldwinandbutler.com
heidi@anchorlaw.com
hwells@bhb.com
jhuston@schwabe.com
jstaser@brenalaw.com
ktanner@schwabe.com
lgould@brenalaw.com
lbaxter@schwabe.com
mhodsdon@brenalaw.com mnardin@brenalaw.com

Mara Micheletz
Matthew Singer
Michael Schechter
Nathaniel Amdur-Clark
P Crowe
Robin Brena
S Nichols
Sarah Clinton
Stacey Stone
T Hardwick
T Marshall
Thomas Flynn
Whitney Leonard
William Falsey

mmicheletz@bhb.com
msinger@schwabe.com
mike@anchorlaw.com
NCLARK@SONOSKY.COM
pcrowe@bhb.com
rbrena@brenalaw.com
snichols@hwblaw.com
sarahrenanchorlaw.com sstone@hwblaw.com
thardwick@hwblaw.com
tmarshall@bhb.com
thomas.flynn@alaska.gov whitney@sonosky.net
wfalsey@bhb.com

Judicial Assistant
IN THE SUPERIOR COURT FOR THE STATE OF ALASKA
THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT AT ANCHORAGE

In the Matter of the 2021 REDISTRICTING PLAN. Case No. 3AN-21-08869CI

ORDER RE GIRDWOOD CHALLENGE TO AMENDED PLAN

This is the second time this year that this Court has been called upon to determine whether the Alaska Redistricting Board fulfilled its constitutional responsibility in drawing the Senate map for Anchorage voters. After this Court found the Board failed in its first attempt, the Alaska Supreme Court confirmed the board had engaged in partisan gerrymandering. Following remand to the Board, a new map was drawn. This time, the process occurred mostly in public. But the Amended Plan still provides Eagle River with effective control of two senate seats. Girdwood Plaintiffs have challenged the map claiming it still amounts to a partisan gerrymander. This Court agrees.

At the outset, it is worth restating the fundamental goal of redistricting and legislative reapportionment: to ensure that all citizens of the state have a fair and equal opportunity to choose their elected representatives. The right to vote is one of the essential rights guaranteed by both the U.S. and Alaska Constitutions, and is essential to the principal of our democratic government. In the process of redistricting, the Board is required to produce a plan and draw a map which fairly divides Alaska into legislative seats using criteria set forth in the Alaska Constitution. In doing so, the Board must avoid partisan gerrymandering and adhere to the principles of equal protection. “There are two basic principles of equal protection when it comes to voting rights, namely that of ‘one person, one vote’—the right to an equally weighted vote—and of ‘fair and effective representation’—the right to group effectiveness or an equally powerful vote."¹

This litigation has centered on this fundamental constitutional right. Having once again considered the record as a whole, this Court is left with the firm conviction that the Board’s 2022 Amended Proclamation Plan of Redistricting violates the equal protection rights of the Girdwood plaintiffs and should not be implemented.

I. BACKGROUND AND HISTORY OF THE BOARD’S WORK

A. The 2021 Proclamation

On November 10, 2021, the Board adopted its 2021 Final Redistricting Plan and Proclamation ("2021 Redistricting Plan").\(^2\) As it relates to the present challenge, the November 10 Redistricting Plan contained Senate District L, consisting of the pairing of the house districts encompassing Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson ("JBER") with Eklutna/Chugiak/North Eagle River, and Senate District K, which paired the Eagle River Valley (South Eagle River) house district with the East Anchorage house district.

B. The Litigation

Multiple legal challenges were filed against the 2021 Redistricting Plan,\(^3\) and after a trial on those challenges, on February 15, 2022, this Court issued its Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law. As it relates to these proceedings, the Court concluded that Senate District K was invalid as a result of partisan gerrymandering.\(^4\)

This Court provided an extensive discussion of the Board’s work leading to the 2021 Proclamation in its initial decision. The following discussion provides context for the analysis which follows. As the Court has considered the entire record of these proceedings in addressing the Girdwood challenge, the Court’s previous Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law are incorporated by Reference.\(^5\)

---

\(^2\) Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, at 21 (Feb. 15, 2022) ("FFCL").

\(^3\) FFCL at Appendix D.

\(^4\) FFCL at 169-70.

\(^5\) This decision incorporates and builds upon the Court’s FFCL, with respect to all parts except the limited portions of the rulings on House Districts 3, 4, and 36 that were reversed by the Alaska Supreme Court in
As a brief overview of the context in which this challenge was brought, on February 15, 2022, this Court ruled that the Redistricting Board—the entity charged under the Alaska Constitution with making fair, equitable, representative legislative maps for the State of Alaska—had engaged in partisan gerrymandering in violation of the Constitution’s Equal Protection Clause. Specifically, the Court determined the Board had impermissibly divided the two Eagle River house districts to increase Eagle River’s Senate representation and dilute the vote in East Anchorage for partisan political reasons. While the Court upheld the vast majority of the Board’s work, particularly with respect to redistricting of the 40 House districts, the Court noted the “substantial evidence of secretive procedures, regional partisanship, and selective ignorance of political subdivisions and communities of interest” on a component of the senate map: the favorable treatment of the Eagle River districts to the detriment of East Anchorage. It remanded the Anchorage Senate Pairings to the Board “to craft a pairing that complies with Alaska’s Equal Protection Clause.”

C. Alaska Supreme Court Review

Following expedited review by the Alaska Supreme Court, this Court’s conclusion “that the Board’s Senate K pairing of house districts constituted an unconstitutional political gerrymander violating equal protection under the Alaska Constitution” was upheld by the Alaska Supreme Court. The matter was then remanded to this Court for further action.

D. Remand to the Board

On March 30, 2022, this Court remanded the matter to the Board with instructions:

Its March 25, 2022 Order.
6 FFCL at 73.
7 FFCL at 69-70.
8 FFCL at 70.
9 FFCL at 73.
10 ITMO 2021 Redistricting Cases, S-18332 Order at 6 (March 25, 2022).
1) To correct the Constitutional errors identified by this Court and the Supreme court in Senate District K; 2) To redraw House District 36 to remove the “Cantwell Appendage”, and 3) To make other revisions to the proclamation plan resulting or related to these changes.

This Court retained jurisdiction to address any further issues arising from the Board’s corrections or related issues in a timely manner and directed the Board to submit a status update by April 15, 2022.

II. THE BOARD’S WORK FOLLOWING REMAND

As explained in further detail below, upon remand, the Board adopted a more public process and took extensive public testimony on two map options. Ultimately, the Board (by a the same 3:2 majority) members adopted the plan option which once again provides Eagle River control of two senate seats. This time, the Board paired one Eagle River district (District 10) with the district of South Anchorage/Girdwood/Turnagain Arm (District 9) to create Senate District E, instead of pairing it with East Anchorage. The Board also paired North Eagle River/Chugiak (District 24) with JBER/downtown Anchorage/Government Hill (District 23) to once again create Senate District L.

On April 2, 2022, the Board met and reviewed the Alaska Supreme Court’s decision and this Court’s remand order. The Board also took public testimony at this April 2 meeting. Much of the testimony favored quickly adopting senate pairings that complied with the remand order, pairing the Muldoon house districts together and the Eagle River house districts together. The Board’s attorney provided a litigation summary, stating in relevant part that the Court ordered the Board to “address the constitutional deficiency in Senate District K (Eagle River Valley and South Muldoon) . . . recognizing that those changes will impact — they’ll have some ripple effects.” The Board’s counsel proposed a process that would involve inviting

---

11 ARB2000076 (April 2 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000084-000177 (April 2 Meeting Transcript).
12 ARB2000076 (April 2 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000084-000177 (April 2 Meeting Transcript).
13 ARB2000153.
the public to offer solutions to the unconstitutional Senate District K, offer feedback on proposed solutions, and then the Board would adopt a final plan.\textsuperscript{14}

On April 4, the Board met to discuss and adopt the process by which it would take public testimony and adopt revisions to the 2021 Redistricting Plan that complied with the courts’ orders.\textsuperscript{15} The Board adopted a procedure to address the discrete Cantwell issue that had been remanded and resolve it at the meeting on Wednesday, April 6.\textsuperscript{16} The Board then discussed options for senate pairings, including the pairings previously proposed by Member Bahnke.\textsuperscript{17} It then took public testimony, much of which largely favored the “Bahnke map.”\textsuperscript{18} Other members of the public were opposed to both the pace of the process, and the substance of the Bahnke map. One witness who called and wrote comments several times argued the Bahnke map had been “secretly orchestrated” and amounted to partisan gerrymandering because of the “one-sided testimony” the previous day.\textsuperscript{19} Similar sentiments were expressed by Assembly Member Jaime Allard. Member Allard also urged the board to “slow the process down” to allow time for additional plans to be developed and for additional public input.\textsuperscript{20}

On April 5, 2022, the Board took additional public testimony.\textsuperscript{21} The majority of the testimony related to senate pairings and favored the “Bahnke map.”\textsuperscript{22} Toward the end of the meeting, the Board discussed specific senate pairing proposals—to include Member Bahnke’s proposal, a proposal by the East Anchorage Plaintiffs, and a proposal by Randy Ruedrich.\textsuperscript{23} The Board established a schedule for hearings to

\textsuperscript{14} ARB2000153-54.
\textsuperscript{15} ARB2000077 (April 4 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000178-000284 (April 4 Meeting Transcript).
\textsuperscript{16} ARB2000214, ARB2000222.
\textsuperscript{17} ARB2000247-50.
\textsuperscript{18} ARB2000261-66.
\textsuperscript{19} ARB2000258-259.
\textsuperscript{20} ARB2000259-261.
\textsuperscript{21} ARB2000287, ARB2000291.
\textsuperscript{22} ARB2000292-384.
\textsuperscript{23} ARB2000408-13. receive public comment on senate pairings before making its decision, and adjourned for the day.24

On April 6, the Board again met and took public testimony on changes to House Districts 29, 30, and 36 to fix the “Cantwell Appendage.”25 The Board also discussed different Anchorage senate pairings proposals.26 Randy Ruedrich of Alaskans for Fair and Equitable Redistricting (“AFFER”) testified and offered his proposed plan, which would pair Eagle River Valley with South Anchorage/Girdwood/Turnagain Arm, and North Eagle River with North Anchorage/Government Hill/JBER.27 Member Marcum also noted that she had independently developed the same pairing plan that Mr.
Ruedrich was then proposing.28

The Board originally planned to adopt three proposed plans to pair the 16 house districts within the Municipality of Anchorage and Whittier into 8 senate districts:
“Option 1,” “Option 2,” and “Option 3B.”29 But, after considering that Option 1 broadly re-paired senate districts in Anchorage unrelated to and not resulting from fixing Senate District K, the Board voted to withdraw Option 1 from its consideration.30

This left the Board considering Option 2 and Option 3B as the Board’s proposed plans for Anchorage senate pairings.31 Both proposed plans resulted in four new senate districts stemming from the revision to Senate District K, but the plans differed

---

24 ARB2000413-17.
25 ARB2000079 (April 6 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000446-000599 (April 6 Meeting Transcript). All Board members supported the solution except Chair Binkley, who expressed that he “disagreed with [the Alaska Supreme Court’s order],” and therefore he could not support removing Cantwell from District 36.
ARB2000455, ARB2000460.
26 ARB2000079 (April 6 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000446-000599 (April 6 Meeting Minutes).
27 ARB2000461-68
28 ARB2000470.
29 ARB2000533 (April 6 Meeting Transcript).
30 ARB2000559-ARB2000560 (April 6 Meeting Transcript).
31 ARB2000559-ARB2000560 (April 6 Meeting Transcript) (Chairman Binkley: “If there’s no objection to the motion, the motion is adopted, and we now have before us two plans, option 2 and option 3 bravo.”).
in composition. Both proposed plans also resolved the problems with Senate District K in the same manner by pairing North and South Muldoon into a senate district.

Option 2 proposed four new Senate districts, comprised of: (1) JBER/Downtown district, pairing House Districts 23 and 19; (2) an Eklutna/Eagle River/Chugiak district, pairing House Districts 10 and 24; (3) Mountain View/U-Med district, pairing House Districts 20 and 18; and (4) Senate District K, pairing North Muldoon and South Muldoon.

Option 3B’s four new Senate districts that differed from the previous 2021 Redistricting Plan were: (1) Senate District K, pairing House Districts 21 and 22 (North Muldoon and South Muldoon); (2) Senate District E, pairing House Districts 9 (South Eagle River) with and House District 10 (South Anchorage/Girdwood/Whittier); (3) Senate District F, pairing House Districts 11 and 12 (Abbott Loop/Elmore with O’Malley); and (4) Senate District G, pairing House Districts 10 and 13 (Oceanview and Taku).

On April 7, 8, and 9, the Board met and took additional public testimony on Options 2 and 3B. Neither option garnered total support of all the public. There was public testimony in favor of and against both proposals.

The Board also received written testimony from the public. Again, numerically, the majority of the substantive comments favored Option 2, as it preserved the Eagle River community of interest within a single senate district, while maintaining other pairings that preserved downtown communities and the logical connection between South Anchorage, Girdwood, and Turnagain Arm.

---

32 ARB20001828 (ARB Website Showing Options 2 and 3B).
33 ARB20001828 (ARB Website Showing Options 2 and 3B).
34 ARB2000080 (April 7 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000600-000696 (April 7 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000081 (April 8 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000697-000813 (April 8 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000082 (April 9 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000814-000946 (April 9 Meeting Transcript).
35 See generally ARB2001094-001226.

In the Matter of the 2021 Redistricting Plan; 3AN-21-08869CI
Order re Girdwood Challenge to Amended Plan
Community groups, including local community councils, and the Anchorage Assembly weighed in to support a preferred alternative. Each of the identified groups favored Option 3B, although Mayor Bronson vetoed the Anchorage Assembly resolution.\textsuperscript{36} Assembly Member Christopher Constant, who had chaired the MOA reapportionment process, submitted a letter to the Board explaining the process.\textsuperscript{37} His letter explained that MOA had considered an option that would pair Eagle River with a South Anchorage neighborhood, and that it had been a “lightning rod” for overwhelming opposition.\textsuperscript{38}

Other public testimony and comments emphasized the connection between Eagle River and JBER, or raised concerns of diminishing the military/JBER vote if JBER was paired with downtown. Still other testimony emphasized similarities between Eagle River and the Girdwood area as “rural” communities.

On April 13, the Board met and discussed the competing proposals for Anchorage senate pairings.\textsuperscript{39} Each member stated their rationale for their vote on the record.\textsuperscript{40} The deliberations were sometimes heated. Members Bahnke and Borromeo vigorously urged the Board to “do its duty” on remand and not perpetuate its gerrymander by continuing to split Eagle River to increase its representation.\textsuperscript{41}

\begin{footnotesize}
\begin{itemize}
\item[36] The Mayor’s veto was overridden by the Assembly the next day. See Exhibit 5.
\item[37] ARB2001391-1481.
\item[38] According to Assembly Member Constant, “One of the maps drafted by the contractors and an additional map submitted by a member of the public paired Chugiak Eagle River with Hillside in South Anchorage. That pairing was a lightning rod causing scores and scores of comments in opposition from the public. The comments came in through all channels. Phone calls to members, emails through our regular email system. Comments posted to the portal, and substantial in person testimony in opposition. The opposition was overwhelming that the pairing of Eagle River and Hillside is inappropriate and shouldn’t be promulgated.” ARB2001392. Assembly Member Constant included with his letter extensive documentation of comments the Assembly had received on the Eagle River issue. ARB2001391-1481. ARB2000083 (April 13 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000947-001083 (April 13 Meeting Transcript).
\item[39] See ARB2000954-000960 (Member Bahnke); ARB2000962-000974 (Member Simpson); ARB2000975-000980 (Member Borromeo); ARB2000980-000981 (Member Marcum); ARB2000981-000991 (Member Binkley).
\item[40] ARB2000959-60. ARB2000975-80.
\end{itemize}
\end{footnotesize}
On the other hand, members Marcum and Simpson emphasized the need to keep the military on JBER with Chugiak/Eagle River. Member Simpson described JBER as its own community of interest.\textsuperscript{43} He also noted there was "nothing wrong with pairing 9 [South Anchorage/Turnagain Arm] and 22 [Eagle River Valley] . . . they are contiguous."\textsuperscript{44} Member Marcum noted she was very uncomfortable with Option 2 because it would uncouple JBER from Eagle River and link it with downtown.\textsuperscript{45}

The Board voted to adopt proposed plan "Option 3B" as its new Anchorage senate pairings.\textsuperscript{45} Members Binkley, Marcum and Simpson voted in favor of Option 3B, and Members Bahnke and Borromeo voted against it.\textsuperscript{46} The Board issued its Amended Proclamation of Redistricting the same day it voted, April 13 ("April 2022 Amended Redistricting Plan"). Unlike the November 2021 cycle, during its meetings to adopt the April 2022 Amended Redistricting Plan—between April 2 and April 13, 2022—the Board did not engage in executive sessions.\textsuperscript{47}

\textbf{III. THE GIRDWOOD CHALLENGE}

On April 25, 2022, Plaintiffs Louis Theiss, Ken Waugh, and Jennifer Wingard (collectively the "Girdwood Plaintiffs") filed a complaint challenging Senate District E, which is comprised of House Districts 9 and 10. The three Girdwood plaintiffs live in Girdwood, Alaska, in House District 9.

The Girdwood Plaintiffs assert that Senate District E in the April 2022 Amended Redistricting Plan violates their equal protection rights under the Alaska Constitution by denying them "an equally powerful and geographically effective vote and ignor[ing] the demographic, economic, political and geographic differences between the Eagle River and Girdwood communities. The Girdwood Plaintiffs also allege that "[t]he Board's creation of two separate Eagle River Senate districts constitutes unlawful political gerrymandering." Lastly, they claim that Senate District E violates the substantive criteria for senate districts in Alaska because it is non-compact, is "falsely contiguous," and ignores geographic features. The Girdwood Plaintiffs ask this Court to compel the Board to adopt Option 2, which pairs House District 9 with House District 13 (Oceanview), and JBER (House District 23) with Downtown (House District 17).

IV. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

Under Article VI, § 11 of the Alaska Constitution, the superior court has original jurisdiction over lawsuits to compel correction of any error in redistricting. "Any qualified voter may apply to the superior court to compel the Redistricting Board, by mandamus or otherwise, to perform its duties under this article or to correct any error in redistricting." Venue is appropriate under Civil Rules 3 and 90.8(f).

V. PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

The Girdwood Plaintiffs' challenge is timely under Article VI, §11 of the Alaska Constitution. In an effort to resolve this challenge prior to the impending June 1, 2022 filing deadline for legislative candidates, the parties stipulated to submit the case in writing (rather than by trial) on an expedited timeframe. The Board provided the record from its remand proceedings on April 28, additional supplementation of e-mail and text messages on May 2. Opening briefs were submitted on May 6, Opposition briefs were due May 10, with proposed findings due May 11. The Court held oral argument on May 12. The parties also submitted supplemental Corrections and Affidavits on May 13, 2022.

VI. THE RECORD BEFORE THE COURT

Pursuant to Civil Rule 90.8, the record before this court included the record from the Redistricting Board. In this case, the record includes the full court record from the first round of this litigation, the record from the Board’s remand process as filed on April 28 and supplemented on May 2, and all materials submitted by the parties to the Girdwood Challenge.54

The Girdwood Plaintiffs supported their written arguments with affidavit testimony from each Plaintiff, two expert reports from Dr. Chase Hensel,55 references to the Board record, e-mails and text messages from Board members that were provided by the Board, and a limited number of additional exhibits. Similarly, the Board supported its written arguments with citations to the record, and affidavits from Peter Torkelson, the Board’s Executive Director.

VII. STANDARD OF REVIEW

A. The General Standard

The Board’s actions are, generally, reviewed under a deferential arbitrary and capricious standard.56 The Court may not substitute its judgment for that of the Board or choose among constitutional alternative plans. The wisdom or “sagacity” of a particular plan is not subject to review, so long as it is otherwise constitutional.57

---

54 Once again, because of the accelerated timetable for this latest challenge, the parties had no time to conduct discovery. This Court has accepted all materials submitted by the parties, regardless of timing, and has reviewed them under a somewhat relaxed standard of evidence, as it did in the first round of the litigation. The Court has considered the materials for their relevance to the issues presented and given them the weight they were due under the totality of the circumstances.
55 Chase Hensel previously served as the expert for the East Anchorage Plaintiffs, and his prior testimony is part of the record in this case.
However, the Court applies its independent judgment to questions of law, and must adopt the rule of law that is most persuasive in light of precedent, reason, and policy.\textsuperscript{58}

\textbf{B. The Burden of Proof on Remand}

Girdwood argues for a less deferential standard of review in light of the Court’s previous finding that the Board engaged in partisan gerrymandering. The Board takes the position that the deferential “arbitrary and capricious” standard continues to apply, while the Girdwood Plaintiffs argue that the Board does not deserve such deference in light of its proven history of illegitimate purpose. This appears to be an issue of first impression in Alaska.\textsuperscript{59}

In this case, Girdwood Plaintiffs in their Complaint ask this court to impute the Board’s prior bad intent to its subsequent acts and shift the burden onto the Board to explain how it “cured” any constitutional infirmities. While such a shift in the burden of proof might, as a matter of policy, be appropriate, it is not one this Court is prepared to adopt at this stage of these very accelerated proceedings. Instead, that is a question for the Alaska Supreme Court to decide.

This court must generally begin with the presumption that the Board’s actions were valid.\textsuperscript{60} That presumption was certainly afforded to the Board during the initial phase of this litigation. But the Court’s previous finding that the Board engaged in partisan gerrymandering changes the equation. The Court does not simply turn a blind eye to the Board’s past transgressions. In a less accelerated proceeding, where both parties knew in advance that the burden of proof would shift to the Board upon the Court’s finding of partisan gerrymandering, such a shift seems entirely fair. Stated \textsuperscript{58} Wielechowski v. State, 403 P.3d 1141, 1146 (Alaska 2017) (internal quotation marks omitted) (quoting State v. Ketchikan Gateway Borough, 366 P.3d 86, 90 (Alaska 2016)).

\textsuperscript{59} Cf. Abbott v. Perez, 138 S. Ct. 2305, 2324-25 (2018) (balancing the “presumption of legislative good faith” against prior findings of discriminatory intent in federal review of redistricting plans, while directing courts to consider prior intent as one factor).

\textsuperscript{60} Abbott, 138 S. Ct. at 2324 (recognizing a "presumption of legislative good faith" when reviewing redistricting plans); cf. Luper v. City of Wasilla, 215 P.3d 342, 345 (Alaska 2009) (applying "a presumption of validity" to agency decisions); Treacy v. Municipality of Anchorage, 91 P.3d 252, 260 (Alaska 2004) ("A duly enacted law or rule, including a municipal ordinance, is presumed to be constitutional."). differently, should the Board’s actions on remand be subject to strict scrutiny rather than an arbitrary and capricious standard?

In Treacy v Municipality of Anchorage, the Alaska Supreme discussed the different level of scrutiny that applies to the equal protection analysis where the constitutionality of a statute or ordinance is challenged.\(^{61}\) After first noting that a duly enacted law or ordinance is presumed to be constitutional.\(^{62}\) But when a challenge is made that the ordinance violates the constitutional guarantee of equal protection, it may be subject to strict scrutiny if it impinges on a fundamental right or disadvantages a suspect class.\(^{63}\)

The constitutional analysis outlined in Treacy provides guidance to this Court in evaluating whether the Board’s actions should be subject to a different standard or burden of proof upon remand after a finding of gerrymandering. This Court would shift the burden to the Board to demonstrate that its Amended Proclamation including the new senate pairings were made in good faith and without partisan considerations. But that standard and shift in the burden of proof will not be applied retroactively to this matter. Assuming further review of this Court’s decision by the Alaska Supreme Court, the undersigned encourages the Supreme Court to provide guidance for the future.

While this Court is not changing the standard of review or the burden of proof for this challenge, the Court is also not ignoring the Board’s past actions. Instead, the Court considers the Board’s actions in the context of the record as a whole.

VIII. THE GIRDWOOD CHALLENGE UNDER ARTICLE VI, SECTION SIX

Count I of the Girdwood Plaintiffs’ Complaint alleges the Board violated the redistricting criteria in Article VI, § 6 of the Alaska Constitution. They argue the pairing

\(^{61}\) 91 P.3d 252 (Alaska 2004).
\(^{62}\) Treacy, 91 P.3d at 260.
\(^{63}\) Treacy, 91 P.3d at 264.
of Districts 9 and 10 into Senate District E violates the Constitution's contiguity requirement and disregards local government boundaries without explanation.

The Alaska Constitution provides that "[e]ach senate district shall be composed as near as practicable of two contiguous house districts," and that "consideration may be given to local government boundaries."\(^{64}\) Contiguous territory "is territory which is bordering or touching."\(^{65}\) A district is contiguous "if every part of the district is reachable from every other part without crossing the district boundary (i.e., the district is not divided into two or more discrete pieces)."\(^{66}\) As such, contiguity is a visual concept.\(^{67}\) In practice, a district that includes transportation barriers such as mountains or waterways physically separating portions of the district may still be considered contiguous.\(^{68}\)

The Girdwood Plaintiffs acknowledge that Senate District E is "technically" contiguous,\(^{69}\) but they argue for a more "qualitative" approach. The Girdwood Plaintiffs do not dispute that House Districts 9 and 10 are connected by a miles long border and are in fact physically touching. Instead, they argue that contiguity should also be meaningful from the perspective of representation. The Girdwood Plaintiffs argue that a different approach is appropriate here because the pairing of 9 and 10 is so egregious that it is contiguous in only the most technical of terms. Because several hundred miles of uninhabited state park, including the Chugach Mountains, divide the actual population centers contained in Senate District E, the Girdwood Plaintiffs argue the Board created a "false contiguity."

Much of the Girdwood argument for a more qualitative approach to "contiguity" in the senate pairings is similar to arguments raised in the previous challenges by Valdez and Mat-Su to the House pairings, and by East Anchorage to \(^{64}\) Alaska Const. art. VI, § 6.

\(^{66}\) Id.
\(^{68}\) FFCL, at 74-75 ("This Court agrees with Judge Rindner's analysis.").
\(^{69}\) Girdwood Opening Br. at 20.
the senate pairings of District K. This court rejected those arguments previously, and declines to expand the concept of contiguity here.

This Court rejected the "transportation contiguity" argument asserted by the Matanuska-Susitna Borough and Valdez plaintiffs in the first round of redistricting litigation over House District 29: "The fact that the road connection between Mat-Su and Valdez meanders in and out of two districts as it traverses around the Chugach mountains does not take away from the fact that every part of the district is physically connected. District 29 is contiguous."\textsuperscript{70} The Alaska Supreme Court found no error when it affirmed this Court's rejection of a transportation contiguity requirement.\textsuperscript{71}

Similarly, this Court rejected the Girdwood Plaintiffs' argument that contiguity must be maximized "as near as practicable," when asserted in the East Anchorage Plaintiffs' challenge to Senate District K (from the 2021 Redistricting Plan). There, the East Anchorage Plaintiffs argued that Senate District K was not truly contiguous or contiguous "as nearly as practicable" because "one cannot travel between [the house districts] without leaving the Senate district and [the house districts] are separated by a mountain range."\textsuperscript{72} East Anchorage also urged "that South Muldoon and Eagle River Valley are located in separate drainages, and are even separated by a drainage."\textsuperscript{73} This Court rejected that argument because the "boundaries [of Senate District K] are in fact physically touching [and] no more is required."\textsuperscript{74}

The Girdwood Plaintiffs acknowledge this Court's prior determinations regarding contiguity, but nevertheless argue their theory is new and different. They support their argument with an expert report from Dr. Chase Hensel. In his report, Dr. Hensel offers the opinion that the "as near as practicable" language in the Constitution applied in two directions: first, to the Board, to give it some flexibility in making its pairings; but second, to the districts themselves, because the underlying purpose of \textsuperscript{70} FFCL at 74-75.

\textsuperscript{71} Order on Petitions for Review, S-18332, at 3.
\textsuperscript{72} FFCL at 39.
\textsuperscript{73} FFCL at 41.
\textsuperscript{74} FFCL at 42.
the contiguity requirement is to pair neighboring communities with themselves, to achieve compact and effective representation. As Dr. Hensel wrote, "Implicit in the requirement for contiguity as a pairing criterion is also an assumption that political representation is facilitated by the proximity – as near as practicable – of the populations sharing representation ... The practicability clause in this respect is not a loophole but an exhortation." ⁷⁵

Dr. Hensel’s testimony regarding “practical contiguity” in his expert report amounts to a legal conclusion about what Dr. Hensel believes Article VI, § 6 should require for senate districts. But such legal opinions are not the proper subject of expert testimony. Interpretation of the constitution is the “distinct and exclusive province of [this] court.” ⁷⁶

Moreover, the concept of practical contiguity advocated by Dr. Hensel ignores the language of Section 6 imposing different limitations on house and senate districts. If Dr. Hensel’s concept of representational contiguity were adopted, it would add an additional overlay of socio-economic integration to the evaluation of senate districts. Had the framers of the Constitution intended such a result, they surely would not have provided for different standards. ⁷⁷

To be sure, when the Board chose to pair Districts 9 and 10, it created a senate district with unusual obstacles to practical contiguity that reveal a lack of compactness, in essence a “bizarre design.” Several hundred miles of uninhabited state park, including the Chugach Mountains, divide the actual population centers contained in

---

⁷⁵ Hensel Report at 2.
⁷⁶ Nationwide Transport Finance v. Cass Information Systems, Inc., 523 F.3d 1051, 1058 (9th Cir. 2008) (quoting Hangarter v. Provident Life & Accident Ins. Co., 373 F.3d 998, 1016 (9th Cir. 2004)); see also Berkeley Inv. Grp. Ltd. v. Colkitt, 455 F.3d 195, 217 (3d Cir. 2006) (“Although Federal Rule of Evidence 704 permits an expert witness to give expert testimony that ‘embraces an ultimate issue to be decided by the trier of fact,’ an expert witness is prohibited from rendering a legal opinion.”).
⁷⁷ This Court previously noted the constitutional framers intended Senate districts to use geographic criterion rather than the socio-economic integration requirements set forth in Article VI, Section 6. FFCL at p40, citing Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State, 743 P.2d 1352, 1365 (Alaska 1987).
Senate District E. The contiguous borders of the two house districts are almost entirely based in the Chugach Mountains.

Nonetheless, nothing in Section 6 requires maximum contiguity. A senate district that is comprised of two house districts that share a border fulfills the contiguity requirement. Senate District E does not violate Article VI, § 6.

IX. EQUAL PROTECTION CHALLENGES

Count II of the Girdwood Plaintiffs’ Complaint alleges Equal Protection violations of the Alaska Constitution. In particular, they allege that Senate District E in the 2022 Proclamation denies Girdwood voters and others in their House district their constitutional right to an equally powerful and geographically effective vote and ignores relevant differences between the Eagle River and Girdwood communities. The Girdwood Plaintiffs also allege the Board’s creation of two separate Eagle River Senate districts, including Senate District L, constitutes unlawful political gerrymandering.

A. Article VI, Section 11 Timeliness of Redistricting Challenge to Senate District L

The Board first argues that Girdwood’s challenge to Senate District L is untimely. Article VI, Section 11 provides time limitations on redistricting challenges:

Any qualified voter may apply to the superior court to compel the Redistricting Board, by mandamus or otherwise, to perform its duties under this article or to correct any error in redistricting. . . . Application to compel correction of any error in redistricting must be filed within thirty days following the adoption of the final redistricting plan and proclamation by the board.

---

78 Compl. at 9, ¶ 30.
79 Compl. at 9, 1.
80 Alaska Const. art. VI, § 11.
According to the Board, since Senate District L was unchanged from the initial 2021 Proclamation to the 2022 Amended Proclamation, the Girdwood Plaintiffs’ claim comes too late.

A similar claim was made in the 2001 Redistricting litigation. After remanding the 2001 redistricting plan back to the Board to fix excessive population deviations under Section 6,\(^{61}\) challengers appealed again, raising several arguments pertaining to district and statewide population deviations that “could have been raised against the original Proclamation Plan but were not.”\(^{62}\) Applying the 30-day deadline in Section 11, the Alaska Supreme Court rejected as untimely alleged errors “that were largely carried over from the [original] Proclamation Plan.”\(^{63}\) The Court likewise rejected untimely Section 6 challenges to the compactness of two house districts “even though [the challenged] appendage existed in the board’s original Proclamation Plan.”\(^{64}\)

Here, the Board notes that new Senate District L contains the same underlying house districts as the former Senate District L, i.e., JBER and North Eagle River.\(^{65}\) Because Girdwood did not challenge former Senate District L within 30 days of the November 2021 redistricting plan, the Board argues that any challenge to the new Senate District L—consisting of the same underlying house districts—is untimely.\(^{66}\) The Board thus asserts that Girdwood is foreclosed from arguing that splitting Eagle River constitutes a political gerrymander.\(^{67}\)

---

\(^{61}\) See In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 44 P.3d 141, 145-46 (Alaska 2002); Alaska Const. art. VI, § 6 (requiring house districts to “contain a population as near as practicable to the quotient obtained by dividing the population of the state by forty”).

\(^{62}\) In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 47 P.3d 1089, 1090 & n.5 (Alaska 2002).

\(^{63}\) Id. at 1090 n.5.

\(^{64}\) Id. 1091-92 & n.16.

\(^{65}\) Alaska Redistricting Board’s Proposed Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law (“Board FFCL”) at 4, 13.

\(^{66}\) Board FFCL at 12-14. The Board also argues that because the original plan split Eagle River into two senate districts, and “the Alaska Supreme Court has already approved the splitting of Eagle River-Chugak into multiple election districts,” Girdwood’s Section 6 arguments are time-barred. Board FFCL at 13-14.

\(^{67}\) Board FFCL 13.
Girdwood responds by quoting the precise language of this court’s prior findings identifying the constitutional error affirmed on appeal.\textsuperscript{88} Girdwood thus argues that the new Senate District E—which the Board does not argue is time-barred—is an “unconstitutional downstream consequence of the exact same political gerrymander” that created former Senate District K.\textsuperscript{89} Girdwood also points to the Board’s actions after remand as evidence that the Board created a new record and made a new decision to split Eagle River despite this court’s finding that the Board had previously acted with illegitimate purpose.\textsuperscript{90}

Although the Board is correct that any Section 6 challenges to the JBER-Eagle River pairing could have been brought before and are time-barred under Section 11, the Board misinterprets Girdwood’s equal protection challenge. Instead, what Girdwood argues is the Board acted with discriminatory intent when it first split Eagle River into two senatorial districts, that this court and the Supreme Court found such purpose to be illegitimate, and that on remand the Board was charged with fixing the constitutional errors in Senate District K.\textsuperscript{91} The “constitutional errors” established in East Anchorage’s equal protection challenge consisted of the Board’s “intentional discrimination” and any “down-the-road consequences” of the Board’s “illegitimate purpose.”\textsuperscript{92} In other words, what Girdwood primarily challenges is the lingering effect of the Board’s prior discriminatory intent.

In the Court’s view, this situation is more akin to what occurred in the 2011 challenges. After the Alaska Supreme Court remanded for the Board to comply with the \textit{Hickel} process,\textsuperscript{93} the Board reasoned that it need not revisit districts that were previously unchallenged.\textsuperscript{94} The Board thus redrew the district lines only for a portion \begin{footnotes}

\item[88] Girdwood Plaintiff’s Proposed Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law (“Girdwood FFCL” at 18.
\item[89] Girdwood FFCL at 18 (emphasis in original).
\item[90] Girdwood FFCL at 19.
\item[92] FFCL and Order at 69-70 (Feb. 15, 2022);
\item[93] See \textit{In re 2011 Redistricting Cases}, 274 P.3d 466, 467-68 (Alaska 2012). In particular, the Court held that the Board improperly elevated VRA compliance over the “traditional redistricting principles” contained in Section 6. \textit{Id.} at 468.
\item[94] \textit{In re 2011 Redistricting Cases}, 294 P.3d 1032, 1035 (Alaska 2012).
\end{footnotes}
of the map, assuming that the unchallenged districts were not affected by the Board’s prior constitutional error. But on appeal, the Court remanded again, explaining that the Board’s initial error, i.e., creating VRA districts first and placing VRA considerations above Section 6 criteria, “necessarily affected the contours of the entire map.” That certain districts were unchallenged “does not change the fact that they were drawn with VRA considerations as the first priority,” and therefore the only way to fix the constitutional error was to start the process over from the beginning.

Here, the constitutional errors occurred much later in the process, and the scope on remand is accordingly narrower. But the error remains that the Board, for inappropriate purposes, sought to give Eagle River more representation. Girdwood thus argues that the error has not been fixed as the Board continues to split Eagle River for improper purposes. Girdwood could not have brought this challenge against Senate District L in November 2021, because at that point Girdwood was not paired with South Eagle River, and no court had yet found that the Board acted with discriminatory intent. That intent has since been established, and the Alaska Supreme Court affirmed this court’s ruling. Girdwood’s challenge is thus that the prior unconstitutional intent persists, and that the Board failed to actually “fix” anything. Regardless of the theory, the Board cannot escape a challenge to new Senate District L based on the Board’s motivations for adopting Option 3B and rejecting Option 2. Unlike the various Section 6 challenges that were untimely in the 2001 challenges, Girdwood’s equal protection challenge depends on the Board’s previously established discriminatory intent. Because Girdwood could not have raised its equal protection

---

95 Id. at 1035-36. The Court rejected the Board’s arguments, noting “that at least three of [the Board’s] template districts were drawn with or approved with VRA requirements in mind,” i.e., the same constitutional error as before. Id. at 1035 n.13.
96 Id. at 1037-38.
97 Id. at 1038.
98 See In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 47 P.3d 1089, 1090-92 & nn.5, 16 (Alaska 2002). In contrast, if Girdwood raised any Section 6 challenges to Senate District L or challenges to any of the underlying house districts, those could have been brought back in December 2020 and this court would consider such challenges time-barred. Because the Board’s discriminatory intent was established in March 2022 when the Alaska Supreme Court affirmed this court’s finding as to Senate District K, any reverberations of that intent are effectively new challenges. claim in December 2021, it may challenge whatever decisions the Board made in April 2022 that may be tainted by this court’s prior finding of discriminatory intent.

B. Article I, Section 1 Equal Protection Clause

1. Kenai Neutral Factors Test

Girdwood’s primary argument is that the Board acted with illegitimate purpose when it adopted Option 3B. Under Alaska’s Equal Protection Clause,99 challengers of otherwise neutral state action must show that the government acted with “a discriminatory purpose.”100 Alaska’s equal protection analysis employs a sliding scale approach that varies depending on the nature of the right affected, the government’s purposes, and the means-ends fit.101 In the redistricting context, the Alaska Supreme Court has described “a voter’s right to an equally geographically effective or powerful vote” as “a significant constitutional interest,” while not necessarily “a fundamental right.”102 The Board therefore “cannot intentionally discriminate against a borough or any other ‘politically salient class’ of voters by invidiously minimizing that class’s right to an equally effective vote.”103 Where the Board acts in a discriminatory manner, the Board must adduce “proof of a legitimate purpose” and “a substantial relationship between the Board’s means and ends.”104 But even under this lower standard, courts will apply “a more exacting scrutiny” and “facts will no longer be hypothesized” as might otherwise occur under the federal equal protection standard.105

99 Alaska Const. art. I, § 1 (“[A]ll persons are equal and entitled to equal rights, opportunities, and protection under the law . . . .”).
104 Kenai Peninsula Borough, 743 P.2d at 1373 n.40.
105 Id. at 1371 & n.35; see also Com. Fisheries Entry Comm’n v. Apokedak, 606 P.2d 1255, 1264 (Alaska 1980) (noting that any legitimate purpose must have “a substantial basis in reality”).

In the Matter of the 2021 Redistricting Plan, 3AN-21-08869CI
Order re Girdwood Challenge to Amended Plan
While the easiest way to establish discriminatory intent may be by direct evidence, intent can also be shown through the “totality of the circumstances.”106 In Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State, the Court adopted the “neutral factors test” for determining “whether the Board intentionally discriminated against a particular geographic area.”107 The Kenai Court specifically identified several factors as indicative of “an illegitimate purpose,” such as (1) “[w]holesale exclusion of any geographic area from the redistricting process,” (2) “secretive procedures,” (3) boundaries that “selectively ignore political subdivisions and communities of interest,” and (4) other “evidence of regional partisanship.”108 The Court has also recognized that one way to “raise an inference of intentional discrimination” is by showing that “a redistricting plan unnecessarily divides” any “politically salient class,” such as boroughs and municipalities, “in a way that dilutes the effective strength of [that class of] voters.”109 Claims of regional gerrymandering can be rebutted by showing that the “intentional discrimination resulted in increased proportionality of geographic representation in the state legislature.”110 Although the Court has previously confronted “regional partisanship,” i.e., favoring certain geographic communities over others, in the equal protection context, “political partisanship” has not yet been squarely addressed.111 Nevertheless, the Court has observed that “[i]n the context of discrimination against a political group, the intent requirement is probably minimal.”112

It is worth observing at this point the unique nature of the Girdwood challenge. The parties cite no Alaska case law addressing the issue of how this court should treat subsequent decisions on remand after a confirmed judicial finding of discriminatory

---

106 Kenai Peninsula Borough, 743 P.2d at 1372 (“A totality of the circumstances assessment of the Board's reapportionment process is unnecessary here because the Board's intent was discriminatory on its face.”).
108 Id.
109 In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 44 P.3d 141, 144 (Alaska 2002); accord Kenai Peninsula Borough, 743 P.2d at 1370-73.
110 Kenai Peninsula Borough, 743 P.2d at 1372.
111 Cf. Rucho, 139 S. Ct. at 2496-502 (holding that partisan gerrymandering claims are nonjusticiable under the federal Equal Protection Clause).
112 Hicken v. Se. Conf., 846 P.2d 38, 49 n.18 (Alaska 1992), as modified on reh'g (Mar. 12, 1993); see also Bandemer, 478 U.S. at 129 (“As long as redistricting is done by a legislature, it should not be very difficult to prove that the likely political consequences of the reapportionment were intended.”).
intent by the Board. Ostensibly, if this court were deciding Girdwood’s equal protection challenge on a blank slate, i.e., nothing more than the record on remand, this might be a less complicated decision.

But the Court did not make lightly its previous finding that secretive procedures were evident in the Board’s process. And Girdwood presents evidence that some secretive procedures were continually used following remand, suggesting the Board created the April 2022 Senate pairings with illegitimate purpose.

On the other hand, the Court acknowledges that the Board, on the record, did a much better job adhering to a transparent, open process. The Board adopted two proposed plans on April 6, 2022 which provided the public with a meaningful opportunity to provide testimony on either map.113 The Board took public testimony on April 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, and 9,114 and voted to adopt the final plan on April 13, 2022.115 In this time, the Board held no executive sessions.116 This stands in stark contrast to the last-minute, opaque procedures leading up to the Senate pairings which led to remand.

However, Girdwood plaintiffs offer evidence that suggests that the Board continued to act in “coalition” to further a common, pre-arranged goal. The Girdwood plaintiffs point out that correspondence between Members Binkley, Marcum, and Simpson generally occurred over the phone, and correspondence was notably 113 ARB2000559-ARB2000560 (April 6 Meeting Transcript) (Chairman Binkley: “If there’s no objection to the motion, the motion is adopted, and we now have before us two plans, option 2 and option 3 bravo.”).

114 ARB2000076 (April 2 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000084-000177 (April 2 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000077 (April 4 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000178-000284 (April 4 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000079 (April 6 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000446-000599 (April 6 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000080 (April 7 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000600-000696 (April 7 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000081 (April 8 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000697-000813 (April 8 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000082 (April 9 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000814-000946 (April 9 Meeting Transcript).
115 ARB2001015-001016 (April 13 Meeting Transcript).
116 See Affidavit of Peter Torkelson, ¶ 15 (May 4, 2022); see also ARB2000084-000177 (April 2 Meeting Transcript); ARB20000178-000284 (April 4 Meeting Transcript); ARB20000285-000445 (April 5 Meeting Transcript); ARB20000446-000599 (April 6 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000600-000696 (April 7 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000697-000813 (April 8 Meeting Transcript); ARB2000814-000946 (April 9 Meeting Transcript); and ARB2000947-001083 (April 13 Meeting Transcript).
between these three Members, leaving out Members Borromeo and Bahnke. Initially, plaintiffs deem it significant that Members Binkley, Marcum, and Simpson were steadfastly against beginning the hearing processes earlier, given the exceptionally condensed timeline and the Supreme Court’s week early decision. To be sure, this Court has gone to great lengths to compress the timeline for litigation such that a decision can be issued, and potentially appealed, in time for the June 1, 2022 deadline. Still, it is not entirely clear why the Board would intentionally delay the process and force uncertainty on the public relative to the democratic process.

Girdwood plaintiffs also accuse Members Marcum and Simpson of undertaking considerations from a partisan political perspective. Initially, Girdwood presents evidence that Member Simpson has acknowledged that he was appointed specifically because he was “a Republican from the Southeast.” Following the Supreme Court’s order, Member Simpson wrote an email to an unknown number of contacts stating in part that the Court’s Order “implies that what the court perceived as a political gerrymander must be replaced with a different political gerrymander more to their liking.” Additionally, plaintiffs argue that rather nasty emails sent and received regarding articles written about the redistricting process demonstrate that Member Simpson was “preoccupied by his partisan politics” such that his vote was improperly influenced. Girdwood plaintiffs argue that this is evidence that Member Simpson, on remand, continued to consider Senate pairings in “partisan political terms.”

Plaintiffs then turn to Member Marcum, who was subscribed to the mailing list of the National Republican Redistricting Trust, whose concerns were “the preservation of ... shared conservative values for future generations.” Girdwood also points out the despite the Courts finding, based on clear evidence and established by Member Marcum’s own testimony that she had seen incumbent data, she stated on remand

---

117 Trial Tr. 1725:15-1727:16 (Feb. 3, 2022); Simpson Depo. 210:9-12.
118 ARB2-507161-62.
119 ARB2-507137; ARB2-507140.
120 Girdwood Plaintiffs’ Opposition to ARB Brief at 17.
121 Girdwood Plaintiffs’ Opposition to ARB Brief at 19; ARB 502232-35; National Republican Redistricting Trust website, available at: thenrrt.org/about-us/.
that she did not read any incumbent data, and that she was not concerned with incumbents.

The Court also expresses concern over Member Binkley's choice to vote against a motion because he did not agree with the Supreme Court's ruling relative to the so-called "Cantwell Appendage."\textsuperscript{122} The Court understands that each Board Member is an Alaskan in their own right and, like every individual, has the right to agree or disagree with the Court's decisions. Yet, it is not the Board's place to act in its capacity as the Redistricting Board based on whether the individual Board Members agree or disagree with the law. The Rule of Law should be abided in all respects. To the extent that any Board Member felt it was appropriate to act contrary to the clear direction of the highest Court of this State, that is unacceptable.

Girdwood takes the position that on its own, this correspondence may not tip the scales. However, in the face of this Court's previous finding of illegitimate intent, such political correspondence supports the notion that the Board's intent continues unabated. The Court is inclined to agree. While the Board reduces plaintiffs' arguments to unproductive "mudslinging," the evidence is quite clear that a pattern of markedly partisan correspondence between specific Board Members occurred, and aligns with the intent found during the first round of litigation. Further, in the previous order, the Court found that the majority of the Board acted in what appeared to be a sort of coalition. Given the exclusive correspondence between the same majority of the Board, that coalition seems to have continued. The previous illegitimate intent finding renders such partisan and behind-the-scenes correspondence all the more suspect. Alone, this correspondence carries some weight. When viewed in light of the previous finding of illegitimate purpose, that weight becomes heavier.

While the Board Members are Alaskans in their own rights entitled to their own "opinions," actions taken while acting in one's capacity as a Board Member, particularly actions that appear to be influenced by such correspondence, are facially suspicious, especially in light of the Court’s previous findings. Indeed, Girdwood’s arguments are largely premised on the observation that the Board simply found a new way to accomplish what it improperly sought to do before.\textsuperscript{124} Needless to say, the Board avoids this issue entirely and selectively ignores this court’s prior findings on discriminatory intent.\textsuperscript{125} In response, Girdwood asserts that the Board’s lack of “contrition and respect” for this court’s findings “negates any presumption that those members were making \textit{[sic]} good-faith effort to comply with both the spirit and the letter of the remand orders.”\textsuperscript{126} Regardless of intent, the public’s trust of the Board’s integrity is vital, and is jeopardized by correspondence of this nature. Given this court’s findings, and given the possibility that a future Board may operate with similar or even more grave intent, the Court is wary of an order that effectively lights a path both legally and procedurally to creating a gerrymandered map.

\textsuperscript{122} April 8, 2022, Meeting Tr. at 9-14.

Turning to communities of interest, this Court has previously established that Eagle River is a community of interest.\textsuperscript{127} Girdwood plaintiffs through their expert witness, Dr. Chase Hensel, offer compelling evidence that Girdwood is a community of interest with South Anchorage.\textsuperscript{128} Plaintiffs also cite to extensive testimony during the public hearing process after remand that House District 9 is a community of interest with South Anchorage as a whole, and is markedly distinct and removed from Eagle River. Member Marcum stated that Senate District E is a “natural pairing” as the “Chugach Mountain district.”\textsuperscript{129} She also noted that both districts “have their own road services.”\textsuperscript{130} Chair Binkley similarly stated that the districts both have road service districts, both included the Chugach Mountains, and that citizens of those districts “deal with wildlife closer to their homes,” have “higher snow loads,” and face “wildfire dangers.”\textsuperscript{131} Chair Binkley also reasoned that both districts were “large, more \textsuperscript{124} See Girdwood FFCL at 26-27.

\textsuperscript{125} See Board FFCL at 19-22.
\textsuperscript{126} Girdwood FFCL at 16-17.
\textsuperscript{127} FFCL at 68.
\textsuperscript{129} ARB2001004, 2001005.
\textsuperscript{130} ARB2001005.
\textsuperscript{131} ARB2000984.
rural, and share a really long, physical border," which makes them constitutionally contiguous.\textsuperscript{132}

As previously discussed, to comply with article VI, section 6, senate districts need only be contiguous, meaning the borders must be touching. Insofar as the Board was considering the similarities between districts its decision, it is not necessarily problematic that the Board used additional considerations when determining which contiguous pairing would be most appropriate. However, upon considering whether communities of interest were ignored for Equal Protection purposes, there is no authority, and no argument offered, that the Court should consider communities of similar interests to be communities of interest. It is clear to the Court that the Senate District E’s boundaries ignore the Eagle River and South Anchorage communities of interest. That these communities may have similar interest does not inform the analysis for Equal Protection purposes.

The Board does not appear to contest this point. Rather, the Board interprets the Court’s February 15, 2022 ruling and supporting caselaw to mean that if the Board ignores communities of interest, it must justify that choice. Here, the Board argues that the justification was twofold. First, a majority of the Board insisted continuously that Senate District L remain intact, which meant that it was necessary to pair Eagle River’s other House District with another contiguous part of Anchorage. Second, Board Members believe that a single senator would be able to represent Senate District E aptly, as the districts have similar interest given their more rural nature and common needs. Ultimately, this pairing strikes the Court not as a conscious decision to pair Eagle River and South Anchorage, but rather another “down-the-road consequence of a majority of Board members insisting that the JBER and Eagle River Districts remain paired in a single senate district.

The Court notes, however, that ignoring the Eagle River and South Anchorage communities of interest was not necessary, but a product of the majority of the Board’s preference. The Court observes that Option 2 keeps both the Eagle River and South Anchorage communities in unified Senate Districts. Ultimately, communities of interest were ignored here. The Court acknowledges that justification was provided, and was not unreasonable. However, the fact that other pairings that did not split communities of interest were available serves to undercut the strength of the Board’s argument and tips the scales in the Girdwood plaintiffs’ favor.

\textsuperscript{132} ARB2000985.

Further, Girdwood largely argues that the Board ignored public comment and that its decision is not supported by the evidence. But aside from some factual discrepancies, there is minimal evidence of regional partisanship. However, the Court still finds that, particularly given the preexisting finding of illegitimate intent and the way that the Board’s behavior on remand seems to echo its behavior leading up to the first Proclamation, the Court is compelled to find illegitimate intent under the neutral factors test. As such, the burden then shifts to the Board.

The Court in Kenai established a burden shifting standard in the context of the Kenai litigation. The Court stated that “intentional geographic discrimination in reapportionment is justifiable only if greater proportionality in geographic representation in the legislature will result therefrom.” Additionally, in In re 2001, the Court considered an argument that the Matanuska Susitna Borough’s equal 133 Many of Girdwood’s arguments focus on the Board’s stated justifications, i.e., protecting the military vote, and how that was a pretext not supported by the record, and thus arbitrary and capricious. Indeed, Girdwood concludes “that the Board acted arbitrarily and capriciously, in a manner that violated the Equal Protection Clause of the Alaska Constitution.” Girdwood FFCL at 67. But Girdwood does not raise any due process or Section 10 challenges, nor does Girdwood’s complaint allege that the Board acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner. See Girdwood Complaint at 8-10. Instead, Girdwood appears to be seeking to apply this court’s prior “hard look” analysis under a different constitutional provision. See Girdwood FFCL at 15-17. But on appeal the Alaska Supreme Court reversed this court’s prior findings on “hard look” review as it related to the Skagway challenge and House Districts 3 and 4. Without further guidance from the Court to clarify the proper standard, this court declines to apply the same analysis under a different name. Nevertheless, Girdwood’s arguments that the Board ignored substantive factors it should have considered do serve an important purpose under the federal framework discussed below.

---

134 The Board’s purported justification that it “sought to preserve the military community’s voting strength,” Board FFCL at 21, at least as it relates to Senate District E, appears to lack “a substantial basis in reality” and thus would not qualify as a “legitimate purpose.” Com. Fisheries Entry Comm’n v. Apokedak, 606 P.2d 1255, 1264 (Alaska 1980). But this court does not reach the issue of weighing the Board’s purpose unless and until Girdwood first establishes that the Board acted with discriminatory intent.

135 Kenai, 743 P.2d 1352, 1373 n. 40. protection rights were violated as it was not given strictly proportional representation. However, the Court determined that the Board had presented a "valid non-discriminatory justification," that the challenged pairing was a necessary result of other pairings that were required to avoid violating the Voting Rights Act.

Looking to strictly numerical proportionality, Eagle River Valley and North Eagle River/Chugiak are underrepresented by -1.65% and -0.71% respectively. South Anchorage is underrepresented by -0.28%. Pairing Eagle River Valley and South Anchorage results in an average deviation of roughly -0.97%, whereas pairing the Eagle River districts together results in an average deviation of -1.18%, and pairing South Anchorage with Oceanview/Klatt, as in Option 2, results in an average deviation of roughly -0.48%. The districts in question vary by as much as 250 persons per district, and thus different pairing create a multitude of different variations among Senate Districts. When looking to the deviations present in the challenged districts in Option 3B, average deviation among both Senate Districts is roughly -0.73%. Average deviations when looking to Option 2 are roughly -0.83%. This is a difference of eighteen individuals. Therefore, Option 3B leads to slightly more proportional representation.

---

137 Id.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>District</th>
<th>All persons</th>
<th>Target</th>
<th>Deviation</th>
<th>Difference</th>
<th>Averages</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Senate District Pairings in Option 3B</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Anchorage -E- 9</td>
<td>18,023</td>
<td>18,335</td>
<td>-0.28%</td>
<td>-51</td>
<td>-177</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eagle River Valley -E- 10</td>
<td>18,032</td>
<td>18,335</td>
<td>-1.65%</td>
<td>-303</td>
<td>-0.965%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>JBER -L- 23</td>
<td>18,285</td>
<td>18,335</td>
<td>-0.27%</td>
<td>-50</td>
<td>-90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>North Eagle River/Chugiak -L- 24</td>
<td>18,205</td>
<td>18,335</td>
<td>-0.71%</td>
<td>-130</td>
<td>-.49%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Senate District Pairings in Option 2, Advocated by Plaintiffs</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Anchorage -E- 9</td>
<td>18,023</td>
<td>18,335</td>
<td>-0.28%</td>
<td>-51</td>
<td>-86.5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oceanview/Klatt -G- 13</td>
<td>18,213</td>
<td>18,335</td>
<td>-0.67%</td>
<td>-122</td>
<td>-0.475%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eagle River Valley -E- 10</td>
<td>18,032</td>
<td>18,335</td>
<td>-1.65%</td>
<td>-303</td>
<td>-216.5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>North Eagle River/Chugiak -L- 24</td>
<td>18,205</td>
<td>18,335</td>
<td>-0.71%</td>
<td>-130</td>
<td>-1.18%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Court considers the burden shifting standard in the context of the current challenges regarding Senate districts. In this case, there is no evidence that greater proportionality was a factor the Board considered when crafting Senate pairings. In fact, the Board seemed particularly focused on article VI section 6 requirements relevant to House districts, like socio-economic integration, and whether the districts shared common interests. Where strict proportionality is not a clear consideration by the Board, the Court hesitates to conclude that the discrimination and illegitimate purpose is overcome by the unintended _de minimis_ increase in proportionality that Option 3B presents. Realistically, the Board would not generally be expected to consider numerical proportionality upon determining Senate pairings, as at that point the House districts would have already been created. To be sure, all deviations in the affected Senate districts are below 2%, and most are below 1%. Thus, any argument that Senate Districts are more proportional are ultimately after-the-fact rationalizations rather than legitimate justifications.

Here, the intent carries forward. The Court found that the Board crafted Senate Districts with illegitimate purpose. The Court acknowledges that the Board offered non-discriminatory reasons for pairing House Districts 9 and 10; however, those reasons stemmed from a preference for keeping House Districts 23 and 24 together. While the Court has not determined that Senate District L is unconstitutional, the Board’s preference for keeping it intact does not mirror the Voting Rights Act requirements considered in _In re 2001_. It may prefer keeping those districts together, but it is not required to, and mere preference, no matter how strong, cannot justify a finding that districts were created with illegitimate purpose.

Yet, the court is operating without clear guidance from the Alaska Supreme Court establishing the legal framework to apply. Therefore, this court is left to its own judgment as to whether prior findings of discriminatory intent must be taken into consideration and how much weight should they be afforded. Fortunately, Alaska is not the only state that conducts redistricting every 10 years, and federal court decisions provide some guidance under a more expansive standard.

Much like Alaska's Equal Protection Clause, the federal version protects individuals from intentional discrimination by state actors.138 Under the federal Constitutional standard, challengers need not prove that discriminatory intent was the government's "dominant" or "primary" purpose, but it must be a "motivating factor."139

In Village of Arlington Heights v. Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., the U.S. Supreme Court detailed several types of circumstantial evidence that it had previously used when determining the existence of discriminatory intent.140 These factors include: (1) discriminatory effect;141 (2) the historical background, i.e., whether the action is the latest in "a series of official actions taken for invidious purposes"; (3) the preceding sequence of events, i.e., the timing of the action relevant to other events; (4) departures from normal procedures and substantive norms, i.e., whether the factors normally relevant would counsel a different conclusion; and (5) legislative history, e.g., "contemporary statements by members of the decisionmaking body."142 And because this is a non-exhaustive list, federal appellate courts have recognized additional factors: "(6) the foreseeability of the disparate impact; (7) knowledge of that impact, and (8) the availability of less discriminatory alternatives."143 Federal courts routinely apply these Arlington Heights factors to uncover discriminatory intent in a variety of equal protection challenges, including redistricting cases.144

---

140 Arlington Heights, 429 U.S. at 266-68.
141 There are also rare cases where "a clear pattern" emerges in the application of an otherwise facially neutral law that is "unexplainable on grounds other than [intentional discrimination]," and thus proof of discriminatory effect alone is sufficient. Id. at 266 & nn.13-14; see also Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886) (laundromat licensing); Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339 (1960) (redistricting).
In Hunter v. Underwood, the U.S. Supreme Court confronted a provision of the Alabama Constitution of 1901 that disenfranchised those with convictions for crimes of "moral turpitude." Although the Court reasoned that the language was facially neutral, the challengers provided ample evidence under the Arlington Heights factors that the voting restriction "was enacted with the intent of disenfranchising blacks." Indeed, the original language of the provision included the crime of "miscegenation," although later courts had apparently already struck down that and other crimes. Alabama thus argued that despite the obvious discriminatory intent in 1901, "events occurring in the succeeding 80 years had legitimated the provision." But the Court was not convinced:

> Without deciding whether [the constitutional provision] would be valid if enacted today without any impermissible motivation, we simply observe that its original enactment was motivated by a desire to discriminate against blacks on account of race and the section continues to this day to have that effect. As such, it violates equal protection under Arlington Heights.

Hunter thus established that subsequent events cannot always remove the taint of prior discriminatory intent. And more recently, district courts applying Arlington Heights and Hunter have struck down longstanding immigration laws, initially passed in the 1920s and 1950s amid widespread, open animus toward immigrants.

---

146 Id. at 229.
147 Id. at 226, 233.
148 Id. at 233.
149 Id.
150 See, e.g., N. Carolina State Conf. of NAACP v. McCrory, 831 F.3d 204, 239 (4th Cir. 2016). But cf. Johnson v. Governor of State of Fla., 405 F.3d 1214, 1223-25 (11th Cir. 2005) (finding subsequent legislative reenactment eliminated taint from discriminatory law); Cotton v. Fordice, 157 F.3d 388, 391 n.8 (5th Cir. 1998) (distinguishing Hunter by noting that the Court only discounted "involuntary" pruning of the language by courts as opposed to legislative or voter-approved amendments and reenactments).
On the other hand, the U.S. Supreme Court also cautioned against imputing the motivations of prior legislatures to subsequent redistricting efforts in Abbott v. Perez.\(^{152}\) There, several groups challenged Texas’s 2011 redistricting plans, which eventually led to a three-judge federal court creating interim plans by making minor adjustments to the 2011 plans.\(^{153}\) The Texas legislature then adopted those as its permanent plans in 2013, with minor changes, to “confirm the legislature’s intent to adopt ‘a redistricting plan that fully comports with the law.’”\(^{154}\) After multiple trials, the federal court concluded that the original 2011 plans “were the result of intentional vote dilution.”\(^{155}\) Upon turning to the 2013 plans, the district court “attributed this same intent to the 2013 Legislature because it had failed to ‘engage in a deliberative process to ensure that the 2013 plans cured any taint from the 2011 plans.’”\(^{156}\) On appeal, the Court clarified:

> The allocation of the burden of proof and the presumption of legislative good faith are not changed by a finding of past discrimination. “[P]ast discrimination cannot, in the manner of original sin, condemn governmental action that is not itself unlawful.” The “ultimate question remains whether a discriminatory intent has been proved in a given case.” The “historical background” of a legislative enactment is “one evidentiary source” relevant to the question of intent. But we have never suggested that past discrimination flips the evidentiary burden on its head.\(^{157}\)

The Court distinguished Hunter by observing that the Alabama constitutional provision at issue there “was never repealed, but over the years, the list of disqualifying offenses had been pruned”—in other words, subsequent deletions “did not alter the intent with which the article, including the parts that remained, had been adopted.”\(^{158}\) Over vigorous dissents, the Court reversed the district court’s conclusion, but it reiterated that prior discriminatory intent should not be ignored either:

---
\(^{153}\) Id. at 2315-16.
\(^{154}\) Id. at 2317.
\(^{155}\) Id.
\(^{156}\) Id. at 2318 (quoting Perez v. Abbott, 274 F. Supp. 3d 624, 649 (W.D. Tex. 2017)).
\(^{157}\) Id. at 2324-25 (citations omitted).
\(^{158}\) Id. at 2325 (distinguishing Hunter v. Underwood, 471 U.S. 222 (1985)).
In holding that the District Court disregarded the presumption of legislative good faith and improperly reversed the burden of proof, we do not suggest either that the intent of the 2011 Legislature is irrelevant or that the plans enacted in 2013 are unassailable because they were previously adopted on an interim basis by the Texas court. Rather, both the intent of the 2011 Legislature and the court’s adoption of the interim plans are relevant to the extent that they naturally give rise to—or tend to refute—evidentiary considerations regarding the intent of the 2013 Legislature. They must be weighed together with any other direct and circumstantial evidence of that Legislature’s intent.\textsuperscript{159}

In other words, any prior discriminatory intent remains a “factor” to be considered alongside all other Arlington Heights factors, but the prior intent is not dispositive, and the challengers still ultimately bear the burden of proving that discriminatory intent was a “motivating factor” for the subsequent action.

3. Applying the Arlington Heights Factors and Abbott

In this Court’s view, the Arlington Heights/Abbott framework provides useful guidance in addressing the board’s prior bad intent. Both the Kenai “neutral factors test” and the Arlington Heights framework are versions of the same “totality of the circumstances” test.\textsuperscript{160} Further, the Kenai Court specifically observed that “the equal protection clause of the Alaska Constitution imposes a stricter standard than its federal counterpart,”\textsuperscript{161} thereby providing greater protection to potentially disaffected voters. If the Board’s intent is considered discriminatory under the federal test, then it must be discriminatory under Alaska’s Equal Protection Clause as well. Accordingly, given this Court’s prior finding of discriminatory intent, this Court will look to the \textsuperscript{159} Id. at 2326–27.

\textsuperscript{160} Compare Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State, 743 P.2d 1352, 1372 (Alaska 1987) (noting that the “neutral factors” evidence should be “considered with the totality of the circumstances” to determine intent), with Washington v. Davis, 426 U.S. 229, 242 (1976) (“Necessarily, an invidious discriminatory purpose may often be inferred from the totality of the relevant facts . . . .”), and N. Carolina State Conf. of NAACP v. McCrory, 831 F.3d 204, 233 (4th Cir. 2016) (admonishing the district court for considering “each piece of evidence in a vacuum, rather than engaging in the totality of the circumstances analysis required by Arlington Heights”).

\textsuperscript{161} Kenai Peninsula Borough, 743 P.2d at 1371.
Arlington Heights framework to address the Board’s prior discriminatory intent as part of the “totality of the circumstances” in addressing the Girdwood challenge.

a. Discriminatory Effect

Girdwood argues that the South Anchorage district in which Girdwood resides “is majority-leaning but not always majority-electing,” and thus essentially a “swing” district.\textsuperscript{162} This contention is supported by an expert report from Dr. Chase Hensel,\textsuperscript{163} whose testimony this court previously relied on to determine that Muldoon and Eagle River are “communities of interest.”\textsuperscript{164} In contrast, as Dr. Hensel explained before, Eagle River “votes solidly and predictably Republican.”\textsuperscript{165} Girdwood thus argues that pairing South Eagle River with South Anchorage has the effect of overpowering District 9’s moderate views, thus precluding Girdwood from “a meaningful opportunity to influence state senate elections at the margin.”\textsuperscript{166} In other words, Girdwood frames the relevant “politically salient class” as not just the community of Girdwood but “District 9 as a whole.”\textsuperscript{167}

The Board responds that Girdwood’s voting-age population (“VAP”) comprises only 12.34% of its current house district, and only 6.33% of new Senate District E.\textsuperscript{168} Analyzing historical voting data, the Board asserts that Girdwood lacks the population to control any senate district, and that Girdwood’s current house district with Hillside is already heavily Republican-leaning.\textsuperscript{169} The Board thus concludes “that there is no likelihood that Eagle River voters would drown out Hillside voters, or vice versa.”\textsuperscript{170} The Board produces two affidavits from its executive director, Peter Torkelson, examining the voting age populations and voting patterns of the communities of Girdwood and Hillside. The Board supplies no expert testimony to support its contentions.

On the balance, this court is not entirely convinced that the Board’s pairings will necessarily result in any significant discriminatory effect. Much of the arguments regarding future elections is conjecture—no court can actually predict how future elections will unfold. Still, based on the numbers and evidence presented, any pairing of Eagle River with another more moderate community would likely yield a safe Republican seat for the foreseeable future. But there is an equal likelihood that even under Option 2, Girdwood may be represented by a Republican senator. Regardless, that is not the end of the inquiry. And rather than focus on actual discriminatory impact in partisan gerrymandering claims, perhaps the more important question to ask is whether the Board intended the pairings to have a substantial effect, i.e., that splitting Eagle River and pairing it with South Anchorage would create two safe Republican senate seats.

b. Historical Background

Under Abbott, prior findings of discriminatory intent must be considered as a factor alongside other past evidence of discrimination. In particular, this court previously held that “the Board intentionally discriminated against residents of East Anchorage in favor of Eagle River, and this intentional discrimination had an illegitimate purpose.” This court explained that the Board’s purpose in creating Senate District K was to “give[] Eagle River more representation,” whereas any dilution of Muldoon’s voting strength was “a down-the-road consequence.” The Alaska Supreme Court then affirmed this “court’s determination that the Board’s Senate K pairing of house districts constituted an unconstitutional political gerrymander violating equal protection under the Alaska Constitution.”

---

171 See Torkelson Affidavit at 1-6 (May 4, 2022); Torkelson Supp. Affidavit at 1-2 (May 9, 2022).
172 FFCL and Order at 70.
173 FFCL and Order at 69.
174 FFCL and Order at 68.
175 Order, ITMO 2021 Redistricting Cases, S-18332, at 6 (Alaska March 25, 2022).
highlights this court’s prior findings of discriminatory intent, arguing that the Board’s proceedings after remand were merely pretext “to launder gerrymandered maps through the courts.” While the Board disagrees with this court’s prior findings, the Board cannot avoid the import of this court’s findings, which the Alaska Supreme Court upheld on appeal.

The key question, therefore, is how much weight should this court afford to prior findings of discriminatory intent after remand? Much like the constitutional issue in Hunter, the Board did not voluntarily repeal and reenact its prior discriminatory decision—the unconstitutional portions of the 2021 redistricting plan were reversed by the courts, including the highest appellate Court in this State. Nothing about the Board’s action here can plausibly be considered “voluntary.” And unlike the subsequent legislature adopting the tainted redistricting plans in Abbott, there was no intervening election—the Board’s membership remains unchanged, and the same three members who voted in favor of splitting Eagle River before have split Eagle River again. Indeed, the Board’s discriminatory intent formed roughly six months ago. In light of the contemporaneity of the Board’s prior intent, this factor weighs heavily in Girdwood’s favor. But this does not end the inquiry. As the Abbott Court cautioned, prior intent alone cannot forever preclude the Board from adopting pairings that may otherwise be upheld absent discriminatory intent.

c. Procedural and Substantive Departures

Without question, this court’s prior finding of discriminatory intent was heavily dependent on procedural irregularities, i.e., “secretive procedures,” such as the Board’s abuse of executive sessions and the appearance of off-the-record decision-making. After remand, the Board therefore sought to eliminate any appearance of 176 Girdwood Opposition Brief at 40.

---

177 See Cotton v. Fordice, 157 F.3d 388, 391 n.8 (5th Cir. 1998) (differentiating between “involuntary” pruning by courts and legislative or voter-approved amendments and reenactments).
179 See FFCL and Order at 65-68 (Feb. 15, 2022).
impropriety by stating each member’s rationale on the record and never once entering executive session. As noted above, during this expedited challenge, this court has not been presented with direct evidence of “secretive procedures” or other departures from procedural norms. Instead, the Girdwood Plaintiffs rely primarily upon inference and circumstantial evidence.

Nevertheless, departures from substantive norms also come in under this factor. The Arlington Heights Court explained that the relevant question here is whether “the factors usually considered important by the decisionmaker strongly favor a decision contrary to the one reached.” Arguably, the factors the Board should have considered important are the limited constitutional criteria for senate districts, i.e., contiguity, local government boundaries, and geography. Article VI, Section 10 also requires the Board to “hold public hearings on the proposed plan.” Indeed, the Board itself stated that public comment was an important consideration, and it sought to extend public comment after remand to “give the public their due.” Thus, where the Board substantively departed from such considerations, this may constitute circumstantial evidence of invidious intent.

Girdwood’s challenge is replete with instances where the Board either ignored public testimony, geography, and even the boundaries of Eagle River to justify adopting Option 3B, or simply downplayed it. This court need not recount every substantive deviation—it should be enough to observe that the Board fails to actually dispute any of Girdwood’s observations. Instead, the Board now argues that senate districts need not even be strictly contiguous. The Board also now asserts that it

160 Board FFCL at 6-9.
162 Alaska Const. art. VI, § 6.
163 Alaska Const. art. VI, § 10.
164 ARB200023B; see also ARB000226-42. The record shows that it was actually the Board members that voted in favor of Option 3B who initially sought to elicit greater public testimony “to meaningfully implement the findings of the Supreme Court.” ARB2000241.
165 Girdwood FFCL at 39-61.
166 Indeed, the Board’s rejoinder on public comment is merely that “[n]either option garnered total support of all the public.” Board FFCL at 4 (emphasis added).
167 In particular, the Board interprets the qualifier “as near as practicable” in Section 6 to mean that it can has no obligation to listen to or follow the weight of public testimony.\textsuperscript{188} This Court acknowledges it previously criticized the Board for failing to take an appropriate “hard look” at the public testimony in mapping the house districts for Skagway and Juneau, but the Alaska Supreme Court reversed this Court’s remand order.\textsuperscript{189} Nonetheless, this Court does not believe the Board’s discretion is unfettered. For purposes of this decision, the Court simply notes the weight of the substantive public testimony appeared to favor Option 2 rather than Option 3B. And as for respecting the boundaries of Eagle River, the Board offers no arguments as to why North Eagle River could not be paired with South Eagle River.\textsuperscript{190}

Rather than relying on any of the aforementioned considerations, the Board’s stated rationale for adopting Option 3B was “to preserve the military community’s voting strength” as a “community of interest.”\textsuperscript{191} But this court never found that JBER was a “community of interest.” The Board has never presented any expert testimony on that issue. And the record does not appear to contain specific public comment from any JBER resident.\textsuperscript{192} On the other hand, this court did find that Eagle River was a “community of interest,” and yet the Board made no effort to preserve its boundaries.\textsuperscript{193} Not only is the Board’s stated purpose not supported by the weight of the record,\textsuperscript{194} it is also contrary to precedent.\textsuperscript{195}

\textsuperscript{188} Board Opposition Brief at 3-7. This court observes that, once again, the clear weight of public testimony was opposed to splitting Eagle River. Compare Girdwood FFCL at 48-56, with FFCL and Order at 68 (Feb. 15, 2022). Moreover, the Municipality of Anchorage and every community council that weighed in on the pairings preferred Option 2. Girdwood FFCL at 53-54.

\textsuperscript{189} Order, ITMO 2021 Redistricting Cases, S-18332, at 3 (Alaska March 25, 2022).

\textsuperscript{190} The Board even concedes that Option 2 had bipartisan support, as “two Republican senators and a member from Governor Dunleavy’s administration spoke out against Option 3B.” ARB2000973.

\textsuperscript{191} Board FFCL at 21.

\textsuperscript{192} Girdwood FFCL at 56.

\textsuperscript{193} See FFCL and Order at 68 (Feb. 15, 2022).

\textsuperscript{194} This is addressed more below as it pertains to whether the Board’s purpose was “legitimate.”

\textsuperscript{195} See In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 44 P.3d 141, 147 (Alaska 2002) (“Neither military personnel nor \textsuperscript{196} “pair non-contiguous house districts together if it is not practicable to adopt contiguous pairings.” Board FFCL at 16. This court rejects that narrow reading. Instead, the more reasonable interpretation of this phrase is that it allows contiguity across bodies of water or inaccessible mountain ranges. See Hickel v. Se. Conf., 846 P.2d 38, 45 (Alaska 1992), as modified on reh’g (Mar. 12, 1993). Moreover, the Supreme Court has already interpreted the phrase “as near as practicable” in Section 6 as it applies to population deviations to require “a good faith effort” to reduce deviations below the federal threshold. In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 44 P.3d 141, 146 (Alaska 2002).

As previously noted, the record does support the conclusion that some military officers and ex-military members live in Eagle River. On the other hand, the record contains negligible support for the pairing of Girdwood/Turnagain Arm with South Eagle River. The Board members supporting that pairing talked of rural road service, wildlife issues, and even the geographic connections (the Chugach Mountains and the Ship Creek drainage), there was little discussion of the obvious pairing of the two Eagle River house districts. If the Board had instead relied on "the factors usually considered important" for senate district pairings, pairing Eagle River with Eagle River would have received more attention. The Board's stated motivations about protecting the JBER connection and supporting military voters appears pretextual. This court therefore views these substantive departures as weighing heavily in Girdwood's favor.

d. Contemporary Statements of Board Members

Legislative history, or contemporaneous statements of the decision-makers, is another factor relevant here. This factor primarily concerns public statements, such as those normally found in meeting minutes or reports. In the context of large legislative bodies, "statements from only a few legislators, or those made by legislators after the fact, are of limited value." Courts may also rely on trial testimony, deposition statements, and other available evidence. But "statements members of any other group have any constitutional right to be divided among two or more districts to maximize their opportunity to influence multiple districts rather than control one.").

____________________

196 The Board cites only superficial similarities between South Eagle River and Girdwood, such as being "close to the mountains" and "generally more rural." Board FFCL at 7-8. Instead, the Board admits that new Senate District E is essentially another downstream consequence of pairing North Eagle River with JBER. ARB200970.

198 N. Carolina State Conf. of NAACP v. McCrory, 831 F.3d 204, 229 (4th Cir. 2016).

199 See, e.g., Smith & Lee Assessors., Inc. v. City of Taylor, Mich., 13 F.3d 920, 928 (6th Cir. 1993) (relying on testimony from city officials); cf. Smith v. Town of Clarkton, N.C., 682 F.2d 1055, 1064-65 (4th Cir. 1982) ("Municipal officials acting in their official capacities seldom, if ever, announce on the record that they are pursuing a particular course of action because of their desire to discriminate against a racial minority. Even individuals acting from invidious motivations realize the unattractiveness of their prejudices when faced with their perpetuation in the public record. It is only in private conversation, with individuals assumed to share their bigotry, that open statements of discrimination are made, so it is rare that these statements can be captured for purposes of proving racial discrimination in a case such as this. The trial court, in making findings of fact, was faced with the same problems confronting trial courts everywhere.

In the Matter of the 2021 Redistricting Plan; 3AN-21-08869CI
Order re Girdwood Challenge to Amended Plan
made by private individuals," such as those offered during public comment, are irrelevant without additional "evidence that the private motives . . . are fairly attributable to the State."200

Girdwood offers very few public statements in support of its arguments. Instead, Girdwood focuses on private communications between the members as evidence of discriminatory intent. For example, Member Simpson’s email correspondence evinced knowledge that the South Eagle River district was "reliably republican," and that the Board previously paired it with South Muldoon because it was also "majority non-minority" and voted "republican 2/3 of the time."201 Member Simpson then complained that the Alaska Supreme Court upheld this court’s finding that the Board “politically gerrymandered” Senate District K, which now “must be replaced with a different political gerrymander more to their liking,” and that “the Ds will push to dilute both of them to make it easier to elect their candidates.”202 In context, Member Simpson was most likely venting his frustrations. But that does not change the fact that Member Simpson knew that Eagle River was "reliably republican," and that splitting Eagle River again would be viewed as another “political gerrymander.”203 Aside from that, Girdwood provides no reasons why this court should attribute statements from private individuals to Board members, and this court declines to do so.204

---

201 Girdwood FFCL at 35; ARB2-507161-62.
202 ARB 2-507161-62. Member Simpson also expressed relief that the Court upheld his Skagway-Mendenhall Valley pairing, and mused that Skagway "will be stuck with that arrangement for the next 10 years, at least." ARB2-507161.
203 If anything, this statement goes more to some of the additional Arlington Heights factors that other federal courts have recognized, such as the foreseeability and knowledge of discriminatory impact. See Greater Birmingham Ministries v. Sec’y of State for State of Alabama, 992 F.3d 1299, 1322 (11th Cir. 2021). And as for “the availability of less discriminatory alternatives,” as this court observed above, Option 2 had widespread, bipartisan support. These additional factors, while potentially less important, also weigh in Girdwood’s favor.
204 One email cited by the Girdwood Plaintiffs and apparently received by Member Simpson on April 13, 2022, is particularly unkind. The email subject line noted the heading “Alaska Redistricting Board adopts GOP-friendly plan, pairing Eagle River with South Anchorage” but the sender appears to attack Members Bahnke and Borromeo for their vote against the plan. ARB2-507140.
There is also the question of whether Board members’ statements from earlier in this redistricting cycle continue to come in under this factor. To the extent that this court already found that the Board acted with discriminatory intent, and that the Board’s prior intent continues to be a consideration, this court will not “double-count” Board members’ prior statements. Nevertheless, because those statements continue to be pertinent to this court’s analysis, it is worth reiterating what members previously stated on the record about their motivations for splitting Eagle River, as the Board now repeats this result.

As this court previously noted, the one who proposed and then fervently advocated for the Eagle River-JBER pairing was Member Marcum.\textsuperscript{205} For context, Bethany Marcum is the CEO of the Alaska Policy Forum.\textsuperscript{206} She served as a member of the Air National Guard stationed at JBER, and has lived in both Eagle River and on the Lower Hillside.\textsuperscript{207} She was appointed to the Board by Governor Mike Dunleavy.\textsuperscript{208} On November 8, 2021, as the Board was debating senate pairings, Member Marcum observed that “the connection between Eagle River and the military was not given any consideration during the House district drawing process.”\textsuperscript{209} She stated that splitting Eagle River into two senate districts “actually gives Eagle River the opportunity to have more representation, so they’re certainly not going to be disfranchised by this process.”\textsuperscript{210} In support of pairing North Eagle River with JBER, Member Marcum also read into the record one particular public comment that described Eagle River as “a somewhat friendlier, safer part of Anchorage.”\textsuperscript{211} But the actual public testimony in the \textsuperscript{205} FFCL and Order at 58-62 (Feb. 15, 2022).

\textsuperscript{206} Marcum Affidavit at 2 (Jan. 12, 2022).
\textsuperscript{207} Marcum Affidavit at 1 (Jan. 12, 2022).
\textsuperscript{208} ARB000005.
\textsuperscript{209} ARB006671-72.
\textsuperscript{210} ARB006672. Member Borromeo later reiterated this statement in opposition to the Board’s final pairings: “Member Marcum said that splitting Eagle River into two Senate seats would extend the electoral influence of the community resulting in more representation.” ARB007190.
\textsuperscript{211} ARB006695. The record shows that this statement came from the written testimony of Eagle River resident Dan Saddler on October 12, 2021. ARB003610-11. Mr. Saddler also submitted written testimony at least two more times, urging the Board to connect JBER and Eagle River in a senate district. ARB003612-13 (Nov. 10, 2021); ARB2001332 (April 4, 2022).
record described Eagle River as "a somewhat friendlier, safer, and more conservative part of Anchorage."\textsuperscript{212}

Member Marcum’s prior statements, viewed in context, thus paint the picture that partisan politics was indeed a "motivating factor" behind her desire to pair North Eagle River with JBER. However, because this court has already taken the Board’s prior discriminatory intent into consideration, Member Marcum’s past statements are not afforded any additional weight here. It certainly appears to this court that Board members took extra precautions so as not to inadvertently include any blatantly partisan statements on the record after remand.\textsuperscript{213} But as a whole, this factor weighs only slightly in favor of Girdwood if at all.

In the end, Girdwood has identified ample evidence in the record to support its argument that the Board substantially deviated from substantive norms in order to achieve a preordained result. Whereas other relevant factors, such as discriminatory effect and "legislative history", are less conclusive. On the record after remand alone, this court does not find that there is sufficient circumstantial evidence of discriminatory intent. Ultimately, the factor that tips the balance in Girdwood’s favor is this court’s prior finding on intent.

The Board knew that this court found that Senate District K was the result of intentional discrimination. And the Board knew that the Alaska Supreme Court affirmed this court’s findings in the East Anchorage challenge on equal protection grounds. Yet the Board has proceeded through the remand as though this court reversed Senate District K on a procedural technicality. The majority of the Board appears to have assumed it could reach the same result – two reliably conservative senate seats for Eagle River - if only it submitted the senate pairings to additional public comment, regardless of what the public actually preferred. Once again, this court does not make this finding lightly. But when viewed under the totality of the circumstances, this court finds that the Board once again intentionally discriminated against the communities of Girdwood and South Anchorage in order to maximize senate representation for Eagle River and the Republican party. The Board was keenly aware that its actions would be perceived by the public as a political gerrymander—this court simply agrees with that observation.

\textsuperscript{212} ARB003610 (emphasis added). This omission of Mr. Saddler’s actual testimony speaks volumes as to Member Marcum’s true rationale behind pairing Eagle River and JBER.

\textsuperscript{213} See Girdwood FFCL at 27-34. This is apparent by the number of private phone conversations between the three-member majority. Members Bahnke and Borromeo appear to have been excluded from any of those discussions.

e. Evaluating the Board’s Purpose and Means-End Fit

Because this court finds that the Board acted with discriminatory intent, the burden shifts to the Board to show a “legitimate” purpose for its actions. This court then must evaluate whether there is “a substantial relationship between means and ends.”\(^{214}\) The Board argues that pairing Girdwood with South Eagle River “provides greater proportionality of representation to Girdwood voters,” because every other contiguous pairing reduces Girdwood’s overall percentage of voting-age population.\(^{216}\) But the record unambiguously shows that advancing Girdwood’s interests was never the Board’s “purpose.” This court rejects such obvious post-hoc rationalizations.\(^{216}\) Instead, the Board’s primary “purpose”—and its only stated goal on the record—was to protect military voters.\(^{217}\) But, as explained below, the Board effectively admits that partisan politics is exactly what drove its decision.

Members repeatedly brought up the military connections between Eagle River and JBER.\(^ {218}\) When explaining his vote, Member Simpson referred to House District 23 as “the military district.”\(^ {219}\) Member Marcum claimed to “speak for thousands of full-

\(^{215}\) Board FFCL at 10-11, 22.

\(^{217}\) Board FFCL at 6-8.

\(^{218}\) See, e.g., ARB2000968 (“We heard a lot of testimony about interactions between Eagle River, Chugiak, and JBER, that that area has essentially developed as a bedroom community . . . for the military families.”).

\(^{219}\) ARB2000967-68.
time Alaska residents who serve this state and country in the military" in her support of Option 3B.\textsuperscript{220} And when his turn came, Chair Binkley noted "concerns that putting the more conservative or swing district of the military base with downtown would drown out the military voters."\textsuperscript{221} In light of those justifications on the record, the Board argues that it "was concerned that pairing JBER with downtown Anchorage would result in JBER’s preference for candidates being usurped by downtown Anchorage’s preference for opposing candidates."\textsuperscript{222}

Although Board members repeatedly couched their reasoning in terms of "military voters," as the Board’s argument confirms, Board members either knew or assumed that JBER residents preferred the same political candidates as Eagle River, i.e., Republicans. The Board thus candidly admits that its decision to pair JBER with North Eagle River was to amplify conservative voices by creating a safe Republican senate seat.

The Board responds that Option 2 would have resulted in even more of a political gerrymander. The three members voting for Option 3B each stated their belief that JBER was a "community of interest."\textsuperscript{223} Based on that view, Member Marcum opined that she was "very uncomfortable with [Option] 2," because "Downtown has almost nothing in common with the military base," and pairing it with JBER "could be viewed as, like, an intentional action to break up the military community."\textsuperscript{224} And after noting that several Republican officials had testified against Option 3B, Member Simpson argued that "the most partisan [option] is the proposed pairing of JBER and Downtown," which "would diminish the voice of our valued Alaska military

\textsuperscript{220} ARB2001003.
\textsuperscript{221} ARB2000989 (emphasis added).
\textsuperscript{222} Board FFCL at 21 (emphasis added); ARB2000973-74. Of course, Girdwood’s whole argument is that pairing South Eagle River with Girdwood does the same thing.
\textsuperscript{223} See ARB2000968 ("I think pairing the military bases with downtown overlooks JBER as a significant community of interest . . ."); ARB2000980 ("The military, JBER, is absolutely a community of interest, I think."); ARB2000982 ("I understand that the Court has found . . . Eagle River to be a community of interest, but I think the testimony has also established very clearly that the military community is also a community of interest, and I don't believe that we should be trading one community of interest for the other.").
\textsuperscript{224} ARB2000980.
The Board now argues that JBER is itself a “community of interest” and that pairing JBER with Downtown would cause “undue dilution of the military vote.” But evidence of bipartisan support for Option 2 is not evidence that Option 3B is not “partisan.” And merely because the Board learned to parrot the language from this court’s prior order does not automatically turn JBER into a “community of interest.” As noted above, this court has made no such finding and the Board has not offered evidence on that issue.

Moreover, as Girdwood points out, House District 23 includes a large portion of Downtown in addition to JBER. All of the community councils within House District 23 who passed resolutions on the pairing opposed Option 3B. Dr. Hensel explains that District 23 as a whole is also much more ethnically diverse than Eagle River, and actually has more in common geographically and demographically with Downtown. And Girdwood points out that all of this information was brought before the board in the form of public testimony.

It thus appears that the majority of the Board adopted Option 3B for political reasons—to protect conservative voters. Even accepting arguendo the Board’s stated purpose of maximizing the voting strength of military voters, the Court previously rejected this rationale as illegitimate. And acting to amplify the strength of conservative voters at the expense of moderate or liberal voters is even less 225 ARB2000973-74. Chair Binkley repeated these arguments. ARB2000982-83. Member Borromeo later retorted that the “military” arguments were “just dog-whistle politics to get people riled up that we’re somehow disenfranchising the Armed Services,” noting that the Board “shouldn’t even be considering socioeconomic integration” at that point. ARB2000995.

---

226 Board FFCL at 21.
227 Girdwood FFCL at 40-42. Indeed, House District 23 also includes the neighborhoods of Government Hill, North Muldoon, and Downtown north of Fourth Avenue.
228 Girdwood FFCL at 11-12, 41.
229 Hensel Supp. Report at 3-4 (noting that the Board’s data shows that 57% of House District 23 residents identify as “White,” compared to 75% of House District 24). This difference is almost as striking as the Eagle River-Muldoon pairing this court previously invalidated.
231 See In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 44 P.3d 141, 147 (Alaska 2002) (“Neither military personnel nor members of any other group have any constitutional right to be divided among two or more districts to maximize their opportunity to influence multiple districts rather than control one.”). This is precisely what the Board sought to do for Eagle River.
Because the Board once again acted with discriminatory intent, and because the Board has not put forth any legitimate, nondiscriminatory purpose for its actions, this court concludes that the Board violated the equal protection rights of the residents of Girdwood and House District 9.234

C. The Totality of the Circumstances

As outlined and discussed above, this Court has weighed the totality of the circumstances in reaching its conclusions. The Court's discussion of the Arlington Heights factors informs this Court's application of the Kenai “totality of the circumstances” analysis in a fuller context. In light of the substantial evidence of secretive procedures, regional partisanship, and selective ignorance of political subdivisions and communities of interest on the whole record, developed both in this 2022 amended redistricting process, and the earlier 2021 redistricting process, the Court finds above that the Board intentionally discriminated against residents of District 10, including Girdwood in order to favor of Eagle River, and this intentional discrimination had an illegitimate purpose. This Court also takes the opportunity to highlight some of the other evidence that factored into this analysis. Some of these observations fall under the Arlington Heights factors and are separately listed above. Although this Court does not base its decision on the following observations, it is worthwhile to highlight some of the small inconsistencies and peculiarities in the Board’s process, in the aggregate, also support this Court’s conclusion that the Board acted with discriminatory intent and improper purpose.

233 Indeed, the whole reason why the framers of the Alaska Constitution included requirements for contiguity, compactness, and socio-economic integration was to prevent partisan gerrymandering for political gain. See Hickel v. Se. Conf., 846 P.2d 38, 45 & n.11 (Alaska 1992), as modified on reh’g (Mar. 12, 1993); cf. Order, ITMO 2021 Redistricting Cases, S-18332, at 6 (Alaska Mar. 25, 2022) (affirming invalidation of former Senate District K as an "unconstitutional political gerrymander"). The Board does not explain how political gerrymandering becomes "legitimate" or constitutional when the limited Section 6 criteria are met. Because the Board fails to put forth any legitimate purpose, this court need not determine whether there is a substantial relationship between the Board's goal and its decision. 234 This does not mean that JBER and Eagle River, or Girdwood and Eagle River, can never be paired together in a senate district. It is, however, highly unlikely that this Board, given its past actions, can legitimately split Eagle River into two senate districts. The existence of discriminatory intent is key.
For example, the Board’s stated justification, as before was to preserve the military ties between North Eagle River/Chugiak and JBER. This Court previously noted the plausibility of this justification, and noted there was at least some public testimony in support of this pairing. But there was also considerable public testimony to the contrary, both this time, and in the 2021 hearings. To be sure, there is little question in the supplemental record that both factions, supporters of Option 2 and supporters of Option 3B, marshalled the troops to write and call in support of their competing positions. Indeed, many of the written comments submitted to the Board appear to be simple “cut and paste” campaign type scripts. While this is true of both supporters and opponents alike, it appears to be much more true of the Option 3B camp. Many of the written comments used the same language. For example, numerous individuals called or wrote in merely to state that they opposed Option 2, with no explanation given; \(^{235}\) or that they opposed it because it was “partisan” or “political,” without further explanation.\(^ {236}\)

Where there was substantive testimony in favor of pairing Eagle River with South Anchorage/Girdwood/Turnagain Arm, it focused on tenuous similarities between the districts rather than substantive connections: individuals testified that both districts were concerned about things like fire danger, snow, and bears.\(^ {237}\)

In the context of voting rights in redistricting litigation, equal protection under the Alaska Constitution guarantees each person one vote and the right of fair and effective representation – the right to group effectiveness or an equally powerful vote.\(^ {238}\) As discussed earlier, Girdwood’s expert, Dr. Hensel noted:

if a pairing presents particularly unnecessary obstacles to the population that a district encompasses, and there are other pairings that do not present such difficulties, and the people who have chosen the pairing

\(^{235}\) E.g., ARB2001685; ARB2001687; ARB2001689; ARB2001692; ARB2001695; ARB2001696; ARB2001697; ARB2001699 (small sampling of comments).

\(^{236}\) E.g., ARB2000260; ARB2000294; ARB2001690; ARB2001693

\(^{237}\) ARB2000356; ARB2000363; ARB2000483-84; ARB2001617.

\(^{238}\) Kenai Peninsula Borough, 743 P.2d at 1370-71 (quoting Alaska Pacific Assurance Co. v. Brown, 687 P.2d 264, 269 (Alaska 1984)).

In the Matter of the 2021 Redistricting Plan; 3AN-21-08869Cl Order re Girdwood Challenge to Amended Plan also have previously engaged in partisan gerrymandering, it raises the question of "why this pairing, and not that?\textsuperscript{239} Dr. Hensel’s point is well-taken. In analyzing the circumstances which led the board to adopt Senate District E, it is appropriate for the Court to compare the promulgated district with other proposed and possible districts. The Board’s Option 2, or even Option 1, would have created Anchorage senate pairings that do not include a senate district where the only population centers in the constituent house districts are separated by a significant mountain range including vast, unpopulated areas (or empty census blocks). While such expanses may be unavoidable in rural areas of the state, this Court looks warily upon the creation of such a district in urban/suburban Anchorage by a Board already found to have acted with illegitimate purpose in this exact area.

Similarly, the Board generally disregarded local government boundaries in establishing District E. While all districts in both proposals are technically within the Municipality of Anchorage, there are other local boundaries, including school zones, community councils and even the Downtown Improvement District which the Board could have considered. Both the Anchorage Assembly and the Girdwood Board of Supervisors issued Resolutions opposing the Board’s senate pairing, but these resolutions were ignored.\textsuperscript{240} In addition, the Downtown Community Council ("DCC"), Government Hill Community Council ("GHCC"), and Anchorage Downtown Partnership ("ADP") all formally supported a pairing of downtown with North Anchorage.\textsuperscript{241}

By contrast, no formal resolutions or messages were received from community councils or other community government bodies in any Eagle River communities—nor were any resolutions or messages received from any community government body or entity representing the JBER population. While a few individual commenters \textsuperscript{239} Hensel Report at 3.

\textsuperscript{240} Girdwood Exhibits 4 and 5.
\textsuperscript{241} ARB2001782-83 (ADP Resolution); ARB2001381 (testimony from Government Hill Community Council President); Exhibit 1 (Downtown Community Council Resolution). supported a District 23/24 pairing or a District 9/10 pairing, the majority of the testimony was against it.

Further, this Court's observation from the first round of this litigation appears once again to be true. “The public portion of the record leads to only one reasonable inference: some sort of coalition or at least a tacit understanding between Members Marcum, Simpson, and Binkley.”242 The text messages certainly suggest there were private phone calls occurring between the three majority members.243 In addition, the email evidence indicates Member Marcum was subscribed to the mailing list of the National Republican Redistricting Trust (“NRRT”).244 Since the stated goal of the NRRT is to preserve “our shared conservative values for future generations” through the redistricting process, the only reasonable inference that can be drawn is that Member Marcum’s stated partisan goal from the first round of redistricting remained paramount in her work on the Board.245

The communications also demonstrate these members were keen to avoid the process problems identified by the Court the last time. While Members Bahnke and Borromeo questioned the need for an extensive process given that the Board had already heard testimony to move quickly and to use the constitutionally acceptable pairings proposed in November 2021,246 the other three Board members insisted on a longer public process “to meaningfully implement the findings of the Supreme Court, "247 “to give the public their due,”248 and “allow the public to engage and look at that plan.”249 Member Simpson went so far as to state: “I refuse to be badgered into a decision made on partial information before I'm ready to do it.”250 These statements

242 FFCL at pp 65-66.
243 ARB2-507072-74, ARB 2-507136.
244 ARB2-502232-35.
245 Girdwood Exhibit 5; See also FFCL at p58 (referencing Board Transcripts).
246 ARB2000235-37.
247 ARB2000240-41.
248 ARB2000238.
249 ARB2000232.
250 ARB2000240.
are admirable and certainly suggest the Board understood this Court’s criticism of their senate pairing process in November 2021.

But despite the more open public process the Board engaged for this round, the justification provided for the Senate District pairings was virtually unchanged from stated justification in November – the military connection. The communications and statements suggest the majority board members approached the process with a pre-determined outcome in mind. The record indicates a disregard for the weight of public testimony, and lack of geographic awareness of what was in the districts at issue. Instead, totality of the circumstances indicates a goal-oriented approach; they paid attention to the details only as much as they needed to say the right words on the public record when explaining their choice.

In summary, the totality of the circumstances leads this Court to conclude that the majority of the Board acted in concert with at least a tacit understanding that Eagle River would again be paired in such a way as to provide it with two solidly Republican senate seats – an unconstitutional partisan gerrymander. The result deprives the voters of District 10 of fair and effective representation – the right to group effectiveness or an equally powerful vote251 - in violation of the Equal Protection clause of the Alaska Constitution.

X. THE REMEDY

Having concluded the Board once again engaged in a partisan gerrymander in violation of the equal protection clause of the Alaska Constitution, the Court must determine how best to correct the constitutional error. Because of the extraordinarily short time remaining for legislators to file for political office, further uncertainty must be avoided. Article VI of the Alaska Constitution provides the starting point for the Court’s analysis. Section 11 (Enforcement) provides in relevant part:

Any qualified voter may apply to the superior court to compel the Redistricting board, by mandamus or otherwise, to perform its duties under this article or to correct any error in redistricting. . . . Upon a final judicial decision that a plan is invalid, the matter shall be returned to the board for correction and development of a new plan. If that new plan is declared invalid, the matter may be referred again to the board.\textsuperscript{252}

Here, there has already been a final judicial determination that the Board’s initial plan was invalid. Upon that determination, the matter was returned to the Board to correct the error. This Court has now declared the Amended plan invalid, so the court may return the matter to the Board again, but is not required to do so.

The Court is also mindful that it is not the court’s role to draw the map, or to decide which map it prefers.\textsuperscript{253} The Court may not substitute its judgment for that of the Board or choose among constitutional alternative plans. But having determined the Board acted in an arbitrary and unconstitutional manner, the Court must chart a path which balances the constitutional rights of Alaska voters to fair and effective representation at the ballot box with the rights of legislators and potential legislators to seek political office.

The statutory deadline for candidates to file a declaration of candidacy is a short two weeks away - June 1, 2022.\textsuperscript{254} Under the circumstances, there must, at a minimum, be an interim map in place in sufficient time for potential candidates to make an informed decision and declare their candidacy. During this phase of the redistricting process, the Board considered two proposals for senate pairings: Option 2 and Option 3B, which has now been declared unconstitutional. Given what has transpired to date, there is simply no practical way for the Board to develop, debate and approve yet another map which would correct the constitutional error.

\textsuperscript{252} Alaska Const. art. VI, § 11 (emphasis added).
\textsuperscript{254} AS 15.25.040(a)(1).
The Court has the power, by mandamus,255 to order the Board to correct any error in redistricting.256 The only practical solution is for this Court to order the Board to adopt a map of senate pairings. Having determined that Option 3B was an unconstitutional political gerrymander, the Court orders the Board to adopt Option 2 on an interim basis for the 2022 general election. With the time pressure of the impending deadline removed, the matter should then be remanded once again to the Board to correct its constitutional error and adopt a new plan of redistricting for the balance of the decade.

This Court anticipates and encourages immediate appellate review of this decision by the Alaska Supreme Court. Accordingly, unless this Order is stayed by the Alaska Supreme Court, the Board shall prepare a Second Amended Proclamation incorporating the proposed senate pairings in Option 2 not later than May 23, 2022.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED at Anchorage, Alaska this 16th day of May, 2022.

Thomas A. Matthews
Superior Court Judge

---

255 "Traditionally, a suit asking the court to order a government official to act in a certain way is an action for mandamus." Anderson v Dept. of Administration, Div. of Motor Vehicles, 440 P.3d 217, 220 (Alaska 2019). See also Wade v Dworkin, 407 P.2d 587, 587 (Alaska 1965) (action to compel the Secretary of State to order a recount of votes.) The Writ of Mandamus has been abolished in Alaska, but the relief itself is still available. The court retains the power under Civil Rule 65 to issue a mandatory or reparative injunction. Alaska R. Civ. P. 91(b). Anderson, 440 P.2d at 220.

256 Alaska Const. art. VI, § 11.
I certify that 5/16/22 a copy of this Order was sent to the following:

A Murfitt
B Fontaine
B Taylor
Ben Farkash
E Houchen
Eva Gardner
Gregory Stein
Heidi Wyckoff
Holly Wells
J Huston
Jake Staser
Kayla Tanner
Laura Gould
Lee Baxter
M Hodsdon
M Nardin

amurfitt@brenalaw.com
bfontaine@hwb-law.com
btillyane@schwabe.com
ben@anchorlaw.com
ehouchen@brenalaw.com
Eva@anchorlaw.com
greg@baldwinandbutler.com
heidi@anchorlaw.com
hwells@bhb.com
jhuston@schwabe.com
jstaser@brenalaw.com
ktanner@schwabe.com
lgould@brenalaw.com
lbaxter@schwabe.com
mhodsdon@brenalaw.com mnardin@brenalaw.com

Mara Michaletz
Matthew Singer
Michael Schechter
Nathaniel Amund-Clark
P Crowe
Robin Brenna
S Nichols
Sarah Clinton
Stacey Stone
T Hardwick
T Marshall
Thomas Flynn
Whitney Leonard
William Felsey

mmichaletz@bhb.com
msinger@schwabe.com
mike@anchorlaw.com
NCLARK@SONOSKY.COM
pcrowe@bhb.com
rbrenna@brenalaw.com
snichols@hwb-law.com
sarah@anchorlaw.com
sstone@hwb-law.com
thardwick@hwb-law.com
tmarshall@bhb.com
thomas.flynn@elaska.gov whitney@sonosky.net
wfelsey@bhb.com

In the Matter of the 2021 Redistricting Plan; 3AN-21-08869CI
Order re Girdwood Challenge to Amended Plan

Page 55 of 55
IN THE SUPREME COURT FOR THE STATE OF ALASKA

In the Matter of the 2021 Redistricting Cases
(Alaska Redistricting Board/Girdwood Plaintiffs/East Anchorage Plaintiffs)

Supreme Court No. S-18419

Trial Court Case No. 3AN-21-08869CI (consolidated)

PETITION FOR REVIEW FROM THE SUPERIOR COURT
THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT AT ANCHORAGE
THE HONORABLE THOMAS A. MATTHEWS

ALASKA REDISTRICTING BOARD’S PETITION FOR REVIEW OF MAY 16, 2022 FINDINGS OF FACTS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Matthew Singer
Alaska Bar No. 9911072
Alaska Bar No. 9911072
msinger@schwabe.com
Lee C. Baxter
Alaska Bar No. 1510085
lbaxter@schwabe.com
Kayla J. F. Tanner
Alaska Bar No. 2010092
ktanner@schwabe.com
Schwabe, Williamson & Wyatt, P.C.
420 L Street, Suite 400
Anchorage, AK 99501
(907) 339-7125

Attorneys for Petitioner
TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION ........................................................................................................ 1

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS AND PROCEEDINGS ................................................... 3

   A. The Board Adopted Its Original Redistricting Plan, Challenges Were Filed, and Ultimately the Courts Ordered the Board to Fix the “Cantwell Appendage” and Senate District K .............................................. 3

   B. On Remand, the Board Fixed Senate District K ........................................... 4

   C. Girdwood’s Challenge to Senate District E .................................................. 6

   D. The East Anchorage Motion and Order ........................................................ 8

III. WHY IMMEDIATE REVIEW IS APPROPRIATE ............................................... 8

IV. DISCUSSION ........................................................................................................... 9

   A. The Trial Court’s Rambling, Unprincipled Decision Fails to Correctly Apply Equal Protection Law ............................................................. 9

      1. Miscellaneous Errors Pervading Judge Matthews’ Order Invalidating Senate District E ........................................................... 9

         i. The Superior Court Continues to Apply Its Defunct Weight-of-Public-Testimony Rule......................................................... 9

         ii. The Superior Court Ignored the Holding In re 2001 Redistricting Cases that Eagle River and Hillside can be Districted Together............................................................. 11

         iii. The Superior Court Continued to Find New “Communities of Interest” within Anchorage Despite Not Defining a Community of Interest ................................. 12

         iv. Judge Matthews Erroneously Concluded that Neighborhood Boundaries and School Attendance Areas are “Local Government Boundaries” .......................... 14

      2. Senate District E Does Not Violate Equal Protection ................................. 15
i. There is No Equal Protection Violation because Senate District E Optimizes Girdwood Residents’ Voting Strength ................................................................. 16

ii. Senate District E Does Not Discriminate Against Any Politically Salient Class of Voter because House District 9 Selects the Same Candidates as House District 10 ............................................................................................... 19

iii. The Board’s Process Easily Passes the Neutral Factors Test Under the Equal Protection Analysis: the Board Deliberated and Adopted Senate District E in Public Meetings, Considered Alternatives, and Identified the Support Upon which Each Members’ Rational Decision was Made ........................................................................... 22

iv. The Trial Court Erred in Applying an Expanded Equal Protection Test Inconsistent with Alaska Law ......................................................... 30

B. The Superior Court Overstepped Its Role Under Article VI by Ordering the Board to Adopt Senate Districts It had Rejected ......................... 32

V. CONCLUSION ...................................................................................................... 35

APPENDIX A
TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

CASES

Abbott v. Perez,
138 S. Ct. 2305 (2018) ....................................................................................... 7, 30

Gaffney v. Cummings,
412 U.S. 735 (1973) ......................................................................................... 31, 35

Hall v. Moreno,
270 P.3d 961 (Colo. 2012) ................................................................................ 13

Hickel v. Southeast Conference,
846 P.2d 38 (Alaska 1992) .................................................................................. 13, 17

In re 2001 Redistricting Cases,

In re 2001 Redistricting Cases,
44 P.3d 141 (Alaska 2002) .............................................................................. 19

In re 2001 Redistricting Cases,
47 P.3d 1089 (Alaska 2002) ............................................................................. 11, 13, 14, 19, 20

In re 2011 Redistricting Cases,
274 P.3d 466 (Alaska 2012) ........................................................................... 19, 34

In re 2011 Redistricting Cases,
294 P.3d 1032 (Alaska 2012) ........................................................................... 17, 34

Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State,
743 P.2d 1352 (Alaska 1987) ........................................................................ 15, 17

Legislature v. Reinecke, 516 P.2d 6 (Cal. 1973) ..................................................................................... 13

Mobile v. Bolden,
446 U.S. 55, 74 (1980) ..................................................................................... 7

Thornburg v. Gingles,
478 U.S. 30 (1986) ......................................................................................... 17
CONSTITUTION

Alaska Const. art. I, sec. 1 ......................................................................................................................... 16
Alaska Const. art. VI, sec. 4 ...................................................................................................................... 33, 34
Alaska Const. art. VI, sec. 6 ...................................................................................................................... 11
Alaska Const. art. VI, sec. 10 ................................................................................................................. 6
Alaska Const. art. VI, sec. 11 ................................................................................................................... 33

RULES, STATUTES & REGULATIONS

Alaska R. App. P. 402(b)(1)-(4) .............................................................................................................. 9
Anchorage Municipal Charter, Article VI ............................................................................................. 14, 15

OTHER AUTHORITIES

Brennan Center for Justice, Communities of Interest (available at: https://www.brennancenter.org/sites/default/files/analysis/6%20Communities%20of%20Interest.pdf) ..................................................................................................................... 13
MacDonald, Karin and Cain, Bruce, Community of Interest Methodology and Public Testimony, 3 U.C. Irvine L. Rev. 609 (2013) ..................................................................................................................... 13
I. INTRODUCTION

Despite the Girdwood Plaintiffs’ concession that Senate District E is a facially constitutional senate district,¹ the superior court’s Order re Girdwood Challenge is a rambling, unprincipled, result-oriented decision that ultimately rests on the notion that “once a sinner, always a sinner.” Judge Matthews recycles and rebrands many of the same erroneous concepts that this Court rejected in its March order, including his overemphasis on the “weight” of public testimony, second-guessing the Board’s judgment, and invalidating Board actions not based on the Board’s plan itself, but instead on the identity of Board members and their political affiliations. To uphold Article VI of the Alaska Constitution and avoid turning Alaska redistricting into an impossible task for future Boards, the superior court’s rulings must be reversed.

In his prior order invalidating the senate pairing of Eagle River and Muldoon, Judge Matthews emphasized a lack of public process, regional partisanship in pairing a conservative district with a swing district, and lack of adequate explanation for splitting communities of interest. This time around, the judge acknowledged that the Board’s public process was appropriate, that there was no evidence of regional partisanship in pairing Eagle River with the Anchorage Hillside, and that the Board had explained its reasoning. Yet, in his “heads I win, tails you lose” approach, Judge Matthews still found

---

¹ Exc. 499, May 12, 2022 Oral Argument 60:5-14 (Ms. Gardner: “[W]e’re not saying that it would be impossible for a Board to adopt this pairing. It could be possible for a different Board to adopt this pairing in a different context, where it had not been found guilty of gerrymandering, but this Board, the way it did it the first time and the way that it did it the second time and the -- the type -- the inaccuracies and nature of the reasons that it put on the record, which were contradicted by the public testimony, make it inappropriate.”) (emphasis added).
Senate District E invalid.

In his order invalidating Senate District E, Judge Matthews ignores this Court’s established equal protection analysis, Balkanizes the neighborhoods of the Municipality of Anchorage contrary to this Court’s precedent, and generally criticizes the majority of the Board for having political affiliations and leanings. The superior court’s decision is the antithesis of this Court’s holdings in prior cases that judicial review is limited to reviewing the constitutionality of the districts actually adopted by the Board, and not hypothetical districts that the Board did not approve. The superior court went beyond questioning the sagacity and wisdom of Senate District E; it impugned the motives of individual Board members while ignoring the manifest political motivations of others. There is no precedent in Alaska redistricting caselaw akin to the attacks that have been leveled against Board members and in some cases their spouses. The lower court’s decision is the antithesis of deference to an independent constitutional entity.

Judge Matthews’ contortion of the law is prevalent throughout his opinion. Specifically, the trial court:

- continued to apply its novel weight-of-public-testimony test despite this Court rejecting that test in the Skagway appeal less than two months ago;
- erroneously held that neighborhood boundaries and school attendance zones within the Municipality of Anchorage constitute “local political boundaries”;
- ignored In re 2001 Redistricting Case’s holding that Eagle River and the Anchorage Hillside may be in an election district together;
- shifted the burden to the Board to affirmatively demonstrate that it had removed any lingering taint of discriminatory intent, while reasoning that the Board could only do so by segregating the voters in Eklutna/Chugiak/Eagle River from all other election districts;

- ignored direct evidence in the record concerning the proper purpose of the Board in creating Senate District E; and
- refused to apply Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State’s neutral factor test and dismissing the increased proportionality Senate District E effectuates across Anchorage senate districts as de minimus and irrelevant.

Most egregiously, the trial court exceeded its authority under Article VI, usurped the process that Alaskans, through the Constitution, vested with the Board, and effectively selected its preferred plan by ordering the Board to adopt senate pairings crafted by the Senate Minority Leader and texted to a Board member in November 2021.

This Court has long recognized its proper role in redistricting is not to substitute its preferences or judgment for the Board’s. Senate District E is constitutional under the Constitution and precedent. The superior court ignored that existing law because it believed that the Board members had improper motives. No proper legal framework was used because Senate District E survives such an analysis. The Board respectfully requests this Court reverse the trial court’s sweeping rulings and reaffirm the proper roles of the courts and the Board in redistricting.

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS AND PROCEEDINGS

A. The Board Adopted Its Original Redistricting Plan, Challenges Were Filed, and Ultimately the Courts Ordered the Board to Fix the “Cantwell Appendage” and Senate District K

On November 10, 2021, the Board adopted its 2021 Redistricting Plan.\(^2\) Multiple

\(^2\) Exc. 548.
legal challenges were filed against the 2021 Redistricting Plan,³ and after a trial on those challenges, on February 15, 2022, the superior court issued its Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, upholding all but two house districts (House Districts 3 and 4) and one senate district (Senate District K).⁴

On March 25, 2022, the Alaska Supreme Court reversed the superior court’s decision about House Districts 3 and 4, and upheld the superior court’s invalidation of Senate District K.⁵ After this Court remanded the case to the superior court, on March 30, 2022, the superior court ordered the Board:

1) To correct the Constitutional errors identified by this Court and the Supreme Court in Senate District K; 2) To redraw House District 36 to remove the “Cantwell Appendage”; and 3) To make other revisions to the proclamation plan resulting or related to these changes.⁶

It is with this guidance that the Board undertook its remand actions.

B. On Remand, the Board Fixed Senate District K

The Board met between April 2 and April 13, 2022, to fulfill the remand orders.

Section II of the superior court’s May 16, 2022 order, “The Board’s Work Following Remand,” summarizes the Board’s process and is incorporated herein. [Exc. 550-555]

---

³ Exc. 548.
⁴ Exc. 548.
⁵ Order on Pets. for Review, S-18332 (Mar. 25, 2022). The Alaska Supreme Court also ruled unconstitutional House District 36 because the “Cantwell Appendage” made that district “non-compact without adequate justification.” Id., at 3. But, the Supreme Court offered an easy fix: move Cantwell from House District 36 to House District 30, where the remainder of the Denali Borough was placed. Id., at 4. The Supreme Court noted that if the Board made that move, the resulting populations of House Districts 30 and 36 would be “well within constitutionally allowable parameters under our case law.” Id., at 4.
⁶ Exc. 146-147.
Ultimately, the Board adopted for consideration two proposed plans for Anchorage Senate Pairings: Option 2 and Option 3B, shown below:

On April 13, the Board met and debated the competing plans for Anchorage senate pairings.

---

7 Exc. 75-76.
pairings. The Board voted to adopt proposed plan “Option 3B” as its new Anchorage senate pairings. Members Binkley, Marcum and Simpson voted in favor of Option 3B, and Members Bahnke and Borromeo voted against it. Each member stated their rationale for their vote on the record.

The Board issued its Amended Proclamation of Redistricting the same day. Attached as Appendix A to this brief are the proclamation maps for all of the Anchorage house districts (House Districts 9 through 24), which show the four new Anchorage senate districts that are changed from the 2021 Redistricting Plan: Senate Districts E, G, I, and K. The Board adopted, deliberated and approved its revised Anchorage senate districts during open public meetings, and never entered executive session.

C. Girdwood’s Challenge to Senate District E

On April 25, 2022, Plaintiffs Louis Theiss, Ken Waugh, and Jennifer Wingard (collectively the “Girdwood Plaintiffs”) filed a complaint challenging Senate District E,

---

8 ARB2000083 (April 13 Meeting Agenda); see also ARB2000947-001083 (April 13 Meeting Tr.).
9 Exc. 142-143 (April 13 Meeting Tr.).
10 Exc. 142-143 (April 13 Meeting Tr.); see Alaska Const. art. VI, § 10(b).
11 See Exc. 104-110 (Member Bahnke); Exc. 112-124 (Member Simpson); Exc. 125-130 (Member Borromeo); Exc. 130-131 (Member Marcum); Exc. 131-141 (Member Binkley).
12 See ARB2000007-000008; 2000011 (maps of election districts within the Municipality of Anchorage) (attached as App. A).
13 See Exc. 226, ¶ 15; see also ARB2000084-000177 (April 2 Meeting Tr.); ARB20000178-000284 (April 4 Meeting Tr.); ARB20000285-000445 (April 5 Meeting Tr.); ARB20000446-000599 (April 6 Meeting Tr.); ARB2000600-000696 (April 7 Meeting Tr.); ARB2000697-000813 (April 8 Meeting Tr.); ARB2000814-000946 (April 9 Meeting Tr.); and ARB2000947-001083 (April 13 Meeting Tr.).
which is comprised of House Districts 9 and 10, as shown in Appendix A.\textsuperscript{14} Girdwood Plaintiffs asserted that Senate District E violated their equal protection rights under the Alaska Constitution by denying them “an equally powerful and geographically effective vote and ignor[ing] the demographic, economic, political and geographic differences between the Eagle River and Girdwood communities.”\textsuperscript{15} They also claimed that Senate District E is non-compact, “falsely contiguous,” and ignores geographic features.\textsuperscript{16}

On May 16, the trial court issued its Order re Girdwood Challenge to Amended Plan. That opinion adopted a new, federal equal-protection burden of proof,\textsuperscript{17} and applied inferences of unconstitutional motives to Senate District E based on third-party communications to Board members, emails about webinars, and Board members’ affiliation with political organizations.\textsuperscript{18} The trial court engaged in a proportionality analysis but dismissed it as \textit{de minimus} and unimportant after concluding Senate District E \textbf{increased} proportionality across Anchorage senate districts.\textsuperscript{19} As to contiguity of the house districts comprising Senate District E, the trial court rejected the Girdwood Plaintiffs’ arguments about transportation contiguity and held that it was a visual concept.

\textsuperscript{14} Exc. 148-158.
\textsuperscript{15} Exc. 156, ¶ 30.
\textsuperscript{16} Exc. 156.
\textsuperscript{17} Exc. 558 (citing \textit{Abbott v. Perez}, 138 S. Ct. 2305 (2018), but ignoring the Supreme Court’s directive that “The allocation of the burden of proof and the presumption of legislative good faith are not changed by a finding of past discrimination. ‘Past discrimination cannot, in the manner of original sin, condemn governmental action that is not itself unlawful.’”)(quoting in part \textit{Mobile v. Bolden}, 446 U.S. 55, 74 (1980)).
\textsuperscript{18} Exc. 598.
\textsuperscript{19} Exc. 577.
that was fulfilled if census blocks from each house district touched.\textsuperscript{20} Finally, the trial court issued a mandamus directing the Board to adopt Option 2 senate pairings that the Board voted to reject.

\textbf{D. The East Anchorage Motion and Order}

On April 18, 2022, the East Anchorage Plaintiffs moved the trial court to reject the amended redistricting proclamation plan and to order the Board to adopt Option 2.\textsuperscript{21}
They argued the “Board corrected only one of the two senate pairings that resulted in the unconstitutional Senate District K. As a result, the Board preserved, and in many ways exacerbated, the unconstitutional political gerrymander rejected by this Court.”\textsuperscript{22}

The trial court rejected these arguments, and denied East Anchorage’s motion. In an opinion that should be read alongside the superior court’s contrary reasoning on Senate District E, the trial court held that it could not direct the Board which senate pairings to adopt: “The Court cannot mandate that the Board draw districts with specific boundaries or pair particular house districts.”\textsuperscript{23}

\textbf{III. WHY IMMEDIATE REVIEW IS APPROPRIATE}

June 1, 2022—less than two weeks from submission of this petition—is the Alaska Primary Election candidacy filing deadline. The superior court’s expansive ruling below seeks to set those election districts for the upcoming election by forcing the Board

\textsuperscript{20} Exc. 563.

\textsuperscript{21} Mot. to Reject Am. Redistricting Proclamation Plan and for Modification of Order on Remand, Case No. 3AN-21-08869CI (Apr. 18, 2022).

\textsuperscript{22} \textit{Id.}, p. 2.

\textsuperscript{23} Exc. 536.
to adopt the court’s preferred senate districts that the Board already rejected because of its negative impact on JBER voters. Immediate appellate review is necessary to resolve the important constitutional questions in this matter. The Board respectfully requests that this Court grant this Petition for Review and reverse the superior court’s order.

IV. DISCUSSION

A. The Trial Court’s Unprincipled Decision Fails to Correctly Apply Equal Protection Law

Judge Matthews’ lengthy order is a result in search of a reason. In taking a result-oriented approach, the superior court made numerous reversible errors of law.

1. Miscellaneous Errors Pervading Judge Matthews’ Order Invalidating Senate District E

Some foundational errors in the superior court’s equal protection analysis must be immediately corrected so they are not perpetuated in future redistricting cycles.

i. The Superior Court Continues to Apply its Defunct Weight-of-Public-Testimony Rule

On remand, the superior court continued to fixate on how many public testifiers desired specific districts and dinged the Board for not adopting the districts most desired by the public. The superior court applied its weight-of-public-testimony rule to Senate District E, despite this Court’s rejection of that rule in regard to the Southeast Alaska house districts encompassing Juneau, Haines, Skagway and Gustavus (House Districts 3 and 4). There, a majority of the public testimony sought differently arranged house districts for Skagway and Juneau. Judge Matthews reasoned that the “hard look” standard required the Board to adopt districts desired by the weight of public testimony “unless state or federal law requires otherwise.” The State was so troubled by this iteration of the “hard look” standard that it urged this Court to clarify that such a rule did not apply to agency decision-making. This Court unanimously reversed: “We REVERSE the superior court’s remand to the Board for further proceedings under the superior court’s ‘hard look’ analysis relating to public comments on the house districts. There is no constitutional infirmity with House Districts 3 and 4 and no need for further work by the Board.”

---

25 Exc. 585-586.

But, on remand, Judge Matthews recycled his weight-of-public-testimony standard. Pages of Judge Matthews’ decision invalidating Senate District E are dedicated to public testimony regarding social and economic connections between different portions of Anchorage. Repeatedly, Judge Matthews stated that the “majority of testimony” was in favor different senate pairings than those adopted by the Board.

---

27 Id.
28 State’s Resp. to Pets. for Review, at 1-6, S-18332 (Mar. 10, 2022).
30 See Exc. 554 & n.38, 585-586, 589-590, 595-597.
31 Exc. 586 (“For purposes of this decision, the Court simply notes the weight of the substantive public testimony appeared to favor Option 2 rather than Option 3B. And as for respecting the boundaries of Eagle River, the Board offers no arguments as to why North Eagle River could not be paired with South Eagle River.”); Exc. 596-597 (“While a few individual commenters supported a District 23/24 pairing or a District 9/10 pairing, the majority of the testimony was against it.”).
The Alaska Constitution contains the substantive requirements for election districts.\textsuperscript{32} Public testimony and the hard-look standard cannot change constitutional requirements. All communities within the Municipality of Anchorage are socially and economically integrated no matter how many political activists claim otherwise in public testimony. \textit{In re Redistricting 2001} confirmed that “communities within the Municipality of Anchorage are socio-economically integrated \textbf{as a matter of law}[..]”\textsuperscript{33}

The Board asks this Court to again remind lower courts that public testimony cannot change the constitutional requirements of the Alaska Constitution. This is an important point because the communities within the Municipality of Anchorage are either socio-economically integrated as a matter of law or they are not.

\textbf{ii. The Superior Court Ignored the Holding \textit{In re 2001 Redistricting Cases} that Eagle River and Hillside can be Districted Together}

This Court expressly held in the 2001 redistricting cycle that the Board was not required to district Eagle River separate from the rest of Anchorage and that it was constitutional in all respects to place Eagle River and Hillside in a house district.\textsuperscript{34} The superior court ignored this dispositive holding and never distinguished it. The Board must be permitted to follow established precedent without concern for reversal by a superior court second-guessing the wisdom of the Board’s plan that is substantially \textsuperscript{32} Alaska Const. art. VI, § 6.

\textsuperscript{33} \textit{In re 2001 Redistricting Cases}, 47 P.3d 1089, 1091 (Alaska 2002) (upholding Eagle River Valley and South Anchorage hillside district 32 as nothing being “unconstitutional in any respect.”) (emphasis added).

\textsuperscript{34} \textit{Id.}
similar to past plans upheld by this Court. If In re 2001 Redistricting Cases’s reasoning that “respect for neighborhood boundaries” within Anchorage “is not constitutionally required” is no longer good law, this Court should so expressly hold.

iii. The Superior Court Continued to Find New “Communities of Interest” within Anchorage Despite Not Defining a Community of Interest

In this redistricting cycle, the superior court has now established three “communities of interest”: Eagle River, Muldoon, and South Anchorage. Yet Judge Matthews has never explained what constitutes a “community of interest.” Judge Matthews also chastised the Board for recognizing a community of interest involving the over 11,000 active military residents of JBER and the many retired and active military in North Eagle River and Chugiak.\(^\text{35}\) Despite the obvious fact that military personnel share the same employer, the same noble mission, the same workplace, and the same shopping and medical facilities, it is unclear whether these things satisfy Judge Matthews’ undefined concept of “community of interest.” Before an election district is invalidated for splitting a community of interest, the reviewing court should at least define the term.

As discussed in the Board’s petition for review on the original redistricting plan, every legal commentator that has looked at what constitutes “communities of interest” has concluded the same thing: “communities of interest” is a synonym for areas that are socio-economically integrated, i.e., where people share significant social and economic \(^{35}\) Exc. 586 (“But this court never found that JBER was a ‘community of interest.’ The Board has never presented any expert testimony on that issue.”) (emphasis added).

interaction. Every community within the Municipality of Anchorage shares sufficient social and economic interactions to be in election districts together, as a matter of law. Under this rubric, Eagle River and South Anchorage are not separate communities of interest that cannot be combined with other areas of Anchorage and cannot be split. They are part of the same socio-economic unit that is the Municipality of Anchorage. If this Court is going to accept that Eagle River, South Anchorage, and Muldoon are separate communities of interest, then portions of Hickel and In re 2001 Redistricting Cases must be overturned. Judge Matthews also suggests that the Board lacks expertise to identify communities of interest and that it should defer to communities of interest identified by judges. Under this logic, the Board is subject to reversal if it splits a community of interest, but the Board lacks the ability to identify them.

36 ARB Pet. for Review, at 50-51 & nn. 223-225, S-18332 (Mar. 2, 2022) (quoting from Stephan J. Malone, Recognizing Communities of Interest in a Legislative Apportionment Plan, 83 Va. L. Rev. 461, 466 (1997); Brennan Center for Justice, Communities of Interest (available at: https://www.brennancenter.org/sites/default/files/analysis/6%20Communities%20of%20Interest.pdf)); Other state courts have recognized that a community of interest is analogous to a socio-economically integrated community. In California, a “community of interest” is an area of residents with common “social and economic interests.” Legislature v. Reinecke, 516 P.2d 6, 16 (Cal. 1973) (en banc) (reapportionment of the California Legislature); see also Karin MacDonald and Bruce Cain, Community of Interest Methodology and Public Testimony, 3 U.C. Irvine L. Rev. 609, 612-13 (2013). Colorado law requires the consideration of “communities of interest” in its redistricting process, and court decisions interpreting that phrase make clear it is analogous to Alaska’s phrase “socio-economic integration” by requiring election districts to be comprised, as much as possible, with people who share economic, living, and recreational pursuits. See Hall v. Moreno, 270 P.3d 961, 971 (Colo. 2012).

iv. Judge Matthews Erroneously Concluded that Neighborhood Boundaries and School-Attendance Areas are “Local Government Boundaries”

The superior court held that the Board ignored local government boundaries by breaching “the boundaries of Eagle River.” Eagle River does not have a local government, and does not have any defined local-government boundaries. Neither does Girdwood. These are simply two neighborhoods within the Municipality of Anchorage. As In re 2001 Redistricting Cases makes clear, community council boundaries within the Municipality of Anchorage are of no constitutional import: “As Judge Rindner observed, ‘respect for neighborhood boundaries is an admirable goal,’ but ‘it is not constitutionally required and must give way to other legal requirements.’”

The superior court’s conclusion that Senate District E “disregarded local government boundaries” because it split “school zones” makes even less sense. As an initial matter, high school attendance boundaries within the Anchorage School District are not “local government boundaries” because all students within the Anchorage School District are governed by the same political entity: the Anchorage School District School Board. Members of the school board are elected on an at-large basis from across the Municipality of Anchorage.

---

38 Exc. 585.
39 In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 47 P.3d at 1091.
40 Exc. 596.
41 See Article VI of the Anchorage Municipal Charter (available at: https://library.municode.com/ak/anchorage/codes/code_of_ordinances?nodeId=PTICH_A_RTVIED_S6.01PUSCSY) (“The system of public schools for the municipality shall be operated by a school board of seven persons elected at-large from seats designated as seat A, seat B, seat C, seat D, seat E, seat F, and seat G.”).
municipality so that each member serves all of the municipality’s schools, and not just one region of Anchorage. Because the Anchorage School District governs and operates all public schools within the Municipality of Anchorage, attendance boundaries for elementary, middle, and high schools within the district are not separate “local political boundaries.” Nothing in the state constitution or case law suggests that the Board must consider where non-voting minor children go to school when the Board adopts legislative districts for adult voters.

2. Senate District E Does Not Violate Equal Protection

Application of this Court’s established test for determining whether discriminatory intent renders districts unconstitutional shows Senate District E is constitutional and rational. Alaska courts employ the “neutral factors” test. Indeed, the superior court employed the neutral factors test from Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State in adjudicating equal protection claims to Senate District K in the last round of litigation. And even where a purpose is determined illegitimate under the first half of the test set out above, as stated in Kenai Peninsula Borough, “the Board’s ‘purpose in redistricting will be held illegitimate unless that redistricting effects a greater proportionality of representation.”

The trial court concluded Senate District E provides greater proportionality across Anchorage senate districts: “Therefore, Option 3B leads to slightly more proportional 42 See Art. VI, Sec. 6.01 of the Anchorage Municipal Charter.

43 Exc. 548.
44 Id., at 54 (quoting Kenai Peninsula Borough, 743 P.2d at 1372) (emphasis added).
representation." But Judge Matthews chose to ignore this result by dismissing it as de minimus and irrelevant after-the-fact rationalization: “Thus, any argument that Senate Districts are more proportional are ultimately after-the-fact rationalizations rather than legitimate justifications.” There is no point to applying the proportionality doctrine if its results do not matter to the court.

The Girdwood Plaintiffs’ equal protection claim fails because Senate District E was adopted through a transparent public process (without a single executive session), where the Board engaged in reasoned decision-making, articulated its rationale for the district on the record, and adopted a senate map that happens to optimize the Girdwood vote. The superior court’s ruling to the contrary improperly focuses on the political leanings of certain Board members and election-return data, rather than the constitutional criteria in Article VI, Section 6 and equal protection.

i. There is No Equal Protection Violation because Senate District E Optimizes Girdwood Residents’ Voting Strength

Article I, Section 1 of the Alaska Constitution provides “that all persons are equal and entitled to equal rights, opportunities, and protection under the law.” The Girdwood Plaintiffs’ allegation that Senate District E violates their right to fair and equal representation does not withstand scrutiny. U.S. Census data demonstrates that residents of the Girdwood area of Anchorage do not have their vote diluted in any way by Senate

---

45 Exc. 575.
46 Exc. 577.
47 Alaska Const. art. I, § 1.
District E. In fact, the opposite is true: Senate District E maximizes Girdwood’s voice in the Alaska Senate beyond any other legal pairing.\textsuperscript{48}

The U.S. Supreme Court and the Alaska Supreme Court look at the “voting age population” (VAP) of an area to determine whether dilution of voter power has occurred.\textsuperscript{49} According to the 2020 U.S. Census, the Girdwood area of the Municipality of Anchorage has a total population of 2,144 residents and a voting age population of 1,722.\textsuperscript{50} Because Girdwood is not incorporated as a separate political unit—it is part of the Municipality of Anchorage—the Board defines the “Girdwood Area” as the area encompassed by the Girdwood Community Council (aka the Girdwood Board of Supervisors).\textsuperscript{51}

Below is a chart of the relevant populations contained in Senate District E. It demonstrates that under Senate District E, House District 9 in which Girdwood is located has the greater influence over who is elected senator at 51.3% of the VAP, and

\begin{footnotesize}
\begin{itemize}
\item \textsuperscript{48} Exc. 220-229.
\item \textsuperscript{50} Exc. 220-221.
\item \textsuperscript{51} See Girdwood Community Council Map (available at: \texttt{http://www.communitycouncils.org/servlet/content/girdwood_cc_map.html}). As the Girdwood Plaintiffs explain in their Complaint, the Girdwood Valley Service Area Board of Supervisors (GBOS) is the Girdwood Community Council for the Girdwood area of the Municipality of Anchorage. Exc. 162-164. Girdwood is not a “political subdivision” of its own. \textit{Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State}, 743 P.2d 1352, 1363 (Alaska 1987).
\end{itemize}
\end{footnotesize}
Girdwood voters have the most influence over who is elected senator at 6.33% of the VAP.\textsuperscript{52}

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>House District</th>
<th>Total Population</th>
<th>Voting Age Population</th>
<th>VAP Population of Senate District</th>
<th>VAP Percentage of Senate District</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>18,284</td>
<td>13,957</td>
<td>27,198</td>
<td>51.3%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>18,205</td>
<td>13,241</td>
<td></td>
<td>48.7%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Girdwood</td>
<td>2,144</td>
<td>1,722</td>
<td></td>
<td>6.33%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Girdwood Plaintiffs asked the superior court to order the Board to pair House District 9 with either House Districts 13 (Board proposed plan “Option 2”) or 11 (Board withdrawn proposed plan “Option 1”). Below is a chart showing Girdwood voters’ percentage control of the Girdwood Plaintiffs’ preferred senate districts:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Board Proposed Plan “Option 2”</th>
<th>House District</th>
<th>Total Population</th>
<th>Voting Age Population</th>
<th>VAP Population of Senate District</th>
<th>VAP Percentage of Senate District</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>9</td>
<td>18,284</td>
<td>13,957</td>
<td>27,943</td>
<td>49.9%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>13</td>
<td>18,523</td>
<td>13,986</td>
<td></td>
<td>50.1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Girdwood</td>
<td>2,144</td>
<td>1,722</td>
<td></td>
<td>6.16%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Pairing House District 9 with House District 13, as contemplated by Board proposed plan “Option 2” reduces Girdwood’s control of who is elected as its senator from 6.33% to 6.16%.\textsuperscript{53} Thus, Judge Matthews’ Order reduces Girdwood’s proportional voting strength.

Simple math dictates that Senate District E maximizes, not usurps, the influence of the Girdwood area of Anchorage in selecting their senator. This maximization of the minority interest in the area (Girdwood) also disproves that improper intent was responsible for its creation.

\textsuperscript{52} Exc. 222-223.

\textsuperscript{53} Exc. 223.

ii. Senate District E Does Not Discriminate Against Any Politically Salient Class of Voter because House District 9 Selects the Same Candidates as House District 10

Senate District E does not usurp the voting strength of any “politically salient class” of voters.\(^{54}\) To adjudicate an equal protection vote dilution claim, the superior court was required to “make findings on the elements of a voter dilution claim, including whether a politically salient class of voters existed and whether the Board intentionally discriminated against that class.”\(^{55}\) In invalidating Senate District K previously, the superior court noted that Muldoon voters and Eagle River voters had different voting preferences. The superior court could not make such findings with regard to Senate District E’s pairing of Eagle River and the Anchorage Hillside, because Senate District E combines two districts that vote the same.

As a preliminary matter, Girdwood lacks the population to control any state election. Girdwood has a VAP of 1,722, which means it has 12.33% control over the election of the candidate who will represent House District 9 (VAP 13,957) in the Alaska \(^{54}\) In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 47 P.3d 1089, 1094 (Alaska 2002) (rejecting partisan gerrymandering claim because “there is no evidence that the Amended Final Plan invidiously minimizes the right of any politically salient class to an equal effective vote.”).

---

\(^{55}\) In re 2011 Redistricting Cases, 274 P.3d 466, 469 (Alaska 2012) (quoting In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 44 P.3d 141, 144 (Alaska 2002)).
Girdwood has only minimal say in who is elected to represent it in the Alaska House. And as shown above, Senate District E maximizes, as compared to the pairings in Option 2, Girdwood’s influence over who is elected to represent it in the Alaska Senate.

Senate District E does not dilute the group voting power of House District 9 because that district votes similarly to House District 10. Election return data from 2018 and earlier was used to conduct this analysis because the coronavirus pandemic caused a massive shift to mail-in ballots in 2020 which skew the most-recent statewide precinct-level election data.

Girdwood’s voting preference for Democratic candidates is an outlier in House District 9. In 2018, the Girdwood voting precinct voted 75.41% versus 24.34% in favor of Democratic candidate for U.S. Congress Alyse Galvin who ran against Republican 56 Challenges to House District 9, of which Girdwood is a part, and that was a district in the Board’s 2021 Redistricting Plan that was not challenged for error, are time-barred. See In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 47 P.3d 1089, 1091–92, n.16 (Alaska 2002) (holding that the challenge to the amended proclamation was not timely when the challenged appendages existed in the original proclamation).

---

57 The Board remains uncomfortable with analyzing election return results, and its members did not consider election results in adopting its four new Anchorage senate districts in its April 2022 Amended Redistricting Plan. However, because this Court credited the East Anchorage Plaintiffs’ expert witness Dr. Chase Hensel’s testimony comparing the election results between the house districts that comprised Senate District K in the 2021 Redistricting Plan, see FFCL and Order, at 68-69 (“Dr. Hensel testified that South Muldoon is a swing district, though it does lean Republican, while Eagle River is firmly Republican. This usurps South Muldoon’s voting strength in the event it chooses to elect a Democratic senator.”), the Board’s executive director reviewed that election return data at the request of counsel. See Exc. 220, 223-224.

58 Exc. 223 & n.1.
Don Young.\textsuperscript{59} For governor, Girdwood voters preferred Democrat Mark Begich 73.54% versus 23.16% to Republican Mike Dunleavy.\textsuperscript{60} Seven other precincts in House District 9 voted overwhelmingly for Republican Don Young over Democrat Alyse Galvin (57.28% versus 42.63%)\textsuperscript{61} and Republican Mike Dunleavy over Democrat Mark Begich (55.95% versus 41.55%).\textsuperscript{62}

Voters in the 2022 Proclamation House District 10 have similar candidate preferences to the Anchorage Hillside. They voted in favor of Don Young (R) to Alyse Galvin (D) on a 60.66%-38.76% basis, and in favor of Mike Dunleavy (R) to Mark Begich (D) on a 61.57%-35.17% basis.\textsuperscript{63} Like the voters of House District 9, the voters in House District 10 strongly preferred Republican candidates.

Pairing House District 9 with House District 13, as the superior court has ordered the Board to do, will not help elect the Democratic candidates that Girdwood prefers. Voters in House District 13 (Oceanview) voted in favor of Don Young on a 54.97%-44.71% basis.\textsuperscript{64} They voted in favor of Mike Dunleavy on a 53.57%-43.93% basis.\textsuperscript{65}

To the extent that this Court reads Alaska’s equal protection clause to require the \textsuperscript{59} Exc. 229. 598 Girdwood residents voted for Alyse Galvin and 193 voted for Don Young. A total of 793 Girdwood residents voted at the Girdwood precinct.

\textsuperscript{60} Exc. 229. 581 Girdwood residents voted for Begich and 183 voted for Dunleavy.

\textsuperscript{61} Exc. 229. The remainder of House District 9 cast 3,002 votes for Don Young and only 2,234 for Alyse Galvin.

\textsuperscript{62} Exc. 229. The remainder of House District 9 cast 2,932 votes for Mike Dunleavy and only 2,177 votes for Mark Begich.

\textsuperscript{63} Exc. 229.

\textsuperscript{64} Exc. 229.

\textsuperscript{65} Exc. 229.
Board to create senate districts out of house districts that vote similarly, Senate District E does that. This puts Senate District E in stark contrast to the Senate District K that this Court previously invalidated in its March 2022 Order.

iii. The Board’s Process Easily Passes the Neutral Factors Test Under the Equal Protection Analysis: the Board Deliberated and Adopted Senate District E in Public Meetings, Considered Alternatives, and Identified the Support Upon which Each Members’ Rational Decision was Made

Judge Matthews disregarded the neutral factors test because it did not allow him to reach the desired result. That test looks to whether there is evidence of secretive proceedings, regional partisanship, and meandering district boundaries.

On remand, the Board performed its work transparently. All eight meetings of the Board were properly noticed and publicly held.66 Not a single executive session was held on remand.67 All deliberations of the Board occurred in public,68 and the public was able to view and provide comment to the Board on the plans considered by the Board.69 There is no evidence in the record of any secret meetings outside of the public eye or prearranged decisions relating to adoption of senate districts that occurred off the record.70 Given the accusations made against the Board previously, the Board made sure

66 Exc. 550-555.
67 Exc. 226.
68 See Exc. 205.
69 Exc. 550-555.
70 Exc. 122-123 (Member Borromeo during motion to adopt Option 2 at April 13 meeting: “I’m not sure where Budd lies at this point, so I’ll welcome everybody into the discussion.”).
there was no room for reasonable assumptions and speculation. Despite acknowledging that the Board’s process was appropriate, and based on no more than the fact that three members continued to vote the same, Judge Matthews speculated that there was some measure of ongoing secrecy.

The Board considered and weighed the testimony received from the public as to both options.71 There was persuasive public testimony that the Hillside (HD 9) and Eagle River Valley (HD 10) shared common characteristics and interests. Below the Board cites to much of that testimony,72 but a few examples are illustrative. Dan Saddler of Eagle River testified:

Residents of these districts of -- their lives are characterized by their life on the foothills and the upper slopes of the Chugach mountains. That means they share a lot of common interests. While lots of the rest of Anchorage residents rely on local or state road maintenance, people in these districts rely on their local road service boards to provide for maintenance of their roads.

You know, residents of Districts 9 and [10] face a lot of similar living conditions and hazards. They live on the urban one at the interface. It means they face the risk of wildfires and of bears getting into their houses and threatening their household and their families. They face the challenge of less reliable utility service, extremes of weather, wind, and snow, as the recent avalanche on the Hiland Road dramatically demonstrates.73

---

71 See generally ARB2001094-001798; Exc. 123 (Member Simpson at April 13 meeting: “I’m sure, like the rest of you, I’ve gone through and read the written testimony and the transcripts of the oral testimony and have tried my best to keep up to speed on all of that and to take into consideration what -- what everybody said. . . . so I just want to let the people that submitted written testimony know that I consider that as important as somebody who came in person.”).

72 See Exc. 211.

73 Exc. 004-064 (April 5 Board Meeting Tr.).
Others voiced concern that the Board’s proposed plan “Option 2” would usurp the ability of JBER residents to elect a senator of their choosing by not pairing it with an Eagle River district and instead pairing it with downtown Anchorage. For example, Peters Creek resident Steven Todd testified:

I am a resident of Chugiak-Eagle River in the Peters Creek neighborhood, 99567. I am also a veteran of the U.S. Military. As a proud citizen of this country, and resident of Alaska, I'm sure to vote. But I'm not deeply involved in the political processes. I've never held office in any political party. I was prohibited from doing so while I was on active duty. Now that I'm a veteran, I could, but it's not how I choose to use my free time. I guess you could say I'm just a normal voter. However, I felt compelled to call today to testify because I was made aware of something which greatly disturbs me. I saw that proposal #2 is being considered which would link together the JBER military base with the neighborhoods in downtown Anchorage for a state Senate seat. I cannot think of any combination which would be more disrespectful to us as veterans. Active duty operations are 24/7 while in state, being sent TDY out of state for training, and long deployments overseas, makes it tough for military members to get ballots mailed in on time. But we do our best, because it is yet another way that we serve our communities, state and country. Downtown Anchorage is a world away from JBER. Downtown is comprised of mostly white collar workers with very high incomes worried about which restaurant to dine out. JBER is middle to low income families clipping coupons to buy groceries at the commissary, or even sometimes taking out payday loans in order to fill the gas tank. There is just no justification for combining these distinct and separate communities. In my twenty plus years living in Eagle River and Chugiak, the majority of my neighbors have been active duty and veterans, I see there is another better alternative senate plan, 3B, which is based upon logic. I am one of thousands of veterans and military members who live in Eagle River-Chugiak, Peters Creek is the only reasonable pairing for JBER is with my district, #24. This is simply pairing the military in district 23 with the military in district 24. Choosing to separate us by sticking us with a district that is widely different than us would be a great disservice. I urge you to reject the disjointed proposal, #2, and instead support the alternative plan, #3B. Thank you.\(^74\)

\(^74\) Exc. 144 (emphasis added).
And Chugiak resident Elyce Santerre shared similar concerns:

I hadn’t commented previously because I didn’t think Chugiak had a dog in the fight about whether south Eagle River paired with South Anchorage (although I have to say, that seems to make sense culturally). I didn’t realize that the other alternative being proposed was not to pair them with another section of Muldoon, or with the bases, but to take the bases away from pairing with us and pairing them with a downtown Anchorage district. That’s just blatant gerrymandering. The bases have historically leaned conservative, but with low turnout. Democrat planners apparently can’t stand the thought of them being paired with another conservative district, never mind the close cultural links between the bases and all the military retirees and off-base personnel in Eagle River/Chugiak. They’re trying to nab an “extra” liberal senator for Anchorage, at the cost of the greater Eagle River/Chugiak area. I thought such concerns weren’t allowed? I thought decisions were supposed to be made based on cultural affinity and contiguous geography? I and many of my neighbors work or worked for years on the bases. I still shop there. I don’t want to see them “hijacked” for a political agenda. That’s just not right. I’d testify in person, but I’m home sick and don’t want to bring my coughing and sneezing out in public.75

Suzanne Fischetti further offered support for Option 3B:

But I do support a Chugach Mountain district as laid out in Map 3B. When you look at the map, it’s clear that the rest of Anchorage is cut into little blocks, but Districts 22 [HD 10] and 9 are the two large districts with thousands of acres of parks and mountains. There are none others like these.

The Upper Hillside of Anchorage has been combined with Eagle River Valley in the past, both as a House and a Senate pairing. That’s because there are legitimate, logical reasons to do so. That is just as true today as it was in the past, maybe even more so because parts of Anchorage have become even more urbanized. Those in the outer areas, like Eagle River Valley and Hillside, have chosen for -- a more suburban experience, surrounded by mountains and wildlife instead of the city life. That’s why bringing together Districts 22 [HD 10] and 9 makes sense, and I urge you to choose Map 3 which does this.

75  Exc. 077. See also Exc. 092-095 (Lance Pruitt Testimony).
Maps that carve away portions of the military base from its primary district would also be a mistake. JBER belongs with JBER. That means Districts 23 [JBER] and 24 [North Eagle River/Chugiak/Eklutna] belong together, as shown in the map called 3B. That’s the one to support if you care about our military. You’ve already broken up JBER into separate House districts. We owe it to the military to put the base back together by pairing Districts 23 and 24, which makes the base whole again.\footnote{Exc. 078-081 (Suzanne Fischetti Testimony)}

All Board members explained their rationale on the record during the April 13 Board meeting. The majority of the Board selected Option 3B, which included Senate District E, because Option 2 resulted in pairing JBER with downtown Anchorage, which they believed was a poor pairing.

Member Simpson articulated the considerations that went into his decision to select Option 3B that included Senate District E:

So on the -- as far as the motion before us on option No. 2, I personally find the pairing of 23 and 24, being the military with Chugiak, to be the more compelling version or solution.

I think pairing the military bases with downtown overlooks JBER as a significant community of interest, and I think that, in itself, could expose us to a constitutional challenge from that constituency.

We heard a lot of testimony about interactions between Eagle River, Chugiak, and JBER, that that area has essentially developed as a bedroom community for -- for the military families. They send their kids to middle school and high school there.

\ldots

And there’s nothing wrong with the pairing of 9 and 22. They have -- they are contiguous. You look at the map, they have a lengthy, maybe 35-mile, border that is shared. They consist of two districts that are, I think, socioeconomically and demographically similar in many ways.

\ldots

To kind of wrap up, I want to briefly address the charges of partisan gerrymandering that have been tossed around with some frequency throughout this process.

The final day of testimony, on Saturday, two Republican senators and a member from Governor Dunleavy’s administration spoke out against option 3B.

And I can note here that I am an appointee of the governor’s and yet I find myself kind of lining up in favor of option 3, even though somebody from that office apparently has -- thinks the other one is a better idea.

If the board’s option 3 is some kind of naked partisan attempt to gerrymander the map to protect Republicans, as some have claimed, then why is it that Republican Senators Lora Reinbold and Roger Holland have testified so vehemently against it? Apparently they feel that something in option 3 harms them in some way. But if it does, that fact obviously clearly goes against the argument that any of the drafters of option 3 made any effort to protect or enhance Republican seats of interests.

So having considered all of that, I have -- I believe that if there’s anything partisan in either of these two maps, the most partisan is the proposed pairing of JBER and downtown. I believe this would diminish the voice of our valued Alaska military personnel. I can’t support that, and I am, just to be clear, going to be voting for option 3B.77

Member Marcum similarly voiced her support for Option 3B, which arose at least in part, out of the concerns raised by the senate pairings in Option 2:

So I’m very uncomfortable with proposal 2, and that’s primarily because it moves District 23, JBER, from its current pairing with District 24 by linking it with downtown, which is District 17. Downtown has almost nothing in common with the military base. It absolutely makes the least sense of any possible pairing for District 23, JBER. Downtown is the arts, right? It’s tourism, it’s lots of professional services, and that is not what makes up JBER. So I really fear that a District 17 and District 23 pairing could be viewed -- could be viewed as, like, an intentional action to break up the military community.78

Chairman Binkley also articulated the reasons he felt Option 3B had the more

77 Exc. 118-124.
78 Exc. 130-131; see also Exc. 099 (Saddler testimony).
appropriate pairings, and which were supported by the public testimony received\textsuperscript{79}:

\textit{[W]e’ve already heard that there are significant similarities between District 22, Eagle River, and District 9, the Hillside. And we heard many, many people testify that both Eagle River and the Upper Hillside in Anchorage are generally more rural parts of the municipality. They have larger lots sizes, mostly single-family homes.}

Many of these areas, it was indicated in testimony, are served by road service districts, which is different than the other more core areas of the municipality. They share the Chugach Mountains and the Chugach State Park, which are really defining geographic features.

And these people, it was also testified that they’re close to the mountains. They deal with wildlife closer to their homes. There are higher snow loads that they deal with in the mountains, and also wildfire dangers, as well, that they share.

So I can also appreciate that these similarities really could be important to a senator[.]

\ldots

And I think District 22 and District 9 are both those large, more rural, and share a really long, physical border. And that, to me, makes them contiguous, as pointed out by everybody, that’s required by our \textsuperscript{79} Exc. 130-131 (Suzanne Fischetti Testimony); Exc. 092-095 (Lance Pruitt Testimony); Exc. 066-068 (discussing preference for Option 3B, communities both maintain their own roads, economic similarities, neighborhood settings, and snow management); Exc. 069-074 (fire management and firefighting limitations, as well as shared Bicentennial Park); Exc. 079-081 (discussing that Districts 22 and 9 are the only two large districts with several acres of parks and mountains within Anchorage, have been paired previously, offer suburban lifestyle, and challenges with wildlife); Exc. 082-083 (supporting option 3B as more rural districts and indicating she believes pairing JBER with downtown would diminish the voting strength of JBER); Exc. 089-091 (discussing JBER residents sending children to school in Eagle River, sharing a 35 mile border between the districts, and similar demographics); Exc. 096-100 (both districts semi-rural areas with people living on the Chugach Mountains, and also discussing disagreement with pairing JBER with downtown); Exc. 084 (zoning similarities); Exc. 085 (fire, water systems, lot size, roads and lack of roads, recreation); Exc. 086 (Girdwood resident in support); Exc. 102 (discussing long history of shared senate representation with Anchorage or Mat-Su); Exc. 101 (Eagle River resident supporting option 3B).

Chairman Binkley also described his extensive experience with downtown Anchorage and the dissimilarities between it and JBER. Sharing concerns expressed by two other board members, Chairman Binkley reiterated: “We’ve also heard concerns that putting the more conservative or swing district of the military base with downtown would drown out the military voters. That really echoes a concern that the Superior Court, I think, had in its decision about regional partisanship.”

Even though Member Bahnke preferred proposed plan “Option 2,” she acknowledged the similarities between House Districts 9 and 10: “I don’t disagree that there are things in common between Eagle River and Hillside and Eagle River and JBER. We heard from a lot of folks that there are actually a lot of things in common.” The other Board member that voted in favor of Option 2, Member Borromeo, also noted commonalities between District 22 and 9.

In selecting a map that is consistent with binding legal authority, acknowledges similarities between the paired districts, and seeks to maintain a military community of interest, the Board acted rationally.

80 Exc. 134-136.
81 Exc. 137-138.
82 Exc. 139.
83 Exc. 105-106.
84 Exc. 072 (stating in response to testimony in support of Option 3B: “Fantastic. You offered some specific examples, and I appreciate it because I’m learning a lot more about the commonalities between 22 and 9.”).
iv. The Trial Court Erred in Applying an Expanded Equal Protection Test Inconsistent with Alaska Law

The superior court skirted the neutral factors test by adopting a new test from federal law. Contrary to this Court’s decision in Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State, which rejected heightened scrutiny in favor of the neutral factors analysis, the trial court cites inapposite federal caselaw and ultimately required the Board to prove that it no longer had discriminatory intent.

The only federal case cited by the trial court that concerns equal protection in the redistricting setting is Abbott v. Perez. Yet that case concerns fundamental rights, and therefore applied a heightened equal protection analysis not applicable to a political gerrymandering claim under the Alaska Constitution.

Abbott was about claims of racial (as opposed to political) gerrymandering by the Texas Legislature when it relied on maps that had previously been determined to be racially-motivated. Based partially on the trial court’s analysis that required Texas to demonstrate its prior illegitimate intent had been cured, the U.S. Supreme Court held:

> The allocation of the burden of proof and the presumption of legislative good faith are not changed by a finding of past discrimination. Past discrimination cannot, in the manner of original sin, condemn governmental action that is not itself unlawful.

In other words, Abbott holds the opposite of Judge Matthews’ core conviction that “once a sinner, always as a sinner.” Instead, Abbott directs that courts are not to presume

---

86 Id. at 2313.
87 Id. at 2324 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).
another branch of government is still purposefully discriminating when it fixes districts on remand.

To support his conclusion that the Board was discriminating against the Anchorage hillside, the trial court improperly focused on evidence of Board members’ political affiliations and webinar solicitations from political organization, as if Board members are stripped of their constitutional rights to associate with groups of their choosing or to read and write emails. It similarly seized upon a handful of text messages between majority board members, while ignoring text messages between majority and minority board members, to cobble together a strained basis to conclude the Board’s discriminatory purpose lived on during the remand proceedings. The superior court paints Member Simpson as a diehard partisan, but overlooks that he voted with Members Bahnke and Borromeo to adopt an Anchorage house district plan which Members Binkley and Marcum opposed. A curious strategy for a member who the superior court attacks as being part of a secret redistricting “coalition” with Binkley and Marcum.

The direct evidence in the record suggests that the Board’s intent on remand was

---

88 Exc. 597.
89 Exc. 001 (texts between Members Binkley and Borromeo); Exc. 002; Exc. 087 (text message from Member Borromeo to Member Simpson asking for call).
90 In the 2001 Redistricting cycle, Judge Rindner specifically endorsed members of the Board meeting with a wide variety of public and private individuals concerning redistricting. In re 2001 Redistricting, 2002 WL 34119573, at 18, 21 (Alaska Super. Ct. Feb. 1, 2002) (citing Gaffney v. Cummings, 412 U.S. 735, 752-54 (1973)) (“[A] plan [is not] invalid merely because districts are drawn with a political agenda or with an awareness of the likely political consequences.”).
91 Exc. 569.
legitimate. The Board sought to comply with the remand order.⁹² The Board paired the two Muldoon districts as desired by the East Anchorage Plaintiffs,⁹³ sought to minimize disruption to the portions of the original plan that had already been through litigation and had been endorsed by the Courts as constitutional, and conducted a transparent, open process on remand.⁹⁴

The fact that the majority of the Board also rejected the call from minority board members to push through an amended plan without public testimony further cuts against a finding of illegitimate or bad faith. The Board should not be damned if they do and damned if they do not.

The trial court’s reliance on distinguishable inapposite federal equal protection law is misplaced, and does not support imputing discriminatory intent on a Board that chose rational Anchorage senate pairings but upset the Democratic party by not segregating voters they disfavor (Eagle River) from Anchorage’s other election districts.

B. The Superior Court Overstepped Its Role Under Article VI by Ordering the Board to Adopt Senate Districts It had Rejected

Alaska courts should not draw election districts, but that is what Judge Matthews did in ordering “the Board to adopt Option 2 on an interim basis for the 2022 general

---

⁹² The Board unanimously removed Option 1 from consideration on remand because it required more alterations than the other two proposed options, and could result in additional litigation. Exc. 075-076 (April 6 Meeting Tr.).

⁹³ Exc. 0145 (ARB Website Showing Options 2 and 3B both including district pairing north and south Muldoon house districts to form senate district).

⁹⁴ See Exc. 205-206.
Alaska courts do not dictate the boundaries of any election districts; instead, they adjudicate claims brought to them and invalidate unlawful election districts. The Alaska Constitution gives the Board, not the courts, the authority to draw the district lines for house and senate districts. Article VI, Section 4 unambiguously states:

The Redistricting Board shall establish forty house districts, with each house district to elect one member of the house of representatives. The board shall establish twenty senate districts, each composed of two house districts, with each senate district to elect one senator.

Under Article VI, Section 11, the Board’s redistricting plan is subject to judicial review for “error”: “Any qualified voter may apply to the superior court to compel the Redistricting Board, by mandamus or otherwise, to perform its duties under this article or to correct any error in redistricting.”

This constitutional structure is why in previous redistricting cycles, since Section 11’s enactment in 1998, no Alaska court has mandated the Board adopt any specific house or senate district. Such a ruling runs afoul of separation of powers and the explicit language of Article VI.

During the 2011 redistricting cycle, the Alaska Supreme Court invalidated the Board’s first redistricting plan because the Board did not follow the Hickel process, and remanded the case “to the superior court with instructions to further remand to the Board.

---

95 Exc. 600 (emphasis in original).
96 Alaska Const. art. VI, § 4.
97 Alaska Const. art. VI, § 11.
to formulate a plan . . . .”98 The Board adopted a second plan, legal challenges were filed, and again the Supreme Court invalidated the second plan as failing to comply with the Hickel process.99 Notably, however, after invalidation of the Board’s second redistricting plan the Supreme Court did not direct that the court system should promulgate a third plan. The Court remanded the case for the Board to create a third plan: “We affirm the decision of the superior court and require the board to draft a new plan for the 2014 elections.”100 This history of deference to the Board is consistent with the Alaska Constitution’s text that the Board, not the courts, “shall establish forty house districts . . . [and] twenty senate districts.”101

In this redistricting cycle, this Court ruled that the “Cantwell Appendage” rendered House District 36 unconstitutionally non-compact and told the Board to fix it: “We therefore REVERSE the superior court’s determination [that House District 36 was compact including the Cantwell Appendage], and remand to the superior court to remand this aspect of the house districts to the Board to correct the constitutional error.”102 Like prior redistricting cycles, the Supreme Court adjudicated the constitutionality of House District 36, invalidated it, and remanded the matter to the Board to create a new redistricting plan. This Court did not draw a new district.

100 Id. at 1033.
101 Alaska Const. art. VI, § 4.
102 Order on Pets. for Review, S-18332, at 4-5.
Judge Matthews erred by compelling the Board to adopt specific senate pairings that it had already rejected. The Alaska Constitution does not permit Alaska courts to dictate the boundaries of election districts, including whether areas within the Municipality of Anchorage like Chugiak and Eagle River must be paired together in a senate district. That authority is reserved to the Board.\(^{103}\)

V. CONCLUSION

The Girdwood Plaintiffs’ concession that the Board’s plan would be allowable if it had been adopted by different people should have been fatal to their claim, because a legislative district is either constitutional or it is not. In playing along with the notion that an equal protection challenge can be decided based on determining the political affiliations of Board members and looking at what newsletters they read, the trial court adopted an approach that will make future redistricting tasks nearly impossible. All Board members bring with them their personnel values, ideas, and experiences. The Board’s work product must be evaluated based on its constitutional merit, and on that standard Senate District E should be upheld and the Board’s plan should be approved. The trial court’s “once a sinner, always a sinner” analysis will turn future Redistricting litigation into an even uglier mudslinging contest to impugn Board members and spouses so that partisans can obtain through the courts outcomes they did not achieve through the Board.

DATED at Anchorage, Alaska, this 18th day of May, 2022.

SCHWABE, WILLIAMSON & WYATT, P.C.
Attorneys for Alaska Redistricting Board

By:

Matthew Singer, ABA No. 9911072
Email: msinger@schwabe.com
Lee C. Baxter, ABA No. 1510085
Email: lbaxter@schwabe.com
Kayla J. F. Tanner, ABA No. 2010092
Email: ktanner@schwabe.com
IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF ALASKA

In the Matter of the 2021 Redistricting Cases
(Alaska Redistricting Board/Girdwood Plaintiffs/East Anchorage Plaintiffs)

PETITION FOR REVIEW FROM THE SUPERIOR COURT
THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT AT ANCHORAGE
THE HONORABLE THOMAS A. MATTHEWS

LOUIS THEISS, KEN WAUGH, AND JENNIFER WINGARD’S OPPOSITION TO ALASKA REDISTRICTING BOARD’S PETITION FOR REVIEW OF MAY 16, 2022 FINDINGS OF FACTS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW
TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION .................................................................................................. 1

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS AND PROCEEDINGS .............................................. 3

A. The Superior Court Found Evidence of a Secret Coalition between Majority Board Members. ................................................................................................................ 3

B. The Superior Court Found Evidence of Partisan Objectives. ................................. 8

III. IMMEDIATE REVIEW IS APPROPRIATE ...................................................... 9

IV. ARGUMENT ......................................................................................................... 9

A. The Superior Court Conducted a Careful and Proper Equal Protection Analysis. 10

   1. The Superior Court Properly Applied the Neutral Factors Test to Determine that the Board Majority Had an Illegitimate Purpose. . 10

   2. The Superior Court’s Discussion of Federal Law Was Reasonable and Supported Its Decision to Consider the Record as a Whole in Its Analysis.................................................................................... 13

   3. The Superior Court Properly Considered the Board’s Decision to Ignore Public Testimony and Conduct a Public Process for Show as Evidence of the Board’s Improper Intent. 16

   4. The Superior Court Properly Considered the Board’s Decision to Ignore Local Boundaries, Local Government Preferences, and Communities of Interest as Evidence of the Board’s Improper Intent. ............................................................. 17

   5. The Superior Court Correctly Found, Based on Expert Testimony, that Option 3B Led to Dilution of District 9’s Vote. ................. 24

   6. A House District Created in 2001 Has Little Relevance to a Senate District Created for Partisan Reasons in 2022. ...................... 26

B. The Superior Court Ordered an Appropriate Interim Remedy and Remanded the Proclamation to the Board. ................................................................. 28

V. CONCLUSION .................................................................................................... 32
TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

- N. Carolina State Cont. of NAACP v. McCrory, 831 F.3d 204 (4th Cir. 2016) ............ 14

Constitutional Provisions

- Alaska Const. art. VI, § 11 .............................................................................................. 30
I. INTRODUCTION

Louis Theiss, Ken Waugh, and Jennifer Wingard ("Girdwood Parties") oppose the Alaska Redistricting Board’s ("Board") Petition for Review.

On February 16, 2022, the superior court ruled that the Board—the entity charged under the Alaska Constitution with making fair, equitable, representative legislative maps for the State of Alaska—had engaged in partisan gerrymandering in violation of the Alaska Constitution’s Equal Protection Clause. Specifically, it found that the Board intentionally and illegitimately divided the two Eagle River house districts to increase Eagle River’s Senate representation and dilute the vote in East Anchorage for partisan political reasons. Notably, the superior court determined that the Board had reached a secret agreement not on the entirety of the Senate map, but on a single component of it: the division of the Eagle River districts. That determination was upheld on review by this Court and the Anchorage senate pairings were remanded to the Board.

The Board majority, however, entered the remand process with the same secret goal it had on November 10, 2021: to split Eagle River to increase its preferred party’s representation in the Alaska Senate. The Board majority again engaged in secret communications, again pushed through a shared agenda of splitting Eagle River for partisan advantage, and again ignored communities of interest, local boundaries, community preferences, and in some instances the actual borders and geography of the districts at issue. Overwhelmingly, the public asked the Board to keep Eagle River together, to keep South Anchorage together, to keep downtown together. The Board disregarded all of this, and instead held up a pretextual, manufactured community of interest as a pretext for its partisan goal of providing Eagle River—a community that contains less than 5% of Alaska’s population—the ability to elect 10% of Alaska’s senators. Although the precise pairings were different, the Board did exactly what it had done before, at the expense of South Anchorage, Girdwood, and Turnagain Arm communities in District 9.

The Board did this because it has never accepted the courts’ rulings. Since February 16, 2022, the date the superior court issued its first decision, the Board majority and Board counsel have studiously avoided any reference to the courts’ findings that the Board engaged in partisan gerrymandering. Instead, in litigation summaries at its public meetings, in e-mail newsletters, and even in its post-remand briefing to the superior court, the Board blandly characterized the courts’ East Anchorage rulings as “invalidating Senate District K”. The superior court noted this in its April 16 decision, remarking that “the Board … selectively ignores this court's prior findings on discriminatory intent.”

The Board’s Petition for Review is no different. It mentions the courts’ prior findings on intent only in its efforts to distance them from the present case. The only lesson the Board appears to have learned is the importance of saying the words it believes

---

1 See, e.g., Pet. at 4; ARB2000153-54 (April 2, 2022 meeting) (counsel stating the Board was ordered to “address the constitutional deficiency in Senate District K”).

2 Exc. 0572.
the courts want to hear—as the superior court put it, to “parrot the language” from court orders.³

The superior court was rightfully “wary of an order that effectively lights a path both legally and procedurally to creating a gerrymandered map.”⁴ The Girdwood Parties ask this Court to approach this case with the same caution, and to ensure that future Boards cannot launder their gerrymanders through the courts.

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS AND PROCEEDINGS

The Girdwood Plaintiffs largely agree with the Board’s recitation of the facts and proceedings leading up to its Petition—such as it is. The Board’s version is notable less for what it says than for what it omits. The Board’s recitation of the facts omits the significant behind-the-scenes narrative that the superior court found to be compelling evidence of secretive procedures and partisan objectives.

A. The Superior Court Found Evidence of a Secret Coalition between Majority Board Members.

In its May 16 order, the superior court referenced its prior finding of secretive procedures in the East Anchorage challenge, and noted that the Girdwood Parties had “present[ed] evidence that some secretive procedures were continually used following remand, suggesting the Board created the April 2022 Senate pairings with illegitimate purpose.”⁵ After reviewing the evidence, the superior court found that its “observation

³ Exc. 0593.
⁴ Exc. 0572.
⁵ Exc. 0569.
from the first round of this litigation appears once again to be true: ‘The public portion of the record leads to only one reasonable inference: some sort of coalition or at least a tacit understanding between Members Marcum, Simpson, and Binkley.’

This finding was based on evidence presented by the Girdwood Parties demonstrating that substantive private communications between the three majority Board members continued throughout the remand process. Concerningly for a public body that already once been found to have engaged in improper secretive procedures, the Board appeared to have been counseled to avoid putting things in writing. In an e-mail on April 1, Member Borromeo referenced this obliquely, stating: “And before we go down the 'don't put this or that in email' all of what I'm saying is public record.” While Member Borromeo appeared eager to have her comments made public, other Board members were more circumspect. While the record does not reveal exactly what the majority Board members said to each other in their private side communications, it does establish they engaged in those side communications, and that those communications led to coordination between those Board members on everything from the timing of the remand process to the ultimate decision on which map to support.

With regard to timing, on March 25, the Board’s executive director circulated draft agendas to the Board that showed the Board adopting a new proclamation by April 6.

---

6 Exc. 0597 (May 16, 2022, Order Re Girdwood Challenges to Amended Plan) (quoting February 16, 2022 FFCL).
7 Exc. 0809.
8 Exc. 0802.
These were based on an anticipated April 1 ruling from this Court, but the ruling in fact came later in the day on March 25. Early on March 28, Member Borromeo e-mailed the Board to propose a sooner meeting time in light of the early ruling.\textsuperscript{9}

Chair Binkley and Member Simpson had a private phone conversation on March 28, after receiving Member Borromeo’s proposal.\textsuperscript{10} Subsequently, on March 31, Member Simpson sent an e-mail to the group that urged for a lengthier public process.\textsuperscript{11} Mr. Torkelson reminded the Board that the public notices indicated the Board would adopt a revised plan on April 6.\textsuperscript{12} Early the next day, April 1, 2022, Members Binkley and Marcum had a private phone call.\textsuperscript{13} Many e-mails followed, with Members Borromeo and Bahnke objecting to drawing out the remand process.\textsuperscript{14} Board counsel participated in these conversations, but his comments, and certain Board member comments, were redacted. Ultimately, at its April 4 meeting, the Board majority settled on a lengthy public process lasting until April 13 or 14.

\textsuperscript{9} Exc. 0803.
\textsuperscript{10} Exc. 0804.
\textsuperscript{11} Exc. 0811.
\textsuperscript{12} Exc. 0811-12.
\textsuperscript{13} Exc. 0813.
\textsuperscript{14} Member Bahnke observed that drawing out the process could “smack [of] delay tactics” and lead to accusations that “the board majority will try to delay as much as possible to force an e[ll]ection under the current proclamation.” Exc. 0809. At one point, Chair Binkley attempted to cancel the April 2 meeting, Exc. 0810, but Members Borromeo and Bahnke insisted it take place so that the public testimony process could begin. Exc. 0808.
The record contains evidence of other private phone calls that took place between the three majority Board members.\textsuperscript{15} Phone records were not provided, so additional conversations may have taken place; these are merely the ones referenced in the members’ disclosed text messages.

Notably, neither Member Borromeo nor Member Bahnke were included in any of these post-remand phone conversations.\textsuperscript{16} The Board can point to only two instances of side communications between the majority and minority Board members. One of these involved Member Borromeo asking Member Simpson for a call on February 16, prior to the original appeal and remand, and then later asking if he would be attending a meeting in person.\textsuperscript{17} The other was limited correspondence by text between Chair Binkley and Member Borromeo largely on meeting details such as technological and audio issues.\textsuperscript{18} There is no other evidence of side communications between the majority and minority Board members and certainly none rising to the level of the frequent calls, resulting in observable coordination, that occurred within the Board majority.

\textsuperscript{15} Exc. 0813; Exc. 0934.

\textsuperscript{16} The Board has cited to only two instances of side communications between the majority and minority Board members. One of these involved Member Borromeo asking Member Simpson for a call on February 16, prior to the original appeal and remand, and then asking if he would be attending a meeting in person. Exc. 087. The other was limited correspondence by text between Chair Binkley and Member Borromeo largely on meeting details such as technological and audio issues. Exc. 002. There is no other evidence in the record suggesting there were side communications between the majority and minority Board members and certainly none rising to the level of the frequent calls, resulting in observable coordination, that occurred within the Board majority.

\textsuperscript{17} Exc. 087.

\textsuperscript{18} Exc. 002.
Additional evidence supported the superior court’s finding that the three majority Board members had reached a side consensus on the outcome of the remand process. On April 13, 2022, in the midst of the Board’s public deliberations, right after he had shared his comments favoring Option 3B and while the other Board members were commenting, Member Simpson had a text exchange with a family member, where they made comments such as “John is doing well” and “Bethany doing well too”\(^\text{19}\)—language that implies those Board members’ comments were being made in service of a pre-arranged and pre-discussed common goal.

A recent development further supports the superior court’s finding that the Board majority engaged in secretive processes and side agreements. On May 18, 2022, Member Borromeo sent an e-mail to the Court filing e-mail address, copying all parties, stating that the Board had filed its Petition for Review without authority and without calling a public meeting, based solely on the decision of Chair Binkley, Member Simpson, and Board counsel; and that the full Board had not even been informed of the appeal until they received a copy of the already-filed Petition.\(^\text{20}\) Member Borromeo further noted that the Board majority and Board counsel were not communicating with her or returning her calls. Member Borromeo’s message, if true (as it appears to be based on the lack of any public Board meeting since April 13, 2022), demonstrates a lack of respect for the minority Board members and an even more brazen disregard for the Alaska Constitution, \(^\text{19}\) Exc. 0805.

\(^\text{20}\) The Girdwood Parties included this message in their Notice to the Court filed May 19, 2022.
which explicitly states in Article VI, § 9 that “[c]oncurrence of three members of the Redistricting Board is required for actions of the Board[.]”\(^{21}\) The Girdwood Parties acknowledge that Member Borromeo’s e-mail is not part of the trial court record but, as it was presented directly to this Court, feel compelled to mention it here.

B. The Superior Court Found Evidence of Partisan Objectives.

The superior court found that “the evidence is quite clear that a pattern of markedly partisan correspondence between specific Board Members occurred, and aligns with the intent found during the first round of litigation.”\(^{22}\) This “clear” evidence included e-mails showing that “Member Marcum was subscribed to the mailing list of the National Republican Redistricting Trust ("NRRT")[, an organization devoted to preserving ‘shared conservative values for future generations’ through the redistricting process[.]”\(^{23}\)

The Court determined that “the only reasonable inference that can be drawn is that Member Marcum’s stated partisan goal from the first round of redistricting remained paramount in her work on the Board.”\(^{24}\) The superior court also noted its prior finding that Member Simpson had been appointed because of his Republican party affiliation, and cited evidence the Girdwood Parties had presented regarding Member Simpson’s ongoing preoccupation with partisan politics.\(^{25}\) The superior court concluded that its \(^{21}\) The Girdwood Parties intend to address the authority issue by separate motion.

\(^{22}\) Exc. 0571.

\(^{23}\) Exc. 0571.

\(^{24}\) Exc. 0597.

\(^{25}\) Exc. 0570. This evidence included e-mails showing that Member Simpson was reading partisan blog posts, including posts that focused on the partisan political effects of the two proposed maps—such as a post from conservative blog Must Read Alaska.
“previous illegitimate intent finding renders such partisan and behind-the-scenes correspondence all the more suspect.”

The superior court also found that Board’s own statements prove its partisan political intent. It found that “Board members either knew or assumed that JBER residents preferred the same political candidates as Eagle River, i.e., Republicans. The Board thus candidly admits that its decision to pair JBER with North Eagle River was to amplify conservative voices by creating a safe Republican senate seat.”

III. IMMEDIATE REVIEW IS APPROPRIATE

The Girdwood Plaintiffs agree with the Board that immediate review is appropriate.

IV. ARGUMENT

The superior court engaged in a detailed, multi-layered analysis that provided an orderly approach to the evidence presented by the parties. While the Girdwood Plaintiffs agree that clarity from this Court on the applicable legal standards and tests would be helpful to future Boards, they disagree that the superior court’s decision was riddled with errors. Rather, on an extraordinarily short timeframe, the superior court properly considered the entire record, identified the issues and controlling law to apply to this situation, and correctly conducted an equal protection analysis to find that the Board had,

26 Exc. 0571.
27 Exc. 0592.
once again, adopted a map intended to provide Eagle River with twice the representation its population warrants—but this time, at the expense of District 9 voters.

A. The Superior Court Conducted a Careful and Proper Equal Protection Analysis.

1. The Superior Court Properly Applied the Neutral Factors Test to Determine that the Board Majority Had an Illegitimate Purpose.

The Board repeatedly asserts that the superior court ignored this Court’s “neutral factors” test—but this assertion suggests that the Board may not have actually read the superior court’s decision. The superior court in fact devoted an entire section of its Equal Protection analysis to the neutral factors test. The superior court considered the totality of the circumstances and listed factors that this Court has deemed relevant to the analysis into the legitimacy of a Board’s purpose, including, e.g., “secretive procedures” and “boundaries that selectively ignore political subdivisions and communities of interest.”

The superior court was familiar with the neutral factors test because, as the Board notes, it had applied it in the East Anchorage challenge. But it acknowledged a complexity in the Girdwood challenge: this Court has no precedent addressing what weight a prior finding of discriminatory intent should be given in a later proceeding.

28 Pet. at 3 (superior court “refused to apply Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State’s neutral factors test…”), 22 (“Judge Matthews disregarded the neutral factors test…”), 30 (“The superior court skirted the neutral factors test…”).

29 Exc. 567-577.

30 Exc. 0566.

31 Exc. 0568-69.
The superior therefore addressed, in detail, the new post-remand facts that supported its finding that the prior illegitimate intent carried over into the remand: specifically, new evidence that the Board majority continued to have secret communications; that they continued to act in concert, suggesting an ongoing coalition; and that they continued to have partisan objectives. The superior court further noted Member Marcum’s false insistence—contrary to the record and to its prior factual findings—that she had never looked at incumbent data\(^{32}\) and Chair Binkley’s refusal to vote to correct the Cantwell appendage because he disagreed with this Court’s ruling,\(^{33}\) finding it “unacceptable” for “any Board member [to feel] it was appropriate to act contrary to the clear direction of the highest Court of this State[.]”\(^{34}\)

The Court next addressed the Board’s approach to communities of interest, noting that Senate District E’s boundaries “ignore the Eagle River and South Anchorage communities of interest”\(^{35}\) and the mere fact that there are certain similarities between the districts “does not inform the analysis for Equal Protection purposes.”\(^{36}\) The superior court concluded that the evidence showed that the Board majority “insisted continuously that Senate District L remain intact” and that District E was another “down-the-road consequence” of the Board majority’s desire to split Eagle River.\(^{37}\) It noted that ignoring

\(^{32}\) Exc. 0570-71.
\(^{33}\) Exc. 0571.
\(^{34}\) Exc. 0571.
\(^{35}\) Exc. 0573.
\(^{36}\) Exc. 0573.
\(^{37}\) Exc. 0573.
the communities of interest was not necessary; it was the “product of a majority of the Board’s preference.” It found the fact that “other pairings that did not split communities of interest were available” to undercut the Board’s argument.

At each stage of its analysis, the superior court identified which direction each factor weighed: in favor of the Girdwood challenge, or against. Ultimately, it concluded that the neutral factors, taken as a whole, supported a finding of illegitimate intent. It then shifted the burden to the Board to demonstrate that it intended for the map to result in more proportional representation. After reviewing the numbers, the superior court concluded that the difference between the two map options was, on average, just 18 people—a difference the superior court properly found to be a de minimus increase that had not played any role in the Board’s decision, in accordance with Kenai Peninsula Borough’s guidance.

The Board contends that this finding of de minimus increased proportionality is fatal to the Girdwood Plaintiffs’ Equal Protection claim, but this overlooks that Kenai Peninsula Borough held that once the burden is shifted to the Board, the Board does not merely need to prove that the map increases representation—it “the Board has the burden of proving that it intentionally discriminated in order to increase the proportionality of 38 Exc. 0574.

39 Exc. 0574.
40 Exc. 0574.
41 Id.
42 Exc. 0575-77 (Option 2, -0.83% average deviations; Option 3B, -0.73% average deviations).
geographic representation in the legislature.” The superior court expressly found that “there is no evidence that greater proportionality was a factor the Board considered when crafting Senate pairings” and that any arguments about increased proportionality were “ultimately after-the-fact rationalizations rather than legitimate justifications.”

Overall, the superior court carefully applied the neutral factors test, including the burden-shifting, and found it weighed in favor of the Girdwood Parties.

2. The Superior Court’s Discussion of Federal Law Was Reasonable and Supported Its Decision to Consider the Record as a Whole in Its Analysis.

In conducting its neutral factors test, the superior court was sensitive to the fact that its prior findings regarding the Board majority’s intent were what tipped the scale—i.e., that if the Girdwood challenge had not followed the East Anchorage challenge, the outcome of the test may have been different. It acknowledged that this situation was a first in Alaska and that it had made its decision to consider the prior intent “without clear guidance from the Alaska Supreme Court establishing the legal framework to apply.”

Seeking guidance, the superior court therefore turned to federal case law, which provided a framework for situations involving prior discriminatory intent.

The superior court’s turn to federal law was a belt-and-suspenders approach that recognized the unprecedented situation we are in: a Board, found by two courts to have

44 Exc. 0576-77.
45 Exc. 0576.
46 Exc. 0577-78.
engaged in partisan gerrymandering, that goes back and does the exact same thing on remand, with similar evidence of secret agreements and discriminatory intent. The Board attacks the court’s federal analysis on two grounds: first, for relying on federal case law (Village of Arlington Heights v. Metropolitan Housing Development Corp.47) that did not involve redistricting; and second, for relying on a federal case (Abbott v. Perez48) that involved a different level of right.49

The Board’s first criticism is flat-out wrong. As the superior court explained, federal courts routinely apply the Arlington Heights framework in redistricting cases; the case itself, and other cases interpreting it, are thus appropriate as a source of guidance.50 The Board’s second criticism is overly formulaic. The superior court made clear that it considered the federal cases to “provide[] useful guidance in addressing the board’s prior bad intent.”51 The superior court went through a lengthy federal analysis to confirm that the result it reached under Kenai, giving weight to the Board’s prior intent, was not outside of legal norms. The superior court should be praised, not faulted for this careful approach.

49 Pet. at 30.
51 Exc. 0581.
However, the superior court need not have conducted its federal analysis. The Board cannot credibly argue that the superior court was obligated to ignore the prior history. The Girdwood Parties intervened in the same lawsuit, with the same case caption and case number, and the Board did not oppose their intervention.52 The same three Board members voted to adopt Option 3B as had voted to adopt the 2021 Proclamation. The superior court made clear, both in its decision and on the record at a hearing shortly after the Girdwood challenge was filed, that it would be considering the entirety of the record from the prior challenges in rendering its decision.53 The superior court’s prior finding about the Board’s intent does not just go to intent; it goes to the credibility of the three Board members, who testified in multiple formats in the prior litigation. Preventing the superior court from considering this history, and its prior findings on intent and credibility of the Board members, would hamstring its ability to render a fair decision as fact-finder. Worse, it would allow future boards to gerrymander simply by withstanding the first round of lawsuits.

The Girdwood Parties have not argued for a “once a sinner, always a sinner” rule, as the Board suggests, and that is not the rule the superior court applied. The superior court was clear that its decision was based on its finding that the original discriminatory intent, secretive agreements, and partisan objectives persisted on remand. The superior

52 Exc. 0953.

53 Exc. 0557 (“In this case, the record includes the full court record from the first round of this litigation, the record from the Board’s remand process as filed on April 28 and supplemented on May 2, and all materials submitted by the parties to the Girdwood challenge.”)

GIRDWOOD PARTIES’ OPPOSITION TO PETITION FOR REVIEW

ITMO: the 2021 Redistricting Cases: Supreme Court No. S-18419

-15-
court cited specific salient facts from the remand to support its state and federal analyses, and moreover cited numerous other less-dispositive “inconsistencies and peculiarities in the Board’s process [that], in the aggregate, also support this Court’s conclusions that the Board acted with discriminatory intent and improper purpose.”

3. The Superior Court Properly Considered the Board’s Decision to Ignore Public Testimony and Conduct a Public Process for Show as Evidence of the Board’s Improper Intent.

The Board misconstrues the superior court’s findings regarding public testimony and communities of interest. The superior court did not find the pairing to be unconstitutional because it was contrary to the weight of the public testimony. Rather, the superior court considered the Board’s disregard for public testimony in context, and concluded that it was further evidence of illegitimate intent.

The superior court observed that the Board majority, in public meetings, made a point of advocating for increased public process, insisting it was necessary “to meaningfully implement the findings of the Supreme Court,” “to give the public their due,” and “allow the public to engage and look at that plan.” Member Simpson even said: “I refuse to be badgered into a decision made on partial information before I'm ready to do it.” But despite this purported dedication to public process, the Board majority appeared not to listen. As the superior court put it:

54 Exc. 0594-98.
55 Exc. 0597.
56 Exc. 0597.
The communications and statements suggest the majority board members approached the process with a predetermined outcome in mind. The record indicates a disregard for the weight of public testimony, and lack of geographic awareness of what was in the districts at issue. Instead, [the] totality of the circumstances indicates a goal-oriented approach; they paid attention to the details only as much as they needed to say the right words on the public record when explaining their choice.57

As an example, Board members’ comments before and at the April 13 meeting make clear that the public process was for show. Less than half an hour before the final meeting, Members Simpson and Binkley revealed that they did not really know which districts Chugiak and the Chugach mountains were in, or even where they were geographically located relative to Eagle River.58 In other words, they appear to have paid no attention to the days of written and live testimony from innumerable members of the public about these very districts, focusing on the location of these very communities and geographic features, as part of the lengthy public process they had insisted was so important.

4. The Superior Court Properly Considered the Board’s Decision to Ignore Local Boundaries, Local Government Preferences, and Communities of Interest as Evidence of the Board’s Improper Intent.

The superior court noted that while all the house districts in question are within the Municipality of Anchorage, the Board ignored other local boundaries in its decision. The superior court noted that numerous community councils and community organizations in the affected districts wrote in opposing the 23/24 and 9/10 pairings. The 57 Exc. 0598.

58 Exc. 0804.
Downtown Community Council (“DCC”), Government Hill Community Council (“GHCC”), and Anchorage Downtown Partnership (“ADP”) all formally supported pairing downtown with the North Anchorage district (District 23).\(^{59}\) Similarly, the Girdwood Board of Supervisors (“GBOS”) passed a resolution in favor of a pairing with South Anchorage and against a pairing with Eagle River.\(^{60}\) All of these entities have defined legal boundaries and, in the case of ADP and DCC, those boundaries were broken by the Option 3B. Each entity supported its stated preference with specific facts.\(^{61}\)

In addition, the Board had at its disposal the record from a recent Municipality of Anchorage (“MOA”) Reapportionment process, which contained extensive additional evidence of community preferences. Assembly Member Christopher Constant, who had chaired the MOA reapportionment process, submitted a letter to the Board explaining the process.\(^{62}\) He explained that MOA had considered an option that would pair Eagle River with a South Anchorage neighborhood, and that it had been a “lightning rod” for overwhelming opposition from both South Anchorage and Eagle River.\(^{63}\)

\(^{59}\) Exc. 0596.

\(^{60}\) Id.

\(^{61}\) Exc. 0467 (DCC Resolution, noting that the Board had divided the “downtown core” into separate house districts and that placing them in separate senate districts as well would “further dissolve[]” downtown’s voice); Exc. 0959 and Exc. 0468-0473 (ADP Resolution urging the Board to keep the Assembly-created Downtown Improvement District together in one senate district and not pair downtown with “rural and residential” Eagle River); Exc. 0958 (GHCC written comment, noting District 24 “is rural Alaskan in distance, lifestyles, and values, and does not represent Government Hill, JBER, or downtown Anchorage.”).

\(^{62}\) Exc. 0554.

\(^{63}\) Exc. 0554 (citing Exc. 0820-910).

GIRDWOOD PARTIES’ OPPOSITION TO PETITION FOR REVIEW

ITMO: the 2021 Redistricting Cases; Supreme Court No. S-18419
The Board majority not only disregarded these communities’ preferences, but at least in the case of downtown, appear not to have even read the resolutions. Chair Binkley, Member Simpson, and Member Marcum, during the April 13 meeting, emphasized District 23’s “differences” from downtown as a reason that the district could never be paired with downtown and instead must be paired with Eagle River—even though the Board itself had already placed JBER in a house district with downtown, as these resolutions (and ample other public testimony) made clear.

Indeed, the superior court found it notable that no formal resolutions or messages were received from community councils or other community government bodies in any Eagle River communities, and no resolutions or messages were received from any community government body or entity representing the JBER population. But the Board majority was so focused on manufacturing justifications for its preferred pairing that it did not even look at District 23’s actual boundaries or its residents’ preferences.

The Board’s reliance on In re 2001 Redistricting Cases66 to support its argument that local boundaries are irrelevant is misplaced, as the superior court’s order does not 64 Exc. 0949-50. (Binkley stating that he had an office and condo downtown and had been involved with the Alaska Railroad, and that based on his experience JBER should not properly be paired with downtown—despite the fact that the Alaska Railroad, his office, and his condo were all already in District 23 with JBER); Exc. 0948. (Marcum stating that “[d]owntown has almost nothing in common with the military base”); Exc. 0946. (Simpson stating pairing the military bases with downtown overlooks JBER as a significant community of interest[.]”).

65 Exc. 0596.

66 Pet. at 11-12 (citing In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 47 P.3d 1089, 1091 (Alaska 2002)).
run afoul of that precedent. If anything, that case supports the Girdwood Parties’ argument. It stated that “respect for neighborhood boundaries is an admirable goal,” though because “it is not constitutionally required,” it “must give way to other legal requirements.”67 The Board selectively quotes this holding to suggest that “respect for neighborhood boundaries” is an improper consideration—but the case actually suggests that it is an “admirable” one that is appropriate to consider when it does not conflict with “other legal requirements.” On remand, the Board identified no other “legal requirements” that would prevent adoption of Option 2. As the superior court found, the Board’s disregard of neighborhood boundaries and neighborhood preferences is suspicious.

The Board’s disregard for established communities of interest is similarly suspect. Although the Board implies that “communities of interest” are legally irrelevant to the Board’s work, that position is not supported by this Court’s precedents. In Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State, this Court held that when evaluating illegitimate purpose under a neutral factors test, “[d]istrict boundaries which meander and selectively ignore political subdivisions and communities of interest, and evidence of regional partisanship are also suggestive.”68 While breaking apart a community of interest may not, on its own, be a constitutional violation, it is directly relevant to the legitimacy of the Board’s purpose.

67 In re 2001 Redistricting Cases, 47 P.3d at 1091.
The superior court’s February 16 order found that the Eagle River districts constituted a community of interest.69 Dr. Hensel provided expert testimony establishing that Girdwood and South Anchorage constituted a community of interest, which the superior court found compelling,70 especially in conjunction with the “extensive testimony during the public hearing process after remand that House District 9 is a community of interest with South Anchorage as a whole, and is markedly distinct and removed from Eagle River.”71 Numerous individuals testified to the close connection between Girdwood and South Anchorage and the lack of connection with Eagle River. A Girdwood resident testified to the Board that based on his phone’s location data, in the prior four years, he had been to Eagle River once—but had visited South Anchorage at least weekly, often multiple times a week.72 Others testified to the close connections between Girdwood and South Anchorage, explaining that the areas “link together well” because they share schools, shops, and infrastructure.73 Some District 9 residents testified to their concern that being paired with Eagle River would deprive them of a voice, leaving them unrepresented.74 In their affidavits before the superior court, the Girdwood Parties expanded on these themes as they related to Girdwood.75

---

69 Exc. 0572 (citing prior order).
70 Exc. 0572.
71 Exc. 0572.
72 Exc. 0939.
73 Exc. 0819.
74 E.g., Exc. 0940; Exc. 0941.
75 Exc. 0262-0273.
The Board thus disregarded the Eagle River community of interest, the downtown community of interest, and the Girdwood/South Anchorage community of interest—all to serve its ostensible purpose of protecting the “JBER community of interest.” But the superior court emphasized that JBER had never been established as a “community of interest” and that not a single JBER resident had even testified about the pairings:

[T]his court never found that JBER was a "community of interest." The Board has never presented any expert testimony on that issue. And the record does not appear to contain specific public comment from any JBER resident. On the other hand, this court did find that Eagle River was a "community of interest," and yet the Board made no effort to preserve its boundaries. Not only is the Board's stated purpose not supported by the weight of the record, it is also contrary to precedent.76

The superior court separately noted, in its order on the East Anchorage motion, that “JBER is largely self-contained within its own house district, so there is no danger of it being split and paired with other districts in such a way as to dilute its voting strength.77

The superior court, noting the inconsistency between the Board’s insistence on protecting the un-established JBER community of interest, and its silence on protecting the Eagle River community of interest, determined the “Board’s stated motivations about protecting the JBER connection and supporting military voters” to be “pretextual.”78

---

76 Exc. 0586. In addition, the record contained significant evidence that military families live all over Anchorage—not just on JBER and in Eagle River. Military families live in many places in the Municipality of Anchorage. Exc. 0937-38, Exc. 920, Exc. 925-26, Exc. 0921, Exc. 0944.

77 Exc. 0541. See also Exc. 0937-38 (testimony of Denny Wells that the corner of JBER within District 24 is actually unpopulated).

78 Exc. 0587.
Even the public testimony the Board cites in its Petition—which is presumably the best it could find in the record—is either demonstrably inaccurate or selectively ignores portions of the testimony. For example, the Board quotes a Peters Creek resident who supported Option 3B because JBER “is middle to low income families” “taking out payday loans in order to fill the gas tank” and better matched with Eagle River as opposed to Downtown Anchorage “with very high incomes”—but the Board presented no evidence to support this testimony, and the record in fact contradicts it. Another member of the military community, whom the Board majority selectively ignored, provided research from the Council on Foreign Relations showing that Eagle River’s median and average income are $111,388 and $126,943, respectively. One of the individuals the Board quotes was actually referenced in the superior court’s recent decision—the superior court noted that in the prior Board proceeding, Member Marcum had selectively read public comments into the record to elide her partisan motivations, removing the words “more conservative” from that citizen’s comment describing Eagle River as “a somewhat friendlier, safer, and more conservative part of Anchorage.” Yet another citizen the Board quotes, who advocated later in the remand process for the District 9/10 pairing, had testified to the exact opposite on April 2, when she told the Board the historical events.

79 Pet. at 24.
80 Exc. 0960-62 (testimony of Andrew Gray).
81 Exc. 0589-90.
Turnagain Arm/Eagle River pairing had been a “geographical nightmare” that led to ineffective representation.\textsuperscript{82}

As a final comment on inconsistency, the Board’s present argument before this Court that “communities of interest” are undefined, irrelevant, and have no place in senate pairing decisions is disingenuous in light of the Board majority’s own repeated, explicit invocation of the “JBER community of interest” as the justification for Option 3B. While Board counsel may now take a different view, the Board itself clearly understands what a community of interest is, and clearly considered it important. The superior court properly considered the Board’s decision to selectively ignore known communities of interest, while pretextually favoring another whose existence had not even been established, as evidence of its improper intent.

\textbf{5. The Superior Court Correctly Found, Based on Expert Testimony, that Option 3B Led to Dilution of District 9’s Vote.}

As discussed above, the superior court properly found that the Board intentionally discriminated. Accordingly, the Board has the burden of proving it discriminated \textit{“in order to increase the proportionality of geographic representation in the legislature.”}\textsuperscript{83} While the superior court recognized a \textit{de minimis} increase totaling 18 people in South Anchorage’s proportionality under Option 3B, it found “there is no evidence that greater proportionality was a factor the Board considered when crafting Senate pairings” and “any argument that Senate Districts are more proportional are ultimately after-the-fact rationalizations rather than legitimate justifications.” Indeed, the Board does not even try to argue that its decision to split Eagle River was for the intentional purpose of increasing South Anchorage’s proportionality. A coincidental and de minimis increase in proportionality does not sanitize the Board’s second attempt to split Eagle River for an illegitimate purpose.

\textsuperscript{82} Pet. at 25; Exc. 0817.

Rather, the superior court properly found that Senate District E dilutes the voting power of more moderate South Anchorage by splitting the Eagle River community of interest and pairing “solidly and predictably Republican” District 10 with District 9. It reached this conclusion in its role as the trier of fact, after considering the evidence submitted by both parties. The Girdwood Parties submitted expert testimony from Dr. Hensel, who described District 9 as a “majority-lean but not always majority-electing” swing district that would be overpowered, and converted into a safe Republican seat, by a pairing with Eagle River. The Board relied on the testimony of its executive director Peter Torkelson, who focused narrowly on Girdwood, rather than District 9 as a whole, to assert that Girdwood lacks the population to control any senate district and that District 9 was already Republican-leaning, so any pairing with Eagle River is harmless. The superior court noted that the Board failed to present any expert testimony and Dr.

---

84 Exc. 0575-77.
86 Exc. 0582; Exc. 282-283.
87 Exc. 0582; Exc. 0276-0283 (Hensel Report).
88 Exc. 0582.
89 Exc. 0583.
Hensel noted in his Supplemental Report the problems with Mr. Torkelson’s narrow approach.\(^{90}\)

The Board argues in its Petition that “Girdwood” is better off under Option 3B because 3B confers a miniscule improvement in Girdwood’s proportionality.\(^{91}\) This argument repeats Mr. Torkelson’s error and misses the point, which is the proven dilution of District 9’s vote.\(^{92}\)

The superior court correctly concluded, after reviewing the party’s evidence,\(^{93}\) that there was a reasonable possibility that pairing District 9 with another more moderate community could still lead to election of a Republican candidate—but, significantly, that outcome would not be a certainty, as it would in an Eagle River pairing.\(^{94}\) This is the very definition of a swing district: one that could go either way, but is free to decide its own destiny. The Board’s adoption of Option 3B converted District 9 from a swing district to a “safe Republican senate seat,” thus diluting the voting power of District 9.

6. A House District Created in 2001 Has Little Relevance to a Senate District Created for Partisan Reasons in 2022.

\(^{90}\) Exc. 0440-0443 (Hensel Supplemental Report). After oral argument, Dr. Hensel learned of an error in his JBER calculations and submitted a letter to the court with a correction, which prompted a response from Mr. Torkelson, which in turn prompted another letter from Dr. Hensel. Exc. 0518-0533.

\(^{91}\) Pet. at 16-19.

\(^{93}\) The superior court had received testimony from both Dr. Hensel and Mr. Torkelson in the prior litigation and was familiar with their qualifications, experience, and credibility.

\(^{94}\) Exc. 0583.
The Board’s insistence that “precedent” establishes that Turnagain Arm and Eagle River can be in a district together is misplaced. Although geographic similarities may exist between a house district drawn twenty years ago and the Board’s 2022 senate district E, the record contained no evidence—and the Board cited no facts—to indicate that the region’s population in the 2000 Census was at all numerically, demographically, or socially similar to the region’s population now. There is a reason the Constitution charges the Board with the task of re-districting every 10 years: populations grow, shrink, shift, and change. And even some historically constitutional districts may not function well in practice: indeed, one of the first members of the public to testify before the Board on remand was a 40-year Eagle River resident who described the 2001 house district as a “geographical nightmare” that created representation problems, as the representatives “never really connected with what was important to the community out here.”

Moreover, the mere congruity of map lines is irrelevant in analyzing whether the Board acted with illegal intent. As this Court has already ruled and the superior court has now ruled twice, a senate district composed of constitutional house districts and that meets the Article VI, §6 contiguity requirement can still be unconstitutional, if it is made with illegitimate purpose to benefit one population at the expense of another.

95 Exc. 0817.

96 See Feb. 16, 2022 FFCL at 42-71; Exc. 0563-67; March 25, 2022, Interim Order of the Alaska Supreme Court at 5-6 (S-18332).
Overall, the fact that a prior Board created a house district stretching from Hope to Eagle River twenty years ago is irrelevant to the constitutionality of the present senate district E.

B. The Superior Court Ordered an Appropriate Interim Remedy and Remanded the Proclamation to the Board.

The superior court ordered an appropriately tailored remedy that is well within the bounds of the Alaska Constitution and consistent with relevant caselaw.

On February 16, 2022, after trial, the superior court found that the Board’s 2021 Proclamation intentionally discriminated in favor of the Eagle River community of interest at the expense of the Muldoon community of interest, and constituted a partisan gerrymander.\(^{97}\) This Court agreed in its March 25, 2022, Interim Order:\(^{98}\) On remand, the Board ignored aspects of the superior court’s and this Court’s orders and perpetuated the same political gerrymander, this time with different downstream consequences,\(^{99}\) that had been struck down by the courts by selectively and disingenuously interpreting the

---

\(^{97}\) Feb. 16, 2022 FFCL at 70. The Court found that there was “substantial evidence of secretive procedures, regional partisanship, and selective ignorance of political subdivisions and communities of interest[,] [and] that the Board intentionally discriminated against residents of East Anchorage in favor of Eagle River, and [that] discrimination had an illegitimate purpose.”

\(^{98}\) March 25, 2022, Interim Order of the Alaska Supreme Court at 6 (S-18332).

\(^{99}\) Exc. 0587 (May 16, 2022, Order Re Girdwood Challenges to Amended Plan at 41 n.196 (“The Board cites only superficial similarities between South Eagle River and Girdwood, such as being ‘close to the mountains’ and ‘generally more rural.’ Instead, the Board admits that new Senate District E is essentially another downstream consequence of pairing North Eagle River with JBER.” (citing Board’s [Proposed] Findings of Fact and Conclusions of law at 7–8; Exc. 0949))).
controlling court orders.\textsuperscript{100}

The superior court once again rejected the Board’s partisan gerrymander and exercised its mandamus power under article VI, section 11 to order that the Board adopt Option 2, the alternative that the Board itself had adopted for public consideration on an \textit{interim} basis.\textsuperscript{101} The superior court properly declined to allow an election to move forward under politically gerrymandered senate districts in the Municipality of Anchorage.\textsuperscript{102}

Article VI, section 11 of the Alaska Constitution provides in relevant part: “Any qualified voter may apply to the superior court to compel the Redistricting Board, by mandamus or otherwise, to perform its duties under this article or to correct any error in

\begin{footnotesize}
\begin{enumerate}
\item[\textsuperscript{100}] Exc. 0590 (May 16, 2022, Order Re Girdwood Challenges to Amended Plan at 44 (“The Board knew that this court found that Senate District K was the result of intentional discrimination. And the Board knew that the Alaska Supreme Court affirmed this court’s findings in the East Anchorage challenge on equal protection grounds. Yet the Board has proceeded through the remand as though this court reversed Senate District K on a procedural technicality.”)).
\item[\textsuperscript{101}] Exc. 0953 (“Ultimately, I found that both option 2, I believe, and option 3 are valid approaches.” Statement of Chair Binkley at the April 13, 2022, Board meeting.).
\item[\textsuperscript{102}] \textit{Cf.} Kenai Peninsula Borough \textit{v. State}, 743 P.2d 1352, 1373 (Alaska 1987) (holding that declaratory relief was an appropriate remedy where the effect of the Board’s intentional discrimination was de minimus). Here, the Board’s intentional political gerrymander invidiously undermined article VI, section 6 of the Alaska Constitution and the framers’ intent that the redistricting process be nonpartisan, foreclosing the Girdwood Plaintiffs’ rights to fair and effective representation. \textit{See, e.g.,} Hickel \textit{v. Se. Conf.}, 846 P.2d 38, 45 (Alaska 1992), \textit{as modified on reh’g} (Mar. 12, 1993) (“The requirements of contiguity, compactness and socio-economic integration were incorporated by the framers of the reapportionment provisions to prevent gerrymandering.” (citing 3 PACC 1846 (January 11, 1956)). The superior court properly “determined that Option 3B was an unconstitutional political gerrymander” and appropriately ordered the Board to adopt Option 2 on an interim basis.
\end{enumerate}
\end{footnotesize}
redistricting.”103 In past redistricting cycles, prior to the 1998 constitutional amendment to article VI, court-appointed masters have instituted interim redistricting plans while legal challenges were addressed by the courts.104 When the legislature drafted the amendment, one of its “primary concerns was removing partisan politics from the redistricting process . . . requiring Board Members to be appointed ‘without regard to political affiliation.’ ”105 Nonetheless, the Board chose to flout the order of the superior court and this Court and willfully perpetuate a political gerrymander contrary to the intentions of both the framers and the 1998 legislature.

The Board argues that “since Section 11’s enactment in 1998, no Alaska court has mandated the Board adopt any specific house or senate district[,]” and, in any event, the superior court lacked the power to correct the Board’s error.106 The problem with the Board’s argument is that the Alaska Constitution expressly contemplates in article VI, section 11 that instances may arise where a court must exercise its mandamus power “to correct any error in redistricting.”107 The fact that past courts have not needed to exercise

---

103 Alaska Const. art. VI, § 11; In re 2011 Redistricting Cases, 294 P.3d 1032, 1044 n.22 (Alaska 2012) (Matthews, J., dissenting).
104 See, e.g., Hickel v. Se. Conf., 846 P.2d 38, 65 nn.11–12 (Alaska 1992), as modified onreh’g (Mar. 12, 1993) (incorporating Memorandum and Order in Case No. 1JU–91–1608 Civil (Consolidated) (discussing appointment of special masters to implement an interim plan during legal challenges following the 1991 redistricting and referencing the appointment of special masters in 1972 for the same purpose)).
106 Board’s Petition for Review at 33.
107 Alaska Const. art. VI, sec. 11; see also Anderson v. Dept’ of Admin., Div. of Motor Vehicles, 440 P.3d 217, 220 (Alaska 2019) (“Traditionally, a suit asking the court their mandamus authority does not mean the constitutional remedy is unavailable; it merely means that no prior board has been so derelict as to require mandamus.

In this case, there was not time to remand for a third Board process before the June 1 primary election candidate filing deadline. The superior court was therefore faced with a choice between two imperfect options: (1) allowing the next election cycle to proceed on Option 3B, an unconstitutional, gerrymandered map;\textsuperscript{108} or (2) exercising its mandamus power to order the Board to adopt Option 2, an apparently constitutional alternative that the Board itself developed, that a majority of the Board indicated was a valid alternative, and that had been presented by the public through public process.\textsuperscript{109} The superior court chose the better of these two options: the apparently constitutional map, not the definitively unconstitutional map. The superior court was, however, sensitive to the Alaska Constitution’s delegation of redistricting authority to the Board, and ordered that Option 2 be adopted \textit{only on an interim basis}. The superior court remanded the proclamation to the Board for adoption of a permanent map. This was a prudent, modest use of its constitutional mandamus power that balanced the realities of the situation with respect for the Board’s delegated authority.

\textsuperscript{108} See, e.g., \textit{Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State}, 743 P.2d 1352, 1372 (Alaska 1987) (“We consider a voter's right to an equally geographically effective or powerful vote, while not a fundamental right, to represent a significant constitutional interest.”).

\textsuperscript{109} The overwhelming majority of the public testimony by the residents of districts affected by the Board’s political gerrymander spoke out in favor of Option 2. See, e.g., Exc. 0934; Exc. 0806; Exc. 0807; Exc. 0818; Exc. 0819; Exc. 0913; Exc. 0914; Exc. 0915; Exc. 0916; Exc. 0917; Exc. 0918; Exc. 0919; Exc. 0920; Exc. 0922; Exc. 0923; Exc. 0924; Exc. 0927; Exc. 0929; Exc. 0935; Exc. 0945; Exc. 0946; Exc. 0954.

The superior court’s remedy will ensure that the next election does not occur on an unconstitutional map, while the Board works a third time to complete its task of adopting fair, impartial, nonpartisan senate pairings.

V. CONCLUSION

The Board characterizes the superior court’s order as “a result in search of a reason”—an unusual accusation to level against an impartial member of the judiciary, especially one whose work the Board respected and, in part, defended in the last round of litigation. Based on the record, this characterization is far more apt when applied to the Board itself.

The Board has twice proven that it cannot be trusted to draw a fair, impartial Senate map for Anchorage. This situation is precisely why article VI, §11 of the Alaska Constitution gives the courts the authority “to compel the Redistricting Board, by mandamus or otherwise, to perform its duties under this article or to correct any error in redistricting.” The Girdwood Parties ask this court to affirm the superior court’s invocation of its mandamus power to correct the error the Board made in adopting a second unconstitutional gerrymandered map and impose Option 2 on an interim basis for the upcoming election.
ASHBURN & MASON, P.C.
Attorneys for Louis Theiss, Ken Waugh, and Jennifer Wingard

DATED: May 20, 2022

By: /Eva R. Gardner
Eva R. Gardner
Alaska Bar No. 1305017
Michael S. Schechter
Alaska Bar No. 1405044
Benjamin J. Farkash
Alaska Bar No. 1911095